THE ANOINTING OF AARON

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, On the first day of the first month shalt thou set up the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation. And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments and anoint him, and sanctify him; that he may minister unto me in the priest's office. And thou shalt bring his sons and clothe them with coats.—Exodus 40:1-14.

Some people are happier when they are not.

One reason why the gas bill runs so rapidly is because it has thousands of feet.

And no matter how big a hamburger biscuit is, there isn't much hamburger in it.

A housewife that can bake a good cake without eggs, is having her innings these days.

There are some persons who insist on telling the truth only when they can be disagreeable.

One of the surest yardsticks for measuring music is how it stirs the soul of the person not skilled in music.

We have never craved great power, but we often feel as if we would like to sit in a palace and give orders to generals.

To hear some folks talk, one would think the only difference between chicken and turkey is a matter of several dollars.

No Nobel peace prize again this year. Isn't the committee ever going to recognize what Judge Landis has been doing in the big leagues?

Grafting officials become so intent upon the main business of getting while the getting is good that they often neglect to get out from under.

Hiram Johnson is getting more use out of Europe than anybody else by making of it a bugaboo to frighten timorous folks into his band wagon.

Now that congress is organized for business it ought to have no difficulty in proceeding to fix the date for adjournment over the Christmas holidays.

The coming year will mark the seventy-fifth anniversary of the first woman physician in the United States, Elizabeth Blackwell who received her M. D. from Geneva college in 1849.

A full but enjoyable holiday season is in store for the December grand jury in New York, which has been charged with the duty of investigating all alleged indecent theatrical entertainments in the city.

When leading citizens of Canton, Shanghai and Peking get into an argument, reports Junius Wood, they either write out what they have to say or speak English. There's an idea for Henry Cabot Lodge and Magnus Johnson.

If a woman of your acquaintance happens to pass you by one of these days with an absent stare in her eyes and without speaking do not bear anger for her. She is more to be pitied than censured. She is just a victim of that disease known as the "Christmas lops."

The recent governor of Oklahoma is, as governors go, something of a piker. He had only seven criminal indictments against him. The governor of Indiana has 192 and the governor of Illinois is making several legal firms rich for keeping him out of the penitentiary.

No surprise was expressed when Senator Robinson, minority leader of the senate, named Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi as chairman of the democratic steering committee in that body. Indeed, no other name was considered for the honor. Senator Harrison is pre-eminently qualified for these important duties. He is the most aggressive and resourceful fighter the senate has produced in a decade, and under his able leadership the democratic party will steer a clear course during the current session.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

It is always safe to learn even from our enemies, seldom safe to instruct even our friends.—Colton.

The noise a man makes on a fiddle when he is learning to play is sweeter music in his ears than the best orchestra in the world.

The British politicians don't seem to know what the recent election means. Well, one guess is it means the voters over there want the tariff taken out of politics.

With the Panama canal netting more than $12,000,000 a year profits it is evident that there is money in that angle repose which the Cucarachas side was so long in finding.

Philippe Daudet, the 14-year-old boy whose suicide is baffling Paris, left seventeen free verse poems in manuscript. It looks to us like a case of unrequited love for the muse.

Twenty years ago people blamed the bad boy upon the bad dime novel showing that when the parents fall down on their job almost any alibi may be used in a pinch.

On the whole, the message of President Coolidge is a mild mixture of conservatism and progressivism, of individualism and paternalism. It reflects the political uncertainty of the transitional period; it is not a bold summons to beneficial action nor a ringing protest against un-sound current ideals and proposals. The voice of compelling and inspiring leadership is not manifest in the document.

If congress does give support to Secretary Mellon's program and make certain reductions in the tax schedules they will not apply until another year. The legislators will necessarily wrangle over the proposition until it is too late. The income tax payable March, 1925, will be the earliest that can be affected through any action of the present congress. By that time the presidential election will be over and another inauguration day have dawned. The politicians must have their say—and it is a mouthful.

