Airport to be Located Not Far from This City

Selection of Port South of Bellevue Brings the Airport as a Close Neighbor to City

The creation of an airport to be known as the Port of Omaha, a $1,000,000 project, is soon to be started and the location decided on will be a 400-acre tract of land east of the Fort Crook military post and south of Bellevue, a location that will be only a short distance from this city and much closer to Plattsmouth than Omaha. The work will start on the project as soon as the weather will permit, it was announced.

The property is being furnished by Omaha men. A national company, identified as one of the leaders in aviation construction, will develop and control the project. Development is expected to require expenditure of more than 400 thousand dollars, but no financing is to be done here. Mr. Hume, one of the boosters, did not reveal the name of the company, though definite assurance that it would go through with the project was received Monday, he said. The identity will be revealed within the next 30 days, it was asserted.

To Teach Aviation.
Definite plans include the establishment of an air college which is expected to be one of the greatest aviation schools of the middle west. A faculty will be brought here and sufficient equipment provided so that it will meet requirements for government certification. Whether or not Bellevue college is to be made a part of this development, as was reported several weeks ago, was not revealed.

One colossal two-story hangar is to be built. On the ground floor the planes will be stored. The second floor will have space for administration and field control offices, business offices, restaurant, aviators' club, some school work, and a glass-enclosed promenade deck for passengers and visitors. Elaborate plans for beautification are envisioned, that this may be one of the show places of the Omaha territory.

Build Three Runways.
Present plans call for three runways, each three thousand feet in length, to be paved with Tarvia and cement. These plans may be changed however, subject to the decision of the controlling company.

Sponsors of the "Port of Omaha" declare that the site chosen is ideal. It is accessible to tram line, railway and highway. There are few flying obstructions nearby. No great amount of grading will be necessary for leveling and draining the ground. There is ample room for expansion and for auxiliary fields, if necessary.

The field is large enough that school activities may be carried on in the western section, while transport planes use the eastern part. "Three hundred and nine of the past 365 days here have been suitable for flying, according to our engineer's reports," Mr. Hume stated. "That can scarcely be matched anywhere."

The new project will not be in competition with the Municipal field, explained Mr. Hume, for those behind it feel that Omaha should have several fields, and are also convinced that each municipality should own a field. The announcement Monday night followed months of work in gathering necessary data on weather conditions, and plotting the lay-out. An attorney for the sponsors spent much of last week in conference with representatives of that company which is to take charge.

HOLD FINE MEETING

Fontenelle Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, with a number of progressive members were most delightfully entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Henry McMaken. The regent, Mrs. Mann, presided over the business session at which time the chapter elected the following members as representatives to the state conference at Lincoln, March 18-21: Mrs. Geo. B. Mann, Mrs. E. H. Wescott, Mrs. F. R. Gobelman, Mrs. R. W. Clement, and Mrs. J. Stewart Livingston.

The representatives to the national continental congress at Washington, D. C., in April, are Mrs. Mann, Mrs. Wescott, delegates, with a choice of the remaining membership as alternates. Other matters of minor importance were then disposed of, when Mrs. Clement gave a finely prepared tribute to Washington, in a very pleasing manner. The program for the evening was in charge of Mrs. Wescott, assisted by Miss Carrie Baird, the latter giving an instructive review of the "Defense of Government," written by Mrs. Sherman Walker, the national chairman of the "Defense Programs" for the national society D. A. R.

Mrs. D. O. Dwyer was then introduced and gave a very able address on the "Defense of Justice." Mrs. Dwyer presented her subject most convincingly and her discourse throughout showed deep thought and splendid preparation. The chapter wishes to express their sincere appreciation to Mrs. Dwyer for her time and thought in their behalf.

At the close of the address the guests partook of delicious refreshments prepared by the hosts and her assistant, Mrs. F. R. Gobelman. Mrs. Robertson and Mrs. Coiby from the Masonic Home were visiting daughters.

School Treasurers Don't Like the Statute

Holding Them Liable for Deposits of Boary Money, But Taylor Urges Confidence.

State Superintendent Taylor found his Monday afternoon discussion at the meeting of rural school boards in County Superintendent's office turned into a discussion of the state banking system for a few moments when the matter of county school board treasurers being liable for money that may have been in a failed bank, was brought up. A number of board members did not like the law. Mr. Taylor told the board members that with the wealth of production in this state and the money coming in, the state is in sound condition, and what is most needed is more confidence.

He also explained to the board members how the teachers' examinations are being held, stating that the state makes up the questions for the ninety-three counties and reads about 20,000 examination papers, using fourteen readers. The county superintendent has supervision of the examinations.

