GERMAN INDUSTRY WANTS HONORABLE PACT WITH FRANCE

Leaders Abandon Hope of British Action—Situation Intolerable to Both Participants.

Essen, Sept. 6.—If the government of Chancellor Stresemann decides to make direct overtures to France and Belgium to end the Ruhr deadlock, regardless of what Great Britain does, it will have the support of an overwhelming proportion of the industrial leaders and of the German population generally, provided German sovereignty in the occupied territories is guaranteed.

This opinion was expressed to the correspondent of the Associated Press today by a prominent manufacturer who requested that "for obvious reasons" his name be not mentioned. The manufacturer declared that there now was no use in hiding the fact that everybody felt it was time to begin to do everything possible to bring to an end an impossible economic situation.

Would Meet Half Way
"We are ready" said the manufacturer, "to discuss any sort of settlement which would leave each side with a reasonable amount of honor. Most of the manufacturers and heads of industry see there is no use of further counting on Great Britain. We must realize that if Germany, France and Belgium could throw away pride and come to reason we could reach an accord that would be best for all concerned."

"For our part, we are willing to meet them half way."
This manufacturer said he thought the more level heads on both sides were beginning to realize that the present situation could not last without great loss to both sides and intolerable suffering to the population. He added frankly that it was because the Germans thought if the endurance test was continued France undoubtedly could force terms that the German leaders wanted to begin to talk business.

Can Either Side Gain?
"France apparently is all powerful," he said, "and eventually could bring us to our knees; but would she or we gain anything, materially or morally, by resorting to such an extremity? We still believe that continued passive resistance would keep France and Belgium forever from putting the Ruhr industries on a paying basis; but we quite realize that France and Belgium could prevent us from restoring our industries to a point where they would pay."

"In the Ruhr each side has the other by the throat, neither can breathe until the other lets go."
Two prerequisites to a settlement of the controversy, in the belief of this representative of industry, were restoration of occupied territory to complete sovereignty and fixing, once for all time, the definite amount Germany must pay.

"The main thing," he said, "is that conciliation is in the air, if France and Belgium want to make a bargain with us on restoring European civilization on a real partnership basis."

NEW CHARGE FOR REV. BUCKNER

Goes to Congregational Pastorate at Chamberlain, S. D. Formerly Occupied by His Son.

Aurora, Neb., Sept. 5.—Last Sunday saw the Rev. J. D. M. Buckner take his place in the Congregational church at Chamberlain, S. D. This writes another chapter in the ecclesiastical battle between this minister and the officers of his church. It will be remembered that Mr. Buckner was removed from the pastorate, according to his claims in the papers, by his bishop last fall, because he had been preaching a too liberal theology, disclaiming his belief in the Bible as an inspired book and his disbelief of other tenets held by the Methodist church at large.

A reception was given to Mr. Buckner by the church here of which he was the pastor for a number of years. In response to the toasts given at the reception, Mr. Buckner explained that while he was taking up the work in the Congregational church it was because he had been unable to secure a pastorate in a Methodist church in this or nearby states. He announced that he would continue his affiliation with the Nebraska conference and that his wife would remain a member of the Aurora Methodist church.

ECLIPSE OF THE SUN TO OCCUR ON NEXT MONDAY

Will Start at 1:44 P. M. in This Locality and Last Until 3:58—60 Per Cent Complete

The residents of the United States will have the opportunity on next Monday of viewing an eclipse of the sun that will cover seven-twelfths of the surface of the orb of day and which in this portion of the country will enter into the eclipse at 1:44 in the afternoon and pass from the shadow of the moon at 3:58 p. m.

This will be an unusual opportunity for the students of astronomy as well as science to make observations and a great many are planning to set up their cameras and secure photographs of the sun as it is shadowed.

The following relative to the eclipse will be of a great deal of interest to the persons who are planning to observe the eclipse as well as to those who are to try and photograph the unusual occurrence.

The eclipse will be seen in the greater part of this country only as a partial covering of the sun's disk by that of the moon. The path of the eclipse, which is less than 100 miles wide, will pass through the extreme southern end of California, just including San Diego, through the northern part of lower California and then down through Mexico. An eclipse is a great opportunity for scientific observers, many of whom will be stationed at different points along this band of totality for making their photographs and experiments.

It is suggested that the smallest stop be used in the lens and the shutter set for the fastest exposure. Make one exposure every five minutes without turning the film during the eclipse.

