COLD HARD ON HIGHWAYS

Omaha—State Engineer Cochran in Omaha Thursday, said that he expects even more trouble with "frost boils" in Nebraska highways this spring than last spring, which was an expensive one for the department of public works.

"This winter has been colder, the frost deeper in the ground, and at the same time there has been an increase in traffic," he stated.

Last year, so much trouble was encountered the "boils" on the K. T. highway near Murray that the road had to be planned for quite a distance, Cochran said. This stretch is now paved.

Billion Dollar Fund Endorsed for Colleges

Small Institutions Would Benefit by Recommendation of Association Just Released.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Indorsement of the Carnegie Foundation report on college athletics and a recommendation that a $1,000,000,000 endowment fund for the small colleges of the United States be raised, under auspices of the Association of American Colleges, was the feature of the closing session of the sixteenth annual meeting of that association here.

Although so few colleges were given a clean record by the Carnegie report, indorsement was given without discussion. An appreciation of the services rendered by the foundation, recommendation that member institutions "emphasize intellectual and cultural aims as being of first importance in the solution of all college problems," and an urge that each college make a thorough survey of its own athletic conditions in the light of the report were also considered in the resolution presented by Prof. Bert E. Young of Indiana University, chairman of the committee on college athletics.

A proposal that the association campaign for and guide the use of an endowment fund of at least $1,000,000,000 for the small colleges of the United States, was made by A. N. Ward, president of Western Maryland College. The meeting voted to refer the suggestion to the executive committee, but at the same time it was announced that a special meeting of those interested would be called to formulate their view for the benefit of the executive committee.

The association also offered to assist the commissioner of education in a national survey of institutions engaged in training teachers, recommended that the United States office of education be requested to compile separately, information concerning liberal arts colleges and agreed to appoint a committee of five to cooperate with the National Advisory Committee on Education.

Twenty colleges were admitted to membership at the closing session. To be eligible institutions must require 15 units for admission and 120 semester hours for graduation.

New officers elected at Dean Luther P. Eisenhart, Princeton University, president, to succeed Dr. Guy E. Snavely, Birmingham Southern College; Dr. Herbert E. Hawkes, dean of Columbia college, Columbia university, vice president; treasurer, Dr. William M. Lewis, president of Lafayette college, permanent secretary, Dr. Robert L. Kelly; members of the executive committee: Samuel P. Capen, chancellor, University of Buffalo and James L. McConaughy, president, Wesleyan University.

COMMISSION PLAN ASSAILED

Washington—President Hoover's appointment of commissions to study various problems confronting the administration again drew the fire of democrats Thursday as the house began debate on the Colton resolution to authorize appointment of a public domain commission.

After a special rule limiting debate on the resolution to two hours had been approved by a vote of 205 to 118, the democrats, headed by their leader, Representative Garner of Texas, opened an attack on what they termed the turning over to outside commissions the rights and duties of congress.

"The president," the Texan shouted, "must and ought to recognize the three branches of the government which he has not done up to this date."

STORY OF DEATH IS FALSE

Chicago—Prof. Albert A. Michelson, noted Chicago scientist, is enjoying excellent health and a vacation in Bermuda with his daughter, answers an annoying deluge of letters and telegrams of condolence on his death. The source of the reports of Dr. Michelson's death remain undiscovered. Recovering his health after a serious illness last fall with pneumonia and two operations, the physicist recently resigned his post at the University of Chicago and left for a sojourn in Bermuda.

Meanwhile rumors of his demise were spread apparently thru Europe and his family continues to receive messages of sympathy from friends abroad.

Rift in Party Ranks Over the Leather Tariff

Senator Howell, of Nebraska, in the Group Favoring Hide Duty Higher Than Suggested

Washington, Jan. 22.—A rift in both republican and democratic ranks occurred Wednesday in the senate as debate was begun on provisions in the tariff bill to levy import taxes on hides, leathers and shoes, all of which have been permitted free entry into the United States for years.

Senators Oddie of Nevada, Howell of Nebraska and Bratton, of New Mexico, took up the cudgel for a high tariff exceeding that of 10 per cent ad valorem proposed by the finance committee and the house bills and for rates that would be only compensatory on leathers and shoes.

Senator Goldsborough, from the leather tanning state of Maryland, and Senator Hawes, from the shoe center of St. Louis, opposed a duty on hides, with the former coming out for a higher levy on sole leather than that carried in the pending bill. The house measure provides rates on leather ranging from 12 1/2 to 30 per cent and 20 per cent on shoes.

The finance committee left the shoe duty the same, but made the levies on leather 15 to 20 per cent.