POLITICS
Americans take months for a political campaign and the British take weeks. In this country we take up seven or eight months with a presidential campaigning. This is entirely too much.
First we have a campaign preliminary to the primaries. This generally begins in March. Early in July the conventions make the nominations and then the fight between the parties lasts nearly four months. In England the whole thing is over in three or four weeks.
We gain nothing by spreading out a campaign through months. The men we elect cannot be said to represent the people who elect them more correctly than the men elected to the British parliament represent their constituents. Our government is no more representative of the people than the government of England is.
We act as if we thought that the people of this country did not think of political questions except during the campaign. As a matter of fact there is no recess of politics in the newspapers and the same thing is true of the men who read them. Men do not dismiss politics from their minds three years and four months and then concentrate their attention on political questions for two-thirds of a year. Any man who reads the news finds plenty to think about along political lines when he reads the proceedings of congress. One who reads editorials finds that there is no political let-up. Men never give all their attention to politics and at no time do they divorce politics entirely from their thoughts.
Our campaigns are costlier because of their length and as they are made more costly it is more and more difficult for a man of modest means to be a candidate without selling himself to some rich man or men who will finance his candidacy. Our campaigns are more detrimental to business in proportion to their length. A short, sharp campaign would not disturb the business of the country half as much as a protracted one.

There are an abundance of plays to the grandstand here and in England. If anything the English beat us in appeals to frothy whims and to prejudice.

TOO MANY LAWS

We are the greatest law-creating nation in the world, and at the present time, perhaps, are the least law-abiding. The fact may in a measure be the reason for the other. As a further consequence, every tenth person in the United States, we are told, holds some kind of a federal, state, county or local job. Largely on account of the multiplicity of laws and the effort to enforce them, we are taxed 4 billion dollars a year to pay the salaries of public officials. Which should indicate to us that the more expensive of the two processes is the enforcing, not the making of laws. Better enforcement of the laws we have, and far fewer laws is another and most potent way to save the taxpayer's money and to enjoy more efficient government.
If the age of miracles were not past it might be hoped that some day, not far distant, a sufficient number of real American citizens would decide to elect to the various law-making bodies representatives pledged to the unmaking of a lot of laws that are utterly useless, and worse. They are worse than useless, because they are conflicting and confusing; others that are so inconsistent that they are not obeyed.
When that time comes, if it ever comes, strenuous and practical efforts will be made, not to make 179,908 new laws, but to repeal at least a hundred thousand of those that are mere trash, if ever they served a useful purpose, as perhaps some of them did temporarily. Then it will be admitted that it will be better to have a few laws that are obeyed, or enforced when disobeyed, than to have thousands of laws and regulations to most of which nobody pays any attention, except for the purpose of confounding courts and juries and thus escaping merited judgment and punishment.

"WORDS, WORDS, WORDS"
Frank H. Vizately, managing editor of the New Standard Dictionary, announces in the New York Times that 9,000 words is his idea of the ordinary vocabulary of the plain man of the street. This is exclusive of the expletives he has at his command when he misses the street car or tries to get a telephone number. For just everyday occasions the plodder can worry along on 9,000.
This seems a somewhat enormous number. Not even the immortal William Shakespeare, who had the best stranglehold on the English language of any man who ever lived, used very many more than this. Philologists tell us that John Milton wrote his way into immortality with 4,500 words and he employs a few that will stump the average reader and send him post haste to the dictionary.
About 900 rather than 9,000 comes nearer to our estimate of the vocabulary of the average citizen, although it takes a vast amount of temerity to take issue with so erudite a gentleman as the editor of the Standard Dictionary. And something over half of these would not be found in the Standard's compilation of English, judging by the conversation one catches on the fly on street corners and cars.

IT'S FOOLISH TO SUFFER

When So Many Plattsmouth People are Pointing the Way Out.

You may be brave enough to stand backache or headache or dizziness. But, in addition urination is disordered, look out! If you don't try to fix your sick kidneys, you may fall into the clutches of dangerous disease before you know it. But if you live more carefully and help your kidneys with Doan's Pills, you can stop the pains you have and avoid future danger as well. Don't experiment—use the remedy Plattsmouth people are publicly endorsing. Read this case:
M. Lauderback, contractor, painter and paper hanger, Locust street, Plattsmouth, says: "I had lumbago and kidney trouble. I believe the turpentine fumes from the paint was responsible for it. I could hardly bend or lift anything and I couldn't even turn in bed without help. I had no control over my limbs, when I tried to walk, I could not lift them. Just had to cuff them along. My kidneys acted irregularly and the secretions were highly colored and passed with a burning sensation. I used Doan's Pills and before finishing the first box which I got at Fricke & Co's drug store, I felt better in every way. The pains could not lift them. Just had to cuff them along.