A single exposure can of course be made of the eclipse, in which case the camera can be held in the hands, but a succession of images at equal distances apart will make a more effective showing. A color filter would aid in preventing over-exposure if the day is unusually clear and the atmosphere free from haze.

It is suggested however, that no change be made in the speed of the shutter and shutter speed mentioned above, even if a G filter is used. In place of a filter a piece of film that has been exposed to light and developed to good density could be used in front of the lens to prevent over-exposure. It is also recommended that if the sun is not obscured by clouds the time of development be reduced to half of that which would be given normally.

Another series of interesting pictures at the time would be photographs of the crescent-shaped portion of the eclipsed sun which are cast on the ground in the shadows of trees and on walls shaded by foliage.

These images appear quite sharply defined, being focused through the smaller openings in the foliage. In all other sections of the country, the sun's rays are cast on the ground in the shadows of trees and on walls shaded by foliage.

An ordinary snapshot exposure, with a large stop in the lens is suggested and should give good negatives. Develop such exposures fully. Enlargements from these negatives should also prove attractive.

The eclipse begins at approximately the same time for all places in the same longitude. Near the eastern sea board the eclipse begins about 11:40 a. m. in the Mississippi Valley states about 2:20 p. m. in the Mountain states about 1 o'clock p. m. and in the Pacific states about 11:30 a. m. The eclipse lasts about two hours.

In the New England states 40 per cent of the sun's diameter is eclipsed. In all other sections of the country 50 per cent or more is eclipsed. As you go west and south the eclipse becomes greater. Where the eclipse is total place the camera on a tripod and try a succession of exposures of 2, 5, 10, 20, 40 and 60 seconds without a filter or piece of film, as referred to above, in front of the lens.

The film can be wound about an inch between each exposure by giving one complete turn to the winding key on roll film cameras. These exposures should give interesting studies of the corona. Let's hope for a clear September 10th.

BOSTON TO GET THE NEXT ENCAMPMENT

Veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic Will Meet There For Their Next Reunion.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 7.—Milwaukee said farewell to members of the Grand Army of the Republic today. A week ago the vanguard began arriving and the city was gay with martial music, as squad after squad of the "boys of '17" marched proudly to their headquarters.

Today the throbs of drum were still and the high pitched note of the fife was missing as one by one and in little groups the heroes of a departed day, found their way to the railroad stations, homeward bound.

Past Commander-in-Chief James W. Willett handed the gavel to Commander-in-Chief Saltzgeber after a brief speech in which he retold his comrades the pleasure which had been his during the year he had been their leader and wished his successor all the good fortune possible.

There were tired old men as they sought their berths in the sleeping cars tonight, many knowing they may have been their last encampment, but the spirit of other days never failed for their last words to a comrade as his train pulled out were "I'll see you in Boston next year."

LEGION WINNER OF RACE TO SEEK PARDON FOR VET

Mississippi Slayer Freed by Acting Governor While Executive Is Absent From the State.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 7.—The American Legion today obtained a pardon for Sharp Welborn, former service man, and in accomplishing the feat afforded that part of Mississippi between Pickens and Jackson and along the Illinois Central railroad from McComb to the Louisiana state line great excitement. It was a race between two powerful automobiles, one from Jackson to Canton, 24 miles, the other from Pickens to Canton, 20 miles, and an Illinois Central flyer with Governor Russell aboard bound north from New Orleans. The legionnaires had set out to meet Lieut. Gov. Homer Sateel at Canton, where the train crossed the state line at Osyka and they won the race with only eight minutes to spare.

Welborn served in the navy and later became mentally defective from exposure at sea. In 1919 he committed manslaughter in Jasper county. He had hardly begun to serve a sentence of eight years before the governor, the veterans bureau and hundreds of Mississippians started a campaign for a pardon in order that the offer of the veterans bureau to send him to a hospital for treatment might be accepted. Governor Russell steadfastly refused clemency.

Governor Russell visited Memphis, Tenn., for a day last spring and during his absence the lieutenant governor issued a pardon. As a result of the controversy that followed legal authorities ruled that the lieutenant governor had power to grant clemency while acting as chief executive. The governor countered with the declaration that not until his term expired in January would he again leave the state, but he did so last night—and it was this the legion took advantage of.

Curtis Green, state commander of the legion, head that the governor was in New Orleans. By the time he had confirmed the report he was advised Mr. Russell had boarded a train for Jackson. Legionnaires were ordered to report to the time of its arrival at Osyka on the state line.

