RUMOR NORRIS MAY AGAIN SEEK SENATORIAL TOGA

Deny Senator Has Eye on Governatorial Nomination, But Admit He May Not Retire.

Washington, July 13.—Close friends of Senator Norris today emphatically denied persistent rumors that the senator would seek the Nebraska gubernatorial togs on the republican ticket in 1924.

The political future of the senator who is spending the summer in the Wisconsin woods has been open to speculation for some time. He has made no public statement regarding his plan except his announcement last year that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the senate when his term expires March 4, 1925. Since this announcement most Nebraskans have been of the opinion that the senator would retire from politics at that time.

Senator Norris, however, has changed his plans according to several politicians here who have touch with him and the Nebraska political world. If his eyes are not troubling him and his chances of re-election are good he will again be a candidate for the senate, they declare.

They point out that since the Nebraskan holds one of the most important posts in the senate, chairman of the senate committee on agriculture, there are only two possible reasons why he would not seek his toga again. One is his failing sight which has caused him considerable trouble and frequently interfered with his work, while the other is the possibility of the Nebraska political change in his plans that if he were to run again his defeat would be certain. It is understood his eyes are much better now than they have been for some time following an operation several months ago in Omaha and unless there is an unexpected change in his plans it will be light for his seat in 1924 and clear of the gubernatorial fight.

MAKING NEW EXTENSION

From Saturday's Daily.
The Plattsmouth Water company has been busy cutting over the new timber street main extension, replacing hydrants, repairing valves, etc., which necessitates the shutting off and turning on of the water at different times.

This has caused the water to be cloudy quite a number of times lately and will continue to be so for a few more days until this work is completed and the basins, filters and standpipes cleaned and put in shape, after which the water will assume its usual clearness.

Our neighboring city of Omaha is undergoing this same experience due to the fact that the filters are being rebuilt.

PAVING CREATES INTEREST

The matter of the paving of the new districts here consisting of North and South Sixth streets, three blocks on west Main street and a block each on Granite and Seventh street and one block on Hickory street between Fifth and Sixth streets has created a great deal of interest.

The council will have the matter up for hearing on Monday night and it is expected at that time that the contract for the work will be let and also that the kind of paving desired will be designated.

The friends of all classes of paving are busy interviewing the residents of the district and the city officials who have been looking over the various classes of paving in other nearby cities, and the result Monday night is awaited with interest.

RUSSIAN 'PRINCE' IS LABORER IN THE OIL WELL FIELDS

Kansas City Authorities Gather In Prince Dimitri, Who Made a Big Hit in the East.

Kansas City, Mo., July 13.—Suicide is preferable to life in America. Life is not worth ten minutes humiliation in the hands of detectives. Death is better than living persecution.

This was the jail-room philosophy today of "Prince" Michael Obelenski Dimitri, who tried to kill himself by slashing his wrist with a piece of glass, while detectives held him for investigation.

"I have committed no crime and my conscience is free, but it is easier to die than suffer such humiliation."

Dug Ditches
"I came here from the oil fields of Oklahoma, where I was compelled to dig ditches for a living," he continued.

"I came here expecting to get a better position. Officers who followed me to my room arrested me and kicked me into this dirty cell."

Obelenski said police and newspaper men drove him out of Tulsa, where he had become a member of the University club, and at St. Louis, where he "moved in the highest circles."

The self-styled scion of Russian nobility will be held pending investigation into his recent career extending from ditches in oil fields near Tulsa, Oklahoma, to associating with Kansas City's 400.

"Hounded Me"
The "prince" said he arrived in New York last December, but because of "persecution" by newspaper men who desired to interview him, he was forced to flee to St. Louis. "There they hounded me again," he said. "I told reporters I decided to lead an obscure life. They persisted in asking if I wasn't a man by the name of Ferguson. For days the photographers and reporters followed me from place to place. Then in order to quiet them, I admitted I was Ferguson."

On July 4, the prince explained, he met a kind friend who gave him funds with which to come to Kansas City, and obtained a hotel room.

Here he gave frequent interviews, telling how Rasputin was killed and attended functions in highest social sets. Before arresting Dimitri, police were forced to wait for hours at his hotel while he returned from a social engagement.

New York Knows Him
New York, July 13.—The roarin' forties and the fashionable 400 knew Prince Dimitri Obolenski, as the scion of the Romanoffs now held in Kansas City was known here.

