WHEAT GROWERS NOW DEMANDING BONDED STORAGE

Plans Being Made to Start Warehouse Machinery Provided for by Law Years Ago.

Lincoln, Aug. 6.—The prospects of a broken wheat market and the consequent necessity for most of Nebraska's farmers to hold their wheat for higher prices has started a demand for the utilization of the machinery for bonded warehouses within the state, it developed today when the state department of agriculture began to investigate the warehouse situation.
For seven years bonded grain warehouses have been authorized under the federal law and for four years they have been authorized under the Nebraska state law. In that time there has never been a federal or state bonded warehouse in Nebraska. There have been but six in Iowa. There have been none in Kansas, Out in Washington and Oregon, in the northwest wheat growing territory, the plan has worked. Hundreds of federal warehouses have been licensed there.

The United States department of agriculture gave as its reason for the failure of this plan in Nebraska that there never was any demand among farmers for warehouses.

Law to Make Granary Warehouses
In 1919 the state passed a state warehouse law which permitted the storage of grain in granaries on the farms where it was grown and the issuance of warehouse receipts upon this grain. This law has never been used, either, to any extent, farmer officials say.

In the last week inquiries have been flocking into the office of Grant Shumway, secretary of the state department of agriculture from farmers who want to know how to go about storing their grain under bond so that they may take advantage of the credit facilities furnished by the warehouse receipts.

H. B. Steward, head of the Nebraska farm bureau federation at Lincoln, declared today that he was also getting many inquiries of the same nature.
Shumway informed the World-Herald correspondent today that he was going to take the matter up with the department of agriculture at Washington immediately.

Fair Price Until This Year
"The reason the plan has never created any great interest here," Steward said, today, "is that there has been a low price for wheat during the past few years at harvest time and the necessity for taking advantage of the storage plan has not been great. This year the indications are that a very large part of the Nebraska wheat crop will be stored, and the requirements of the new intermediate credit banks are also bringing about the demand for warehouse receipts for grain."

Steward also said that the scarcity of suitable elevator space was another reason why these bonded warehouses had not been set up in Nebraska heretofore.

NEBRASKA FORD'S MEAT SAYS MR. SHALLENBERGER

Congressman from Fifth District Declares Fliver King is His First, Second and Third Choice

Congressman A. C. Shallenberger was in Lincoln Tuesday, says the State Journal, continuing:
He had just returned from Trenton, where he spoke at the celebration commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the last battle between Pawnee and Sioux Indians.
"I am for Henry Ford for president," said Mr. Shallenberger when asked about the probable choice of the democratic party of a candidate for president. "Ford is my first choice, my second choice and my third choice and I intend to see that he gets the democratic delegation from Nebraska."

"What is Governor Bryan should desire the delegation for himself or for some one else?"
"Well, I had not figured on Nebraska having a candidate for president," said Mr. Shallenberger. "I assume that Governor Bryan will be busy next year with state affairs. I have supported candidates in the past who could not be elected. I want to support one this time who can be."

Congressman Shallenberger is becoming famous as a judge of Short-horn cattle. He has been honored with a request to judge these breeds at the international livestock show at Chicago, also at the show at Minneapolis and at the Ohio show of Short-horns. He judged the Ohio show last year and has been asked to return there, indicating he said, that he did not make as many enemies as he had thought. As congressman from the Fifth Nebraska district he served on the military committee during the world war.

FRIDAY A DAY OF MOURNING IN U. S.

Governor Issues Proclamation Setting Apart Friday as a Day of Mourning for Nebraska.

Governor Bryan was still among the missing Tuesday at noon, but from his temporary capital supposed to be somewhere in Minnesota or South Dakota, he issued a proclamation setting apart Friday as a day of mourning throughout Nebraska. The proclamation follows that of President Coolidge with reference to the death of President Harding and in recommending August 10 as a day of mourning. All departments of state government will be closed the entire day.

The governor's proclamation calls upon the people of the state to temporarily cease their avocations and to assemble in their places of worship in this hour of national bereavement.

F. C. Radke, secretary to the governor, said he had been authorized to issue the proclamation. He intimated that the governor had been delayed by muddy roads. He did not say where the governor was when he authorized the issuance of the proclamation. He did not know when the governor would arrive home, and he did not say where the governor had been, or whether he had spent the greater part of the past twenty days in northern Minnesota.

Mr. Radke said Governor Bryan had sent the following message to Mrs. Harding:
"Please accept the heartfelt sympathy of Mrs. Bryan and myself. As far as it is possible for us to do so we want to help you bear your sorrow. Our prayer is that God, who is our refuge and strength in time of need, may be your support and comfort."

Proclamation by Governor
Mr. Radke issued the following proclamation, on authority of the governor under date of August 7:

"In the untimely death of Warren G. Harding the nation has sustained a loss that cannot be fully conceived. He was one of the common people. His life as a private citizen and as president of the United States was one of honest toil and endeavor and was distinguished by his devotion to the American people."

"Sorrow fills our hearts because he has been taken from us. It is meet that our grief should find expression in a manner befitting a grateful people. And that we conform to the order in the proclamation of the president, Calvin Coolidge, that a day of mourning for the dead be set aside."

"Now, therefore, I, Charles W. Bryan, governor of the state of Nebraska, do earnestly recommend that Friday, the 10th day of August, A. D. 1923, the day on which the body of our late president will be laid to rest, be set apart, and it is hereby designated as a day of mourning throughout Nebraska. All departments of government will be closed the entire day and flags will be displayed at half mast."

"I call upon the people of the state to temporarily cease following their usual avocations and to assemble in their respective places of worship to implore the aid of the Eternal Father in this hour of national bereavement."

RESENT PROFITEERING ACCUSATIONS

Storekeepers Plan Education Course for Public—Would Give Their Side of the Story.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The retailers have been driven by accusations of profiteering, made by politicians, to the realization of the necessity for education of the public to services performed by the merchants and storekeepers of the country, said Dr. W. Hindley, educational director of the Washington retailers' association in describing business methods being employed by his organization to the convention of the interstate merchants' council here today.

Dr. Hindley described what he termed the "avalanche of experimental legislation which threatens to submerge us at every session of state legislatures," and said that "business must go to the people with its story of service, its hazards, its costs and its profits. They must be informed as to the economic place filled in our modern life of scientific merchandising."

"If we are ever to silence the voice of the propagandist," said Mr. Hindley, build business on such a foundation as to win and hold the honor and respect of right thinking men and finally to save business investments from the constant hazard of restrictive legislation, we must tell the public just how dependent a town is on its main street lined with business houses and prove to them that its merchants are public servants and builders of community welfare.

The council is being attended by nearly 700 retailers and manufacturers from all parts of the country and is said by officials to be the largest gathering of its kind ever held.

Mrs. J. A. Donelan was a passenger this afternoon for Omaha, accompanying her daughter, Mrs. Karl Brown, of Papillion to that city. Mrs. Brown having been here visiting for some time.
