GREET THE JUDGE

This morning when Judge William Weber arrived at the city hall and hung out the "welcome" sign at the police court, he was greeted by Eddie Bentler and Carl Lock, both of whom claimed to hail from the pleasant locality of Nebraska City and who were charged by Chief of Police Alvin Jones with having imbibed too freely of intoxicating liquor. The young men were gathered up by the chief this morning as they came from a restaurant where they had breakfasted and stated they were passing through the city feeling a great hunger had stopped to refresh themselves and found their finish in the new and most attractively furnished city jail which the police committee of the council has just had equipped with new couches.

When brought before the court, Mr. Lock entered a plea of not guilty to the charges against him. Being did not deny that perhaps he had drank long and not wisely and might be under the potent sway of the great white spirit of prohibition sometimes known as "corn likker." The judge, in order to avoid a mistake, inflicted a fine of $10 and costs on both of the parties and Mr. Bentler paid his fine and was released while his companion remained until a Good Samaritan might come to his rescue and release him.

Now is the time to get the Hessian fly. Disk the ground before plowing or plow early. Plow all the stubble under. Don't leave any above the ground or you will have the flies. Remember that in the fall the fly will travel about one-half mile to find a wheat field, so all must cooperate to get him.
