GETTING LABORERS TO THE FIELDS IS BIG PROBLEM

Supply and Demand Seem About Balanced in State—Transportation is Difficult.

Lincoln, July 10.—Transportation fast becoming the most per-nickety economic bug-bear in lots of other things, is also the fly in the ointment of the Nebraska harvest hand situation.

This is according to Charles Bolles, chief of the combined federal and state employment agency in Lincoln. The Nebraska wheat fields are calling loudly for men this week in every corner of the state. Bolles told the World-Herald correspondent this morning. The men are calling at the employment office in just about the same volume. Supply and demand seem ideally balanced.

But there is trouble in getting the men out to the fields. Men won't pay their way to the farther fields when they can get work closer, or when they can get transportation free to the work, he explained. Just at present they are filling the nearer territory.

County Agent Wilson of Seward county, for instance, is making two and three trips to Lincoln in his Ford and taking five men out home with him on each trip to go into the Seward county harvest fields. Up around Osceola they are crying for hands, he said this morning. The men are getting four dollars a taken or where the transportation costs are less.

Sixty-seven men were sent out from the Lincoln office yesterday. Besides this office, there is one at Omaha, one at Hastings and one at Nebraska City.

He men are getting four dollars a day, Bolles said. Last year they got $3.50 or $3.00.

The drift now is from Kansas, where the harvest is nearly finished.

FEDERAL CONTROL IF MINERS STRIKE IS NEXT PROBLEM

Call for Legislation Likely to Be Pressed When Congress Assembles Next Winter.

Washington, July 9.—Legislation providing for governmental supervision of the coal industry is certain to figure prominently at next winter's session of congress as a result of the recommendations of President Harding's coal commission.

The president, it is expected, will embody the commission's recommendations in his annual message to congress in December. With the administration back of the proposition a bill may be passed, although previous efforts to obtain the enactment of somewhat similar legislation have met with failure.

The recommendation that the president be given authority to take over the mines, produce the coal and market it, and fix wages of the miners and compensation for the mine owners when a suspension of work occurs, promises to develop the most acute controversy.

Industry is Hostile. It is unlikely that either the operators or the miners will show any great amount of enthusiasm for this proposition. The coal operators heretofore have opposed legislation requiring them to make reports to a governmental agency as to costs of production. A proposal of this nature was embodied in the Frelinghuysen bill of two years ago, which had the approval of Secretary of Commerce Hoover and former Secretary of the Interior Fall as well as that of the federal trade commission.

With the impetus given by the coal commission's recommendations, which will be amplified in its final report in December, bill will be introduced at the beginning of the winter season and pressed for early hearings. In the house, Representative Newton, republican, Minnesota, a republican member of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, has been active in behalf of coal legislation, and has indicated his intention to continue his efforts in the next session.

Radicals Are Factor The increase in radical strength in both houses in the new congress is expected to improve greatly the prospects for coal legislation.

While the radical element will not view kindly many of the administration recommendations, the coal legislation probably will meet with favor. The radicals will attempt likely to go to more of an extreme than approved by the administration.

Members of the coal commission registered their recommendations for legislation as conservative. As stated in the anthracite report, the commission is opposed to government ownership of the mines, and there is no suggestion of a drastic form of government regulation except in the case of a strike, when the president would be empowered to take over the mines.

RAILROAD GRADE CROSSINGS EXACT VERY HEAVY TOLL

Records Show More People Injured in Nebraska First Six Months of 1923 Than Ever.

Four persons were killed at railroad grades during the month of June in Nebraska, and more were injured in such accidents during the first six months of the year than in any previous six months of five years past.

The total number of injured reported for the month was twelve and injuries to some of these may still further increase the death roll.

The total number of injured in the first six months of the year was fifty, exceeding the year records for 1920 and 1919. The total number killed during the first half of the year was eleven, slightly below the five year average. Twenty-four were killed in the first six months of 1919, that being just half the number killed in such accidents during that entire year.

The five year record for the month of June follows:

Year	Injured	Killed
1919	50	11
1920	41	3
1921	34	11
1922	0	2
1923	12	4

Five year record for the first six months of the year:

Year	Injured	Killed
1919	246	24
1920	144	14
1921	24	13
1922	34	11
1923	50	11

The average number of injured for the month of June for the five year period was 3.8; average number killed, 4.

The average number injured in the first half of the year for five years was 24.6; average number killed, 10.6.
