The parents were notified and he was hastened to Dr. J. L. Barritt, who perceiving the seriousness of the injuries took his auto and hastened to Nebraska City with the little fellow where the wounds were cared for by Dr. Zimmer. The little man displayed much courage in the dressing of the wounds and during the very severe suffering which the wounds caused. One hand and one leg had to be placed in a cast.

Report a Great Time.
The twelve members of the I. O. O. F. of Nehawka who visited the grand lodge at Beatrice last week were well pleased with the excellent time which they had, and especially at the very lucid exemplification of the secret work of the degrees which were explained by putting on the work. They thought the exemplification of the work was executed the best by the degree team of Weeping Water who put on the work in the second degree.

Farmer Found Keen to Better His Conditions

Women Declared Especially Eager to Improve Rural Environment

Ames, Ia.—The American farmer is able and willing to work for a more attractive and satisfactory environment in which to live. This thought ran through the deliberations of sectional meetings of the American Country Life Association's annual conference, at Iowa State College here.

Farm women on the program expressed a desire for more education in organizing for rural improvements. They announced their willingness to co-operate with local towns in maintaining worth-while institutions. By carrying out landscaping programs they believed they could make their farm dwellings homes in which the families could take pride. Farmers speaking in the sessions pointed out the need for health and social welfare work in rural communities and the need for more recreational facilities.

Commenting on this vision which had come out of the conference, A. R. Mann, dean of Cornell University, declared that an abundant reservoir of energy was necessary to put into motion the many objectives which had been outlined. With this energy and a vision to guide it, the present generation would succeed in placing rural civilization on a higher plane than it has ever been before.

A challenge to rural youth to answer the call for leadership and active work in agriculture was made by Dean Mann. He pointed out that the turnover of county agents amounts to 1000 yearly and that there are thousands of young men each year taking up the operation of farms. Farming in this country offers real opportunities when contrasted with conditions in other countries, Europe. In parts of Europe, the farms are so small that farm families can earn nothing more than a meager living and in other parts the farm children have few, if any, schools, added Dean Mann, who recently returned from abroad.

The high school system of the United States will have to be changed if we are to adequately train our young people for effective rural citizenship, stated Prof. W. H. Lancelot, head of the department of vocational education at the Iowa State College. The stage is set for true rural education, that is, education designed to meet the needs of the farm people, but appropriate action has not been taken, he continued.

"The problems of rural life, numerous and baffling as they are, may be solved by education and probably by it alone," Professor Lancelot said. "Of course, our school system has actually done little in the way of solving the vexing problem, and this notwithstanding that it could solve it more easily than the schools of any other nation could meet a similar situation, since our is the only country in which free high schools are scattered everywhere."

"The reason for the failure of the schools to play the part they should is that it has not been required of them. They were established, not to minister to rural children, but to those who live in the cities and cities. Only recently has the enrollment of country boys and girls become really large. Yet it is large now and if proper pressure were applied we should see our high school going about the business of training for rural life with a zeal that could hardly fail to bring about a genuine renaissance of country life in America."

PROPOSE CHAIN HOSPITALS

Chicago—Plans for a chain of five hospitals in Chicago, designed to reduce costs for persons of moderate means, were announced Saturday by members of the Chicago Medical society, local chapter of the American Medical Association. Their plan is to apply chain organization economies to their operation of hospitals by centralized buying, reduction of overhead and careful management. They stated that each institution would cost approximately $1,000,000 and will be financed by a stock holding organization composed of the doctors themselves. Each staff will be comprised of 100 physicians and surgeons, general and specialists, and each member will be permitted to purchase a limited amount of stock. Leaders of the movement said they believed as much as thirty-three per cent of the operating costs of hospitals can be saved, and that patients of moderate means can be given a high standard of medical care at the lowest possible cost.

Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, October 27th C-5 By M. S. BRIGGS

Lesson Texts: John 10-16 Zech Chap 8: Matt. 11:16-19, Mark 16: 30-35.
Leading Thought: "A Time to Play."

What Play Does For Us.
Millions of dollars are spent every year at the Christmas time in sending greetings and gifts, and why not for this is the most glad time of the year, the time when the Father in heaven gave his Son, that we might live. We are glad because the Saviour came as a little babe, and lived among us, and finally gave his life for us.

We should be glad at this time of the year, and when we give good gifts and send glad greetings to our friends, we are but imitating the Saviour of the world, and are contributing to the sum of human kindness as well as adding to the joy of the heavenly host by our acts. This sending of good greetings and making the gladness gifts is very commendable. We are doing most meritorious acts, but when we dedicate our lives to the cause for which the Master came to earth, that of service and the salvation of others, we are doing the very best.

Our Own Free America.
Particularly should every American be happy and for many reasons, in the first we will name the fact that for the reason that our forefathers came to this land to find a place where they could in freedom worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience and in accordance with the Bible. We should be happy in America, because we all have an opportunity to succeed, this country has been particularly blessed by reasons of better opportunities, commercially, on the farm and in all the avenues of endeavor. Every man is equal and if he falls or succeeds it is because of the grasping of the opportunity which comes to his door every day. We have to work hard, and we should, it is only by hard work that we can expect to succeed. We make our own laws and our own successes and failures. We pay our own salaries when we work for others, so why not allow ourselves good salaries. We work hard and should play when we have worked enough. The Bible says, six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, and rest on the seventh.

Let the Children Play.
Children are the greatest gift of God to man. We are blessed with the gift of good children, they are entrusted into our care, we are

According to the plans, the hospitals will be built on five tentatively chosen sites in the hearts of strictly middle class districts, where few wealthy or charity cases will be encountered. In addition to the usual arrangement of private rooms, wards and special departments, the plans call for radio sets in each room, solarium and an improved ventilating system that will alleviate chemical their guardians and we should give them the very best we have in our lives. We train teachers for years, that they may give the children hard lessons, and puzzling ones at that. The children beginning when they are small, are required to study hard and as a general thing we find a bare plot of ground for them to play in. We furnish good shady pasture, well watered, and well grassed for our stock, it pays to have this kind, but about the children? would it not be a good investment to have larger and better equipped play grounds for the children, more than the bare yard, with trees, grass, and apparatus to give the children an opportunity to relax from their study. Did you ever notice with what joyous, boisterous hilarity the children greet the last day of school.

More Play Grounds Needed.

Every school should have good and equipped play grounds for the children, every church should have good play grounds for the children, and every home should be so equipped as well. The Master said unto the disciples "Come aside into a desert place, and rest for a while for you are tired." The band of disciples who were hardy men inured to toil, and who could stand the labor, needed the rest. When Christ had been teaching for the entire day and had fed the multitude and had healed many, he too became tired and as they were crossing the sea in a boat he fell asleep in the hinder part of the boat. Then came the storm and as the wind swept the sea, and rocked the boat, rolling the waves so they feared they would be drowned they awoke him and said "Master, carest thou that we perish, how canst thou lie asleep when each moment so madly is threatening a grave in the angry deep?"

Christ the Saviour of the world was weary, he needed rest, for he was trammelled with human frailties, he needed a rest and a vacation, so do we. We do better work when we return and we are better off for the change. Give the children a place to play. Give them a time to play. Equip that place that they may play the best. Remember we all are children grown tall. God knew best when he made man work, until he was tired, and then made a day for him to rest, until he was rested.

This is the Christian idea of recreation. To be an American is one of the greatest things which we can be, but to be a Christian American is better and the very best.

odors. A system of "group nursing" will also be established, they said.
