Shop Men in Ranks of C of C Membership

Number Climbing Steadily and Many Yet to be Seen—To Publish Complete List Soon.

By far the greatest number of shop men every enrolled in the Chamber of Commerce have accepted membership cards in the organization this year and will join wholeheartedly in the campaign to keep Plattsmouth in the front ranks during 1930.

George Luschinsky, who is a member of the directorate, reported at last Thursday's luncheon more than a score of those for whom he carried membership cards responded readily and in some instances shopmen have come forward and volunteered their membership fee without waiting for the committee to call on them. Such interest in civic betterment indicates a healthy condition of mind—being "civic minded," a phrase that was defined in an earlier C. of C. article.

It means these men are willing to accept their share of the responsibility of boosting for Plattsmouth, of upholding the good name of our community and raising their voice (thru the purchasing power of their membership fee) to give publicity to the opportunities afforded here.

Pesides Mr. Luschinsky, other shop men on the C. of C. directorate include Sept. Baird, and W. T. Distell of the BREV.

The Finance and Budget committee is continuing its membership campaign, putting in every possible minute of available time but is not near through with the canvass yet, as it takes a lot of time to personally see

STATE'S ARMY TAX STALLED

The attempt of Attorney General C. A. Sorenson to make army officers and enlisted men at Fort Crook and Fort Omaha pay Nebraska personal property taxes was further stalled Tuesday.

On request of Assistant District Attorney George Keyser, counsel for the army, Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough issued an order requiring Attorney General Sorenson and a host of other officials to show cause in court Thursday why they should take depositions of Col. Clement Troit, Fort Crook commander, Private C. H. Carmouch, and others.

Keyser said the army officers weren't running away from the court's jurisdiction and that Sorenson wanted to take depositions on the outside only to ask them whether they were paying taxes in Nebraska or any other state.

From Wednesday's Daily—

The Barclay restaurant which has for the past few years been conducted by William M. Barclay, today formally changed hands and was secured by George Chrisidos and William Sweeney, both formerly of Bridgeport, Nebraska, where they were in the restaurant business.

Mr. Barclay took over the restaurant that he had founded some fifteen years ago, when Mr. Walton, the lessee, died, died suddenly and has since operated the place as one of the attractive eating houses of the city, but having the opportunity to retire from the active management of the business, has disposed of the property and with Mrs. Barclay, will enjoy a deserved rest.

The new owners of the restaurant have just closed a very successful business in the west part of the state and desiring to become located in the east portion decided on this city as their future place of residence. Mr. Chrisidos is an experienced cook and will have charge of this department of the business of the restaurant while Mr. Sweeney will look after the general conduct of the business.

DEMOCRAT WINS ELECTION

Springfield—William J. Granfield, democrat, defeated Frederick D. Griggs, republican, in the special congressional election held to elect a successor to the late Congressman W. Kirk Kaynor, of the second Massachusetts district. The defeat of Griggs marked the first time that this district has ever sent a democrat to congress since 1892. The race proved to be close, the final figures reading: Granfield, 31,159; Griggs, 24,740, a margin for Granfield of 6,419.

Whitfield Reid, running as an independent and bone dry, rallied but 1,081 votes. Former Mayor William H. Peiker of Northampton, also bone dry, received only eighty-seven votes in the entire district.

Griggs, regarded on his entry into the campaign as a dry, declared just before the primaries that he would recognize the recent referendum vote of this district on the appeal of the eighteenth amendment as mandatory upon him and that he would vote for modification. Granfield is wet.

Police Route Prowlers in the Business Section

Night Police Discover Prowlers in Rear of Buildings and Round Up the Parties

From Wednesday's Daily—Last evening while the members of the night police force were making their rounds through the alleys in the business section, they noticed the flashing of lights in the rear of several places and reaching the scene approached quietly to find three men apparently along the vicinity of the rear of several of the buildings.

The men were rounded up by the officers and found to be a resident here as well as two other men, acquaintances, who claimed to have recently arrived here from their home in Missouri, and to which state they will be extradited by the edict of the law.

The inquiry was made as to "how come" in the prowling and the officers were informed that the parties were in search of empty bottles and which was a suspicious circumstance as the jelly and jamming season has long since passed and the officers of the law informed the parties that the bottles must be left untouched and that they get themselves hence.

The officers gave the parties twenty-four hours to leave the city or else face the consequences of their midnight stroll through the alleyways and that their plans for using the bottles had better be abandoned or there would be an even more severe penalty coming.

FAIRVIEW WOMAN'S CLUB

The Fairview Woman's club held an all day meeting at their last session on Tuesday, January 28, at the home of Mrs. A. Alexon. Miss Jessie Baldwin, assistant county agent, was present with samples of quilt blocks and Mrs. Ben Speck brought along some quilts to inspect in our honor on quilts and quilting. This was an interesting lesson and was very aptly presented.

A business meeting was held and among other things, committees were appointed to arrange a farewell party for Mrs. Joe Rhodes and family who are leaving the neighborhood to live in Omaha where Mr. Rhodes will conduct a grocery store. The president appointed Mrs. J. W. Tritsch, Mrs. Jesse Terryberry and Mrs. William Kraeger.

Mrs. Alexon proved a cordial hostess and made her guests feel very welcome and at home. She was assisted by her daughter, Miss Martha in serving a splendid luncheon and she was complimented upon the delicious food.

The club members enjoyed the day and did some very good work, bringing everything up to date and feeling pleased to know there was no lack of work to be made up.

The farewell party was given, sponsored by the club but the neighbors all took an active part and the departing family received many good wishes for success and happiness in their new home. The ladies all brought lunch baskets and some good things to eat were much enjoyed and added to the pleasure of the occasion. Mrs. John Terryberry, a recent bride, formerly Miss Eleanor McCarty of Plattsmouth, favored those present with some fine vocal solos, accompanied by Miss Esther Tritsch, Ray Mayfield and Mr. Rhodes sang duets and everyone joined in the community songs which this neighborhood is famous for. Mrs. A. Alexon sang some Swedish folk songs which were much enjoyed and everyone had a good time. All are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes who have lived among us for several years but we shall hope to see them occasionally.—Mrs. J. W. Tritsch, reporter.

All Wool—and a Yard Wide!

For years the name H. M. SOENNICHSEN has been associated with reliable, nationally known FOODSTUFFS, always sold at FAIR PRICES. Now in this modern age a new business practice is springing up as competition waxes keener and keener. Manufacturers themselves are responsible for it—many of them putting out smaller net weights in packages or cans resembling the original "yard-wide" values. No one has a monopoly on the purchase of this class of goods—WE CAN BUY THEM IF WE WANT TO—but we don't and won't ever offer the public this reduced size to camouflage real value and meet price competition. The goods you buy at BLACK AND WHITE are "ALL WOOL AND A FULL YARD WIDE."
