Doing Business Now.

On last Monday, Joe Dare opened the cream station at the room between the Becker store and the blacksmith shop, getting at the work in the morning and near noon he had a large can of cream which is considered as doing very well. You may expect Joe to hustle.

Purchased Cream Station.
Last week Elmer Withrow purchased the cream station and produce business which has been that of Tony Sudduth, and which has done an excellent business during the time when Mr. Sudduth had it. Elmer is well known and very much liked and we are certain he will make a success of the business. He has been in the farming game for many years and knows the ins and outs of farming and should make an excellent business man, for with good judgment and good treatment to the public, one has gone a good way towards making success.

Not Feeling the Best.
Ira Clark, who has been in rather poor health for some time and who is taking treatment with the physician at Nehawka, was over early last Monday morning and received treatment, and returned home and went to bed, while Earl Merritt was looking after the shop.

Made Purchase of Home.
Wm. James, living a few miles in the country, southwest of Union, last week purchased the property where Phil F. Rihn lives and which was the property of Dick Davis. There will be no movings for some time and while eventually Mr. James probably will move to Union, the time is not as yet set, and it might be he will not occupy the house at all.

Social Time at Dinner.
There was good feeling at the dinner of the Union Business Men's Club on Monday when Phillip Rihn read a story about the farmers selling cream and then buying oleomargarine to take home for the table use, then expecting that the price of cream should be higher. The story told of there being 30,000,000 pounds of creamery butter in storage while at the same time there was the same amount of Oleomargarine used in 1929 over 1928, showing that the amount which they had lacked using in creamery butter, they had made up in the use of margarine. Many at dinner declared that they used butter and mostly Casco butter, still the merchants say that the demand for the Oleo is steady and advancing. R. D. Stine said he had as yet no report on the closing of a creaming factory but was still keeping up the quest, and hopes that he might locate one soon.

Will Hold Sale Last Day.
Fleming W. Robb who is making his home in Lincoln at this time will hold a public sale at the Robb farm south of Union on January 31. Watch for the bills and ads in the papers, for there will be many things which you will need when spring comes.

ESTRAY NOTICE

HOLD FINE MEETING
From Wednesday's Daily—
The W. H. M. S. of the Methodist church met last evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Barkus, with Mrs. H. B. Perry assistant hostess. This meeting was in the nature of a birthday party and 50th anniversary of the Jubilee program of the society. Each one present gave their birthday offering as a love gift to be used in the Jubilee work. This phase of the work takes care of buildings, homes and schools of the church, which in turn play an important part in helping Christianize America.

Mrs. H. E. Sorter led devotions, using Micah 6: 6-8. An interesting business session was presided over by Mrs. R. E. Bailey, president of the society. Mrs. Howard Dodds had the Enigmas and this too was a very interesting and instructive part of the program.

Following this the members and friends were invited to the dining room for the "party." The table was beautiful in its appointments of linen, silver and sparkling glass, while in the center a large golden birthday cake held the place of honor. The rainbow colors were used in the decorations and refreshments which lent a pleasing touch of color to the scene. This feature brought the evening to a close.

DEFIES THE COLD

From Wednesday's Daily—
The rest of the world may be wrapped in the midst of a real hard winter, but at the Burlington station there is spring in the air, despite the fact that the mercury at that place was registering below zero this morning. The last breath of spring reported by the office force at the station is to the effect that Mike Kearns, employe on the track force, this morning discovered a fly busily buzzing around the tool house south of the station as the section men were preparing to start in on their work. We did not see the fly, but owing to the fact that William Dasher, the section foreman, a few days ago found a grasshopper along the track north of the station, we are forced to believe the fly story and especially as it was broadcast by L. B. Rakow, the third track operator.

Welfare Work Held Safeguard to Home Ties

Regional Conference Hears of Steps to Keep Child and Parent Together

Philadelphia Bureau of Jewish Children, describing the methods employed by her organization, said it is the desire of almost all child welfare agencies to keep the mother and children together with as little institutional influence as possible. One method employed by these bureaus is to supply a house keeper where the mother is required to be at work, and the effort is made to find a person who can fill the position more as "a friend of the family" than as a hired domestic.

Miss Lotta Marcuse, of the Philadelphia Bureau of Jewish Children, describing the methods employed by her organization, said it is the desire of almost all child welfare agencies to keep the mother and children together with as little institutional influence as possible. One method employed by these bureaus is to supply a house keeper where the mother is required to be at work, and the effort is made to find a person who can fill the position more as "a friend of the family" than as a hired domestic.

Miss Marcuse said that her organization has taken great care in the selection of these housekeepers. Their duty is to place the home on an efficient and economical basis and to help the mother, if the mother happens to be unable to work, to accomplish household tasks efficiently but with as little effort as possible. Another, and highly important function of the housekeepers, Miss Marcuse pointed out, is to maintain the morale of the home and to help the family to meet conditions with fortitude and cheerfulness. The bureau has found, Miss Marcuse said, that the staff of "substitute mothers," as she called them, has been able to keep many families together, and also has been able to give discouraged mothers new ideals and happier prospects.

Another experiment was described by Miss Helen LaGrange of the Philadelphia Day Nursery, who said that it had been found of greater advantage to keep the mother at home with her children than to have the children brought to a day nursery while she went to work. Therefore the mother is being paid a wage almost equivalent to that which she would earn by working. Miss Patty S. Hill of Teachers College, Columbia University in New York, told of a plan that is being adopted by Columbia University for experimental purposes, whereby the mother is relieved of the care of her children several hours a day, so that she may shop or visit her friends, thus for the benefit of the children as well as the mother.

Miss Albert Liveright, a member of the board of the Federation of Jewish Charities, discussed the necessity for the exercise of the utmost discretion by volunteer workers, who, she said, are prone to discuss their social work experiences, often to the detriment of the work.

"Welfare work," she said, "is different from other jobs. It is a labor that is not performed on the basis of employer and employed, but rather on the basis of all working together to bring about harmonious results. There appears to be some difficulty in adjusting the volunteer and the professional worker to each other. The professional worker believes that the details of social work should be discussed only professionally, while the volunteer worker often is prone to treat the service in a different light."

pare the accusations and within a week the deposed city manager will have their report and will make his reply.

Belief that Cleveland may change to the "old style," or mayor-council form of city government was based on the fact that many of Hopkins' opponents were leaders in several previous unsuccessful campaigns to abolish the city manager form, while Tuesday many of Hopkins' friends were ready to join in a new movement of similar purpose—with the intention of nominating Hopkins for mayor. Whether the two groups can unite and form an election majority on such a program was a moot question, however.

The deposed city manager claimed that the ouster was due to two causes, chiefly: (1) Dissatisfaction of the republican organization over his handling of city employe appointments and salaries, and (2) alleged opposition emanating from the East Ohio Gas company against whom he has led a fight for lower rates.

Harold H. Burton, city law director, took the chair of city manager pro tem pending final disposition of the Hopkins case.—State Journal.

Death Knell of City Manager-ship System
Cleveland, Largest Municipality Ever to Try It, May Return to Council Control.

Cleveland—That the death knell of city manager government in Cleveland, the largest city where it ever has been used, was sounded Monday night in the ousting of city manager W. R. Hopkins, was the belief expressed by numerous civic and political leaders here. If they are right within a year Cleveland may return to the mayor and ward council form of control.

Beaten Monday night by a 14 to 11 majority in the city council, Hopkins began at once his plans for a "rear guard" action to regain his office, but had faint hope of success. Asserting his rights under the city charter, he demanded that the reasons for the ouster be explained in written charges that he have the opportunity to answer them. The council appointed a committee to pre-
