I suffered dreadfully with headaches, caused from a sluggish liver, and was so nervous I seldom ever enjoyed sound sleep. I took five bottles of Sargon along with the pills and now my system seems free of acid, my appetite is fine, my food agrees with me and my whole system is strengthened and invigorated. # Legge Advises Farm Youth to Work Together

Must Co-operate, He Tells Them, to Achieve the Full-est Results

Chicago—Wearing tissue paper hats of pink, blue, green and a dozen other tints, the chairman of the Federal Farm Board and 1200 prize boys and girls of the farm got away from farm arithmetic here and stepped up into the algebra of agriculture.

For nine years Alexander H. Legge has been host to the national 4-H Club congress, representing the elite of the boys' and girls' farm clubs when this swarm of youngsters visited the International Harvester Company of which he was president. But this year he was a guest himself. And he had something new to say to farm youth.

He said it very simply, and it was that the great secret of agriculture lies in co-operation. He made his point by making two blades of grass grow where only one grew before. For, he noted, the two blades may sell for less than one.

Most of the young folks before him, drawn from 43 states and from Canada, had won their trips to Chicago by multiplying in some form that single blade of grass. He led them a step beyond.

The great low floor of the warehouse, which had been cleared of binders and other farm machinery to make a place for the luncheon, again lapsed into its accustomed quiet. The excitement stirred by the cheers and yells of state delegations of youth faded out. The bands in green and red were forgotten along with the gesticulations of the cheer leaders. The paper hats were largely laid aside.

The tall, serious figure who had been acclaimed as "fighting the battles of the farm boys and girls," was opening to them the chart of the campaign. Standing in his own native setting of manufacturing for a world market he talked to them as he would with business men.

He gave them a lesson in farm salesmanship. He told them to start with the egg business. In one great eastern city had been captured by poultrymen 3000 miles away. They learned that city wanted brown eggs, and they set out to supply brown eggs. Farmers living at the city's door might have had that business, but they were passed by because they tried to white eggs. Not every city, though, wants brown eggs. A still greater neighbor city in the East will have nothing but white.

Mr. Legge spoke of apples shipped 2000 miles and sold in preference to excellent native apples because the long-distance apples were standard and made a better article of sale. He related that the orange and lemon producers of the Pacific coast had eliminated gluts in eastern markets because they studied them and no longer shipped blindly. Manufacturers, he observed, do not continue to manufacture when there is no demand.

Growing things alone is not enough, he concluded. There has to be marketing. It can be done effectively in only one way. That is through co-operative action.

The day of the farmer who feels he must be individual and who cannot co-operate with his neighbors has passed. The times call for more modern methods on the farm. Go home, said the Federal Farm Board chairman, and tell your parents that agriculture must co-operate.

DERRY TO FIGHT CHARGES

Columbia—Louis Lee Derry, who made a success of playing halfback the hard way—running over tacklers rather than around them—Friday started a fight designed to clear himself of theft charges brought by a fellow student in the University of Missouri. The hard hitting halfback from Poplar Bluff, Mo., object of a search since late Thursday surrendered to Sheriff Clyde Ballew just before noon and pleaded not guilty to charges of stealing jewelry, clothing and a traveling bag valued at $123 from J. Carol Combs last May when they lived in the same house.

At the arraignment in the sheriff's office Justice of the Peace Johnson Bichel, fixed bond at $500, immediately posted by three Columbia business men and football fans for Derry's appearance at a preliminary hearing next Monday afternoon. University officials said they would await the outcome of the case before taking action. He thus remains a student in good standing.

DRASTIC COOK COUNTY CUT

Chicago—A 1930 budget aggregating $46,177,729 was adopted Thursday by the Cook county board of commissioners, providing for a 17 per cent cut in salaries for all county employes, or for a 17 per cent reduction in personnel—the most drastic slash in Cook county history. Of the total budget, $1,473,710 is allocated to bonds and $7,036,615 to accumulated 1929 liabilities, leaving $37,703,404 for current 1930 expenses.

The 17 per cent cut was necessitated by a deficit of approximately $5,000,000 which officials have blamed on the delay in completing the 1929 real estate reassessment. The retrenchment program is expected to cut the anticipated deficit by $3,280,000.

Farm Bureaus Commend Work at Washington

Federation Indorses Efforts to Place Agriculture on Level with Industry.

