sour on my stomach and form gas that almost cut off my breath. I had weak, dizzy spells and suffered so with rheumatism, I could hardly walk. My color wasn't good and I was continually having to take something for constipation.

"It's marvelous what seven bottles of Sargon did for me! I've gotten rid of all that gas bloating and indigestion, and eat anything I want. I no longer suffer from dizziness and go anywhere I please without tiring."

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills regulated me perfectly and I can see their good effects on my liver by the wonderful way my complexion cleared up. Everybody says I look like a different person."

EXPLOSIONS IN THEATERS

St. Louis—Two neighborhood motion picture theaters were damaged by explosions which occurred thirty minutes apart early Sunday. The theater owners attributed both blasts to first outbreaks of violence in a dispute with union musicians. No one was injured, but the explosions shook the neighborhood and damaged the theater buildings, motion picture machines and vitaphone apparatus to the extent of $11,000. The first explosion, believed to have been nitroglycerine, was in the projection booth at the Lemay theater in St. Louis county at 1:20 a. m. The blast blew a hole in the roof and was felt six or seven blocks away. The damage was estimated at $5,000. Thirty minutes later a similar explosion occurred in the projection booth of the Mackland theater in the southwest part of the city. It caused $5,000 damage.

Union musicians in many theatres have been out on strike for about six weeks in a dispute over a contract concerning the number of musicians to be employed.

THREE BANDITS ROB BANK

Titonka, Ia.—The Titonka State bank was held up and robbed by three unmasked bandits at 4 p. m. Monday and looted of $2,000 in cash scooped up from the teller's counter. The men forced Henry Bruns, cashier, to lie prone on the floor while they ransacked the cash drawers. Bruns had been alone in the bank but shortly after the bandits began their operations Henry Boyken, vice president entered and was forced to join the cashier on the floor.

Both described the bandits as about thirty years of age. Before entering the bank the bandits parked their car in the alley at the rear and used it in making their escape.

South Texans Rap Influx of Porto Ricans

Oppose Government's Plan to Replace Deported Mexicans; Labor Shortage 'Is Acute'

Harlingen, Tex., Nov. 3.—A proposal to import thousands of Negroes from Porto Rico to Texas to take the place of Mexican laborers who have been deported by the United States Department of Labor and Immigration has met with protest here.

There are few Negroes in south Texas, especially in the lower Rio Grande valley where thousands of Mexicans have been employed in the grapefruit industry and in raising winter garden truck for northern markets. To import Negroes would seriously disarrange the social structure of the community, it was pointed out.

Gray's Plan

The movement to replace Mexican labor with Porto Rican Negroes was initiated by John L. Gray, attorney general of the United States in Porto Rico, according to information received.

R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman from Texas, has been in communication with Gray and submitted the proposal to the Rio Grande valley communities, according to Mr. Bell.

Col. Sam Robertson of the committee of immigration of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who has spent several months here studying the Mexican labor situation, advised against importation of Negroes. He pointed out that 1,100 Porto Rican Negroes were taken to Arizona as cotton pickers a few years ago. They were unaccustomed to American ways, demanded equality with the whites, refused to pick cotton and ultimately became public charges.

Thousands Deported

Thousands of Mexicans, many of them landowners, have been deported to Mexico by the department of immigration during the last 12 months.

The movement was initiated by the Department of Labor with a view to opening the way for employment of white labor. But northern whites, with few exceptions, decline to work and planters face heavy loss and ruin in some cases because of their inability to secure field hands.—Omaha Bee-News.

An Effort to Soften Censure of Bingham

Possible Amendments to the Norris Resolution Condemning Connecticut Senator.

Washington—The senate will be asked Monday to place its condemnation upon Senator Bingham of Connecticut, for placing a salaried employe of the Connecticut Manufacturers association upon the government payroll.

Senator Norris, who has introduced the resolution of condemnation, announced he would call it up Monday and ask for a rollcall vote. Friends of Senator Bingham have informed him the resolution is likely to be adopted. Bingham was told that before the resolution was introduced, but he replied to intermediaries, "I have nothing to apologize for."

Attempts to have Senator Norris modify the resolution to make it impersonal, without direct mention of Senator Bingham's name, and to change the word condemn to disapprove have failed. Amendments likely will be offered from the floor Monday seeking such a change.