He also explained to the board members that no one has a right to not reside in the district altho he may not reside in the district altho he may have property within its borders. The law also prohibits a person from holding office on a board in a district to which his children have been transferred while the family resides within the boundary of another district. He said he thought the law was wrong but it is the law. The present statute prevents the man from holding a board position in either district.

Dr. Sawyer addressed the afternoon meeting concerning contagious diseases. He told the board members that fumigation is not as effective as the use of antiseptics in prevention of contagion. He answered many questions put to him by board members.

STILL AGAINST NORRIS

Willard Clapp of Elmwood said Monday, while visiting at the capitol, that he contemplates filing a petition with the senate of the United States against Senator Norris occupying a seat in that body, says the State Journal. Mr. Clapp filed a protest against Senator Norris appearing on the coming statewide primary ballot of the republican party on the ground that Norris is an independent and that he should run as an independent, without party name as provided by a state law, and not run as a republican. Mr. Clapp withdrew this protest. "I have been considering the matter of filing a petition with the United States senate," said Mr. Clapp, "calling the attention of that body to our state law and making the allegation that Norris is in fact violating a state law."

Rotary Club Hears Address on Washington

Attorney A. L. Tidd Gives Very Fine Talk on the First President of the Nation

From Wednesday's Daily—
The weekly meeting of the Plattsmouth Rotary club was marked yesterday by a very pleasing tribute to George Washington, the first president of the United States and whose anniversary occurs on February 22nd, and the occasion was enjoyed very much.

Harvey Gomer was in charge of the program and had several very interesting features ready for the members of the club and chief among these was the talk by Attorney A. L. Tidd on George Washington and which is given below:

Nothing that I may say can either add to or detract from the illustrious name of the Father of our country, George Washington. Washington was born. His character and achievements have been a part of the school books of the nation for more than a century. It would therefore be idle for me to attempt to give any sketch of his life and achievements in the three or four minutes allotted to me on this occasion.

At this distance in time from the period of his life, we are apt to forget that he had his enemies as well as his friends. He had his enemies in war time as well as his political enemies. There are those even today who point out frivolous things which may or may not have happened in his life for the purpose of detracting from his luster or to bony up their own littleness of principle.

At the very height of his success and reward as he emerged from the revolution, receiving by unanimous acclaim the plaudits of the people and commending the respect and admiration of the civilized world, he did not forget that his first official act as president should be fervent supplication to the Almighty Being who rules the universe. Washington states the reasons for his belief in language so exalted that it should be graven deep upon the mind of every patriot:

"No people can be bound to acknowledge and adore the invisible hand which conducts the affairs of men more than the people of the United States. Every step by which we have advanced to the character of an independent nation seems to have been distinguished by some token of providential agency."

The two great presidents, Washington and Lincoln, in their state papers more often referred to Almighty God than has been done by all other presidents combined. Washington placed his life, his liberty, his property, and the property of his loved ones in jeopardy for the liberty of the Colonies and for our liberty.

When a great crisis comes, are you as similarly ready to make a sacrifice for principle's sake? When we see might triumph over right, and injustice over justice, are we ready to say, "Here is my life, here is my property, here is the property of my loved ones; I stake everything in the struggle which I wage to make all men free?" Have we the same faith in a divine providence as George Washington had? Are we as true to principle as he, as ready as he to put liberty, property and life itself in peril for the sake of right? Do we feel it is better to die right than to live wrong?

At no point in his administration does Washington appear in grander proportions than when he enunciates his ideas in regard to the foreign policy of the government: "Observe good faith and justice towards all nations; cultivate peace and harmony with all; religion and morality enjoin this conduct. Can it be that good policy does not equally enjoin it. It will be worthy of a free, enlightened, and, at no distant period, a great nation to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence."

He had what is as rare as transcendent genius,—he had a transcendent character, united with a marvellous balance of intellectual grades, which gave him almost unerring judgment and remarkable influence over other minds, securing veneration. As a man he had his faults, but they were so few and so small that they seem to be but spots upon a sun. These have been forgotten; and as the ages roll on mankind will see naught but the lustre of his virtues and the greatness of his services.

In addition to the Washington address, William Baird, himself a native son of the Scotch highlands, gave a very fine outline of the story of the British isles, including England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, and many interesting observations on this nation that has given so large a part in the world's history, was presented by Mr. Baird in a very fine manner.

Owing to the illness of Frank Clodt the musical features of the meeting were under the direction of L. D. Hiatt and who led the group singing by the membership.

President Livingston was compelled to leave the meeting on professional business and the session was presided over by F. I. Rea, the vice-president of the club.

The local club had the pleasure of having as a guest N. C. Abbott of Nebraska City who is one of the live wires in the Nebraska Rotary circles.

Plattsmouth Debaters Win from Otoeans

Local Team Has Undeclared Record So Far During the Present Debating Season.