Greenwich Village knew him—his Russian-Oxford accent was frequently heard in the Hotel Lafayette as he told of his extraordinary adventures, leaping overboard to swim ashore from Ellis Island when sought for murder, killing the monk, Rasputin, struggling in the clutches of bolshevik torturers—all the gamut of adventure that befalls a true Russian prince who has an engagement for a six weeks' speaking tour.

The newspapers "fell" for the prince. There are many who still refuse to believe the story he broke down and told in St. Louis—that he was only Harry Ferguson of Hillsboro, Ill., after all.

BRYAN STILL LOP-PING THE STATE CODE PAYROLL

Has Dropped 118 Employees in Public Works and Agriculture Departments—Many Inspectors.

Lincoln, July 12.—Governor Bryan is still swinging a relentless ax about the roots of the old code organization bequeathed to him against his will by the last session of the legislature.

Up to today the total amount of heads that have fallen looks more like a bulletin summary of the French revolution than an announcement of what is being done in Nebraska.

In two departments of the old code organization 118 employees have been lopped off the state payroll. Last week the governor announced that he had cut seventy-six employees off the payroll of the state department of public works. Today he announced that forty-two heads had fallen in the department of agriculture.

In July, last year, under the old regime, there were ninety-eight employees in the agriculture department. This July there are only fifty-six.

This cut has been made in a department where there is no lack of money to keep up the big payroll. It is maintained chiefly upon fees collected and there would be plenty of money even to keep a larger staff than the old administration had, the governor pointed out in making his announcement today.

"This may not make me popular with a large number of disappointed applicants for jobs," he said, "but I promised the taxpayers of this state that I would apply business and not political methods in handling the state's business and I am trying to carry out that promise."

One of the chief sources of these cuts, the governor said, is in the inspection service, the number of inspectors being cut in half.

The monthly payroll of the agriculture department has been cut from $13,471 last year to $7,186 this year, he said.

The total expense of operating the department has fallen from $18,544 for the first six months of 1922 to $11,735 for the first six months of 1923, a total cut for the six months of $6,809.

"The total appropriations recommended by me for this department was $161,290," he said. "The legislature appropriated $1,092,749. In reappropriating the cash balance they estimated it at $39,000 in the appropriation bill when they knew that the actual figure was $300,000 and that receipts would bring it up to $600,000. But they wanted to make it appear that they had not raised my recommendation, which was $39,000."

INCREASE IN INCOME OF GREAT NORTHERN
St. Paul, Minn., July 12.—A large increase in the operating income of the Great Northern railway, despite a material cut in freight rates and the costly shopmen's strike, is shown for the year 1922, in the annual report made public today.

The report also shows substantial improvements in the railway property and a program of expenditure which is continued into the present year.

Net railway operating income increased more than one-third over 1921. The ratio of expenses to revenues was reduced 2.5 per cent.

The Great Northern has protested against the tentative valuation of its properties by the interstate commerce commission as too low, altho the valuation exceeds capitalization of the company and explodes the "watered stock" plank of the anti-railroad group, and expects to show the commission that the valuation should be made much higher, the report emphasizes.

Gross income of the Great Northern for 1922 was $27,763,603.60, of which slightly less than 50 per cent went for dividends. Interest, taxes and rents required $16,891,931, or approximately $2,250,000 more than for dividend requirements. Net railway operating income was $17,276,597.

Non-operating income, including dividends of $8,527,118 from the Burlington, totaled $10,487,006.

COAL MEN ACCUSED OF USING STRIKE AS CLUB OVER PUBLIC

Member of U. S. Commission Charges Operators Holding Threat of Strike to Keep up Prices

Washington, July 13.—Anthracite coal operators, who are deadlocked with union miners' representatives over the new wage agreement at the Atlantic City conference, are holding back to keep the fear of a strike September 1 before the public.

The statement was made today by a spokesman for the United States coal commission.

The motive behind this delay was declared to be to keep up the heavy buying that is exceeding the mine capacity and thereby maintain the high level of prevailing prices. Prices of anthracite are practically up to the levels maintained last winter, when there was a shortage of coal due to the five months' strike in 1922.

Current quotations, gathered by Federal Fuel Distributor Wadleigh, show anthracite in Washington costing consumers as high as $15.50 a ton, the same coal costing $8.50 at the mine.

Members of the commission believe that if there was federal regulation the market would be stabilized and prices kept to a reasonable level.

The commission does not discourage summer buying and storage of coal. It rather encourages it as an economic necessity.

If the railroads were required to provide facilities to move a whole season's coal within the consuming season, the cost of locomotives, cars, extra trackage, etc., would run into hundreds of millions of dollars, according to estimates of the commission's experts.