Chicago—The Government's work for farm relief was commended by the American Farm Bureau Federation, the chief driving force in the seven-year campaign for the defunct McNary-Haugen bill, in annual convention, here:

The federation approved the co-operation its officers had given the Federal Farm Board. It indorsed the effort being made by the board "to place agriculture on an economic plane equal to that of industry," through the invigoration of co-operative marketing. It voiced its appreciation of the adoption this year of a national agricultural policy.

At the same time, the farm Bureaus noted that the farm legislation of 1929 would ultimately be found ineffective to handle the greatly debated problem of crop surpluses. The federation pledged its efforts to the Farm Board in all efforts to control crop surpluses.

Protection for the Marketing Act is necessary, the federation avowed. During the convention several state farm bureau officials brought in reports of efforts being made to exploit it. The Government's promotion of co-operative marketing, backed by its advances of large loans, has been followed by the intrusion of imposters into this field. It was said.

It was proposed that the Government recognize "co-operative purchasing organizations which distribute necessary supplies used directly in farm operation." This plan would permit the Federal Farm Board to make loans in aid of co-operative purchasing on a large scale. President Hoover's agricultural tariff program was indorsed.

Products from the dependencies of the United States should be subjected to the rates of duty which are applicable to similar products from foreign nations, the federation held. It favored immediate independence for dependencies. The federation declared for the beginning of federal aid to rural schools. The plan is an extension of that already in vogue in the giving of federal aid to roads. This would mean a large Government appropriation for the help of country schools.

Reduction in federal taxation now being prepared by Congress should be limited to one year, it was declared. Thereafter, the present rates should be resumed. Except for the immediate present, it was maintained more important to reduce the federal debt than to reduce the federal tax.

The Farm Bureaus may take their national convention to the East for the first time next year. The federation referred the invitation of the Massachusetts Farm Bureau to its new board of directors, "for its most serious and sympathetic consideration." The decision was left to the board.

S. H. Thompson of Quincy, Ill., president of the federation for the last four years, was unanimously re-elected, as was E. A. O'Neal of Alabama, vice-president.

Delinquency among farmers on mortgage payments, held by the Federal Land banks, is 3 per cent less than last year, according to Paul Bestor, Commissioner of the Federal Farm Loan Board. In some banks the delinquencies are 25 to 35 per cent less. Activity in the sale of farm land held by these banks has been greater than in 1928. In the first 10 months of the current year one bank sold 452 farms and another 256, Mr. Bestor said.

WELDING THE HOUSE WETS

Washington—Fresh from an attempt to weld the scattering elements on the wet rop in the house into a lever which might throw its strength behind a definite program Representative LaGuardia, New York, made it known Sunday that the first major offensive would come in the consideration of funds for enforcement of the dry laws. Whether this would meet the approval of the various other members of the wet wing in the house, however, was not disclosed. The democratic wets, most of whom are Tammany members from LaGuardia's home state, regarded his move to bring the different elements together in a concerted drive as one that had been instigated by political motives. These did not attend his meeting Saturday which was held to plan a campaign for the session.

LaGuardia disclaimed political motives and said he would introduce an amendment to the treasury appropriation bill to provide $200,000,000 for prohibition enforcement next year. If this were refused, he said, he would urge $150,000,000 or $100,000,000.

When he failed to return home for noon or evening meals a search was started. Not until residents in south Scottsbluff reported hearing an explosion in the Platte river bad land section was the search started in that direction. The remains were found at 8:30 p. m. The dynamite had been taken from the storehouse of the son who was in Lincoln on business at the time. The other sons reside here.

RUSHING NEGRO TO SAFETY

Lexington, Miss.—(Sunday)—Arrested after a bloodbath had trailed him from the scene of the crime, Ed Jones, negro suspect in the slaying of Noel C. White, forty-five chairman of the state democratic executive committee, was being rushed to an unannounced prison early Saturday morning for safe keeping.

About twenty-five men in automobiles were said to be trailing Sheriff Walter Ellis and his prisoner. No violence was expected, however, since Sheriff Ellis was accompanied by four armed deputies and had thirty minutes start on his pursuers.

The sheriff was believed to be headed for Jackson, Miss., with Jones. A posse of more than 1,000 had dwindled to little more than a score when the negro was arrested.

FREEDOM FOR PHILIPPINES

Washington—Philippine independence was advocated by several congressmen from the agricultural districts as another means of aiding the farmer thru eliminating free entry for products of the islands which compete with American products. Representative Selvig, Minnesota, and Representative Strong, Kansas, both republicans, supported Knutson, the latter asking if it had not also been demonstrated that the islands had proven their capability to govern themselves. Knutson said both arguments were "unanswerable."