From Wednesday's Daily—
Yesterday afternoon, the Plattsmouth high school debate team kept its season slate clean by winning its third successive victory of the season at the expense of the Nebraska City speakers of the Otoe county seat. This victory added to victories over Valley and Blair in January gives the local orators a good record so far in decision debates. In addition to this, no-decision doubleheader contests have been held with Omaha Central, Omaha North and Auburn, making a total of nine debates this year.

The Plattsmouth speakers, Mary Swatek, Robert Livingston and Gerald Sperry took the negative side of the state question, Resolved: "that the present jury system in criminal trials in the United States should be abolished," and were given a two to one decision by the three judges who were citizens of Nebraska City. They were: Rev. W. A. Albright, Rev. J. E. Hermann and City Attorney Thos. E. Dunbar. Rev. Albright and Attorney Dunbar concurred in giving the decision to Plattsmouth, while Rev. Hermann turned in the minority vote. The Nebraska City speakers were: Elizabeth Kelly, Kenneth Vogt and John Stenteville.

While the Plattsmouth coach felt that his team was deserving of the victory he did not feel that they made a very impressive showing considering the fact that the season is almost over and the team had the experience of eight hard contests to draw from. While gaining a substantial margin over the Otoeans in argument, delivery and rebuttal, the Platters lacked that polish both in delivery and logic of argument and that type of devastating rebuttal that would have made their work outstanding.

The close of the debating season draws near with plans being made to meet Omaha North next week which should put the Platters in shape for the District Tournament to which Plattsmouth hopes to be the host, awaiting the decision of Director Nelson of Fremont.

One of the high points in the season just closing will come next Tuesday afternoon when the Plattsmouth debaters will sponsor the Nebraska-Kansas Aggie debate on Disarmament, a regular Big Six contest, which will be held in the Plattsmouth high school auditorium at 2 o'clock p. m. The Plattsmouth debaters extend an invitation to the public to be present and enjoy this forensic treat because they feel that the willingness of the officials of these two universities to stage their debate here in recognition of the work which the debaters have done in creating interest in debate in Plattsmouth. Creighton University also agreed to meet Washington University on the local platform under the auspices of the Platt debaters but it was impossible to find a date acceptable to the Washington University officials.

SPRING IS HERE

The weather and general aspect of nature is bespeaking the early coming of spring, when the thoughts of young men turn to tender fancies. If you are unconvinced, the fact that Attorney A. L. Tidd, who is one of the enthusiastic lovers of nature and of the growing things has received his garden seed and will be busy from now on, court or no court, in planting and developing the wonderful creations of the garden, should be a sure sign that spring is just around the corner.

One of the truest signs of the spring is that of the marble season and for the past two weeks the boys of the city have been gathering in their neighborhood games of "marbles" and employing the school spare time in this most entrancing of spring sports.

And then again as a forerunner of the gladsome springtime a family of pigeons are engaged in trying to build a nest in the rear of the electric sign that tells the world where the Hotel Riley is located.

So prepare to throw away the old heavy undies and overcoats and prepare to greet the world in the joyous happiness of the new born springtime.

Woman's Club Plans for the Coming Meetings

District and National Convention to Come Soon—Enjoy Fine Talks on National Parks

From Tuesday's Daily—
The meeting of the Plattsmouth Woman's club was held last evening at the hospitable home of Mrs. L. W. Egenberger and with whom was associated Miss Mathilda Soennichsen, Mrs. J. H. McMaken, Mrs. Jessie W. Hall, as hostesses.

The club is to hold the annual election of officers at the next meeting and as a nominating committee Mrs. Ray McMaken, Mrs. J. E. Willes and Mrs. John F. Gorder were selected and to report the names to the forthcoming meeting.

The president of the club, Mrs. E. H. Wescott reported that the district convention of the southeastern district would be held at Syracuse on April 1st and 2nd, and that the biennial convention of the general federation would be held at Denver starting on June 5th, and urged that as many as possible attend the two meetings and especially the general convention which is being held so near this section of the west.

The members of the club also had the pleasure of having as a guest, Mrs. Eva Sherman Belleville, of Tracey, Minnesota, who gave a very interesting resume of her experience in club work and a number of the projects that the Minnesota clubs are planning.

Mrs. John F. Gorder gave a very talk on "Legislation for the Protection of Our National Parks," in which she covered the various measures that have been suggested to prevent the great national parks being given over to the private interests and destroying the great places of beauty and historic import in this country.

In the line of the discussion of national parks Miss Martha Gorder gave a very interesting account of her work in the Yellowstone park the past summer and in the description of the many places of striking interest in this great natural wonderland of the west.

At the close of the meeting the hostesses served a very appreciated luncheon that was enjoyed to the utmost by the members of the party.