Senator Bingham has indicated to colleagues that he may make another statement to the senate, explaining the details of his use of the Connecticut Manufacturers association officer to assist him with the bill. However, it is understood he will offer no apology for it.

Last spring when the senate was about to undertake consideration of the tariff bill, the Connecticut senator wrote to the association asking the "loan" of a man to help in his work as a member of the finance committee which handled the tariff legislation. Charles L. Eyanson, the $10,000 assistant to the president of the Connecticut association, was sent to Bingham. He was kept on salary by the association. When the republicans of the finance committee went into secret sessions to start writing the tariff rates, Senator Bingham put Eyanson on the government payroll as his secretary.

The lobby committee will go to work again on Tuesday, resuming its examination of J. A. Arnold, the vice president and manager of the Southern Tariff association.—State Journal.

STIFF FIGHT IN KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky.—With a democratic majority in the 1929 state senate claimed by that party, interest in Tuesday's election is centering around the probable political makeup of the house of representatives. The biennial general assembly convenes in January. Only twice in history, in 1896 and in 1920, has the republican party had control of the house.

Kentucky has an anomalous political situation just now in that while the governor, Flem D. Sampson, is a republican, the lieutenant governor, James Breathitt, Jr., and some of the chief administrative officers are democrats.

Governor Sampson has been waging an active political campaign for the election of legislators favoring his program of free text books and has made political capital of his indictment and subsequent vindication on a charge of having accepted several hundred specimen text books from publishers in violation of the state law.

With the exception of the 1920 session, when the state was swept into the republican column in the Harding landslide, and the republicans had a fifty-five to forty-four majority, the democrats have held margins ranging from two-thirds to four-fifths of the house in every session since 1910.

ARRANGING NEW STORE

From Tuesday's Daily—The past few days Coleman & Pittman have been busy in the rearranging of the store room formerly occupied by the H. M. Soenichen grocery in the building just west of the Journal, and making this store room ready for the occupancy of the new grocery and meat market of the Hinky-Dinky company which will soon be located there. It is expected to have the store ready for the painters and decorators in a few days and the store to be all completed by the end of the week.

The opening of the newest mercantile house in the city will probably be on or near the fifteenth when the entire store will be completed, the stocks installed and everything in readiness for the formal opening. The store room is being arranged as an up to date cash and carry store and where the customers can be self served.

NOW IN NEW LOCATION

Maldon D. Brown, who for several years was located at Sixth and Main street and engaged in the jewelry business, has moved to his new location on North Sixth street in the Bekin building, just north of the Charles Herren location. The room has been nicely arranged and "Brownie" will now be ready to look after the handling of all kinds of watch repairing and work of this kind and in which he has proven very successful. Mr. Brown is now settled in the new location and will be ready to look after the needs of his customers at any time in the future in the new location.

SHOTS STRIKE AUTOMOBILE

Pottsville—Two shots fired at the automobile carrying Claude A. Lord, republican candidate for mayor of Pottsville shortly before midnight narrowly missed Lord and two other occupants of the car. Lord was returning to this city from his country home with his six year old daughter, Jacqueline, and his campaign manager, James J. Jennings, Jr. They heard two shots as the car approached the city limits. Both bullets struck the back of the automobile, and missing the mayor, riding in the front seat.

Police said they believed Lord's car was mistaken for another machine.

Tax Slash is Not Assured

United States Treasury Figures Must Be Revised After Stock Slump.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Whether government revenues will justify a reduction in income and corporation tax rates next year will be decided within ten days by the treasury department, it was learned tonight.

Experts of the bureau of the budget and the treasury are making a careful final study of probable revenues and expenditures for the fiscal year 1931.

The estimates were prepared several days ago, but owing to the crash in the stock market, with a probable heavy reduction in income tax returns, unless there is a powerful upward reaction in the next two months the figures were decided and a check of the situation started.

Secretary Mellon's board of tax strategy, headed by Under Secretary Ogden L. Mills, is understood already to have a fairly definite idea of the tax program. It, however, desires a few more days observation of stock market trends before making a final estimate of the revenue to be anticipated from taxes on incomes of 1929.

Stock market losses will be offset to some extent by anticipated heavier business in 1929, unless the present slight recessions in some industries becomes more pronounced. For the first nine months of the year industrial production was estimated at 10 per cent greater than for the same period of 1928.