Amendments Offered

Oddie, who opened the debate, offered an amendment to make green hides dutiable at six cents and dried hides ten cents a pound, the same as advocated by the American Farm Bureau federation. At present prices, he argued, a flat 10 per cent duty would mean a protection of only one or two cents a pound. He added his specific rates, if enacted, would stabilize the hide market in this country, where prices were dominated by importers of South American hides.

If duties on leathers and shoes were made protective as well as compensatory, he said, farmers might be "unjustly charged" with responsibility for possible higher shoe prices. The only other individual amendment offered during the day was that by Goldsborough to continue hides on the free list and to tax imported sole leather 20 per cent as against 15 per cent in the pending measure and 12 1/2 per cent in the house bill.

Howell Gives View

Howell said the Oddie rate on green hides would be just about equalize the cost of producing a hide in Wyoming and delivering it to Missouri river points with that of an Argentine hide laid down at New York, which he estimated at around 6 1/2 cents.

Leather and shoe manufacturers on the whole, were in a fairly prosperous condition, he argued, and that reason did not require the full protection afforded under the bill. It was true, he said, that some women's sport shoes come in from Czechoslovakia, but he estimated them at only 1.4 per cent of domestic production.

Describing the 10 per cent rate as a "sop without any substance whatever," Senator Bratton supported the Oddie levies and said the livestock producers should be included in any farm relief plans.

"I have spent my life among stockmen and have seen thousands go into bankruptcy," he said.

Senator Smoot estimated the Oddie levies would be equivalent to a 40 per cent ad valorem rate. Breaking into the debate at one point, he asserted that no matter what levy was placed on hides, the leather producer would receive little benefit, as he was under the domination of the packers.—State Journal.

FLIERS REST IN MONTANA

Helena, Mont.—Sixteen pursuit planes and a transport ship of the army's Arctic patrol rested at the municipal airport here Wednesday night after a flight from Spokane. The Rocky mountains at their dangerous passes will become memories to the fliers Thursday when they head toward Miles City on another lap of their homeward flight to Selfridge field, Mich.

Maj. Ralph Royce, flight commander, described Wednesday's flying conditions as the best the squadron had had since leaving its eastern port on the flight to Spokane and return to test winter equipment. The ships skimmed over the Rockies at an altitude of 4,000 feet and landed in Helena two hours and forty minutes after leaving Newman lake, near Spokane.

Cruiser Problem Will be Settled Among the First

French Have a Compromise on Tonnage and Categories Question; Likely to Admit Press.

London, Jan. 24.—Delegates to the five-power naval conference virtually wound up their first week's work today with a whirl of activity bringing Anglo-American parity sharply to the fore for the first time and pointing to publicity for all future full meetings of the conference.

At the suggestion of Secretary Stimson, the troublesome cruiser problem, which wrecked the Geneva conference, seems certain to be the first taken up in arranging details of parity of the British and American navies.

The British and Americans, as a result of negotiations in the summer and fall of last year, already have reached a tentative agreement on this category and the Americans feel that the entire program should be settled as quickly as possible.

French Propose Compromise.

The day's round of conferences also kept the Italian demand for parity with the French and Anglo-French disagreements over the scope of the conference constantly under the microscope.

The French went to No. 10 Downing street this morning, where, with the British delegates, they examined at length a memorandum prepared by Rene Massigli of the French delegation, and Robert Leslie Craigie of the British foreign office, dealing with points of difference.

It was understood the French presented a compromise plan which they developed with the idea of reducing the divergence of opinion between those who want limitation by tonnage and those who desire limitation by categories.

Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, also saw Mr. MacDonald and went to an appointment with Secretary Stimson. The quick succession of conferences kept the general picture of the negotiations changing rapidly.

Arrangements were made for Signor Grandi and Colonel Stimson to meet later in the day and discuss the same subject.

"Very Encouraging."

Mr. Stimson, secretary of state and head of the American naval conference, in his first conference with Secretary Stimson, the quick succession of conferences kept the general picture of the negotiations changing rapidly.

Colonel Stimson said that he knew there was considerable criticism at the exclusion of the press from the meetings of the delegates, but he knew of no reason for it, except in the size of the room.

He said he felt sure the other delegations held views similar to his, and that the press should be admitted to the plenary sessions, although they thus far had not expressed themselves formally thereon.

The move for the admission of correspondents at future conference meetings, such as that of yesterday at St. James' palace, also originated in the American delegation. Senator Robinson strongly urged such a step and Senator Reed supported him.

Mr. Stimson today accepted his first unofficial social engagement since he came to England. A dinner will be given in his honor by the Second battalion of Scots Guards.