Green and his co-workers here telephoned the lieutenant governor at Pickens to go to Canton as quickly as possible. Green, Welborn's attorneys and Secretary of State Joseph W. Bower armed with the legal pardon forms, started from Jackson in another car. The lieutenant governor drove from Pickens to Canton. Meantime the party from Jackson was rushing northward in a patrol car drawn up at Madison county court house simultaneously and the lieutenant governor signed Welborn's pardon at 10:18 a. m. The train bearing the governor crossed the state line at Osyka at 10:26.

BRYAN TALKS OF RECENT PROTEST

"If such a resolution was adopted by the Nebraska farm bureau federation," said Governor Bryan, "somebody who has been inoculated more with politics than bovine tuberculosis must have imposed upon the federation," says the State Journal.

The governor had reference to a resolution which says he has refused to recognize the new state law for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis and recommends that steps be taken by farm organizations to compel the governor to permit the enforcement of the law.

He said he had heard no complaint about failure to enforce the law. "The state has made all arrangements and is prepared to carry out the intent of that law and all other laws under the governor's jurisdiction," said Governor Bryan. The federal government has been asked to meet the state appropriation of $285,000 for eradication. The state department of agriculture has approved rules submitted by the federal department.

The governor explained that the legislature amended the law relating to so-called area work so as to require a petition representing a majority of the owners and a majority of the livestock in a county. Only one county, Polk, has filed such a petition. This petition is being checked for sufficiency and form. Fifteen per cent of the appropriation is accredited herds, but only one inquiry has been received under this head, and he was told that part of the law is to be enforced.

"The law seems to eliminate dairy interests of the state," said the governor. "Though much has been said about eradication as a health measure there is no provision in the law to permit owners of dairy cattle to get indemnity. The law covers only breeding cattle, but I hope it can be construed so as to cover dairy interests."

"If the communications from physicians in this and other states which say human health is not endangered by bovine tuberculosis. We have no such law in the state north of Nebraska nor in the state south of us, so if eradication protects health we are without this protection along our borders."

"Condemned cattle are approved by federal inspectors at packing houses and the meat is sold at full price for beef. The medical profession has not approved laws for eradication of bovine tuberculosis. It is the horse doctors and the packers, who are interested in human beings. However, I am carrying out the intent of the law and there is no foundation for statements in the resolution."

FOUND THEM ALL BUSY

The representative of the Journal accompanied by his better half took a trip through the country last Saturday to see how the farmers were prospering and the first stop was at the home of S. G. Cisney where we found he has been picking corn from this year's growing for the feeding of his hogs and an excellent quality of corn for this year, hard enough to feed and grown on the farm of C. R. Troop. Mr. Cisney himself was over on the north and south road cutting trees and brush which overhung the road and in the winter afforded a place for the snow to lodge.

Mr. Cisney was endeavoring to get the road in such a condition that K. L. Kniss the mail carrier could get through. We next stopped at the home of Nelson Berger who had just returned from a trip to Omaha where he had taken his neighbor, William Jourgeson to the hospital for a special examination since having his leg broken with a gas engine sometime ago. Mr. Jourgeson will have to remain at the hospital for some time.

Mr. Berger had us visit his vineyard and orchard and loaded up with grapes and apples on our departure. Thanks, Nelson. We next found Nick Klaurens in the hay field, he having it all on his hands now as John Frans who has been with him has accepted a position in the Burlington shops at Plattsmouth and Roy Klaurens with the wife has gone to Peru to attend the normal school there. Leaving there we stopped at the home of W. C. Hodge where we found him and son Sterling having the farm work in good shape and their crops looking fine. At the home of C. W. Fleischman we found that gentleman harvesting his potato crop and from about a quarter of an acre has secured a wagon box with the side boards of excellent tubers about fifty bushels and of a very fine quality. We next stopped at the home of W. A. Ost where we were greeted by that genial gentleman and his amiable wife, visiting for a time with them. Mr. Ost suffered some from the hail storm but has his farm in good condition and everything looking fine. Our last place was to see Clarence (Bud) Willis and sister Laura where after a brief visit we hiked for home, it being some twenty miles away and the "Black Devil" our car, not having her light working we had to pound her over the back getting home before dark.

Charles Peterson, Jr., and mother, Mrs. Martha Peterson, returned this morning from Lincoln, where they were attending the state fair at that place.