Ahead of Last Year

Treasury figures issued today showed that the government was $107,000,000 ahead for the first four months of the fiscal year, compared to the similar period last year. On the basis of last year's $184,000,000 surplus that would give a surplus of $291,000,000 at the end of next June, provided congressional appropriations are not abnormal. A surplus that size would justify a $200,000,000 tax cut, although the treasury had hoped before the market break to have a reduction of upwards of $300,000,000. Officials pointed out, however that the market crash may end any chance of tax reduction.

Government receipts for the first four months amounted to $1,190,708,000, an increase of $117,000,000 over the same months of 1928. Ordinary expenditures were $1,073,674,000, an increase of but $11,000,000. This encouraged officials to feel that possibly the surplus would pass $300,000,000.

Figures show that the public debt October 31 was $16,697,854,000, a reduction of $9,899,000,000 since the peak August 31 1919 and a cut of $847,000,000 during the past year.—State Journal.

APPEALS FROM AWARD

Another appeal has been filed in the award made by the state compensation commissioner in the matter of the death of D. F. Jacobs, who was killed in the cave-in of the wall of a cesspool at the Green & Reynolds, of Lincoln, a co-partnership, against whom as well as Mr. Pankonin the award was made by the state. Mrs. Tillie Jacobs, the widow of the deceased is also made a defendant as is A. D. Anderson & Son, a partnership of Lincoln.

The plaintiff in the appeal is represented by Judge Robert McNealy of Louisville, the youngest member of the Cass county bar and the only practicing attorney of Louisville.

Pat Crowe to Meet Hoover's Commission

Former Outlaw Is in Capital to Plead Prison Reform in Crime Slavery.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Pat Crowe, who figured as the chief actor in the famous Cudahy kidnaping case at Omaha 25 years ago, and who on occasions has carried a price on his head, showed up here this week to discuss prison reform for boys with President Hoover's crime commission.

Now a kindly, white-haired man of 60, Crowe states that he is devoting the remainder of his life to bettering the conditions surrounding boys sentenced to reformatories as expiation of his crimes. Crowe sees in the crime commission an opportunity for acceptance of his ideas on prison reform through legislative action.

The famous outlaw who once terrorized the Nebraska county explains his objective as follows: "Each state should have a place where under-privileged children and errant wayward youth would be taught useful trades. Industrial pursuits lessen crime pursuits. Eighty-two per cent of the country's criminals are under 20 years of age. Hoover's crime commission is the ideal group to foster the vocational training movement throughout the various states.

"Stop crime at its source. That can be done by educating youngsters and starting them in the right direction. Reformatories only train new candidates for Sing Sing and the gallows. Prison walls and other manner of penal restrictions can make the embryo criminal sullen, defiant and eventually an enemy of society.

"The crime commission is offering to the public an opportunity to make the United States the heart of peaceful world civilization instead of being, as it is now, almost the laughing stock of the world for its record of non-enforcement of the law."

MANY FINE ENTRIES

Omaha, Nebraska, Nov. 2.—With 1,147 entries in the Ak-Sar-Ben Horse show, every seat in the huge Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum was filled Saturday night for the opening night's performance, which was "Omaha Night."

Tickets for the first performance were selling at a premium 24 hours before the initial performance.

This year's entries doubled last year's list of 540, according to D. "Pop" Schilling, veteran manager, who has been a familiar figure in European and American horse shows for the past 36 years.

High lights of the show are the $2,000 five-gaited stake and the $1,000 three-gaited stake, which have attracted not only the finest horses of the mid-west, but also leading American stables from both coasts.

Among the fine horses entered in the show are: "Silver Lady," considered among the finest high school horses in the United States, and Gallant Lad, a consistent winner in the five-gaited class. Both are owned by George Brandeis of Omaha.

In the heavy harness classes, a pair owned by Adolph Storz of Omaha, which arrived from England three weeks ago, made their American premier. The horses, known as Lord Jessamine and Lord Brooke, have won prizes at practically every English horse show in the past five years.

Among mid-western cities represented in the entry list are Sioux City, Kansas City, Chicago, Des Moines, Lincoln, Salt Lake City, Denver, Colorado Springs, St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul, and St. Joseph, Mo.
