There has been many promises that a company would be formed to operate the oil well, and while there looked like from some points of view that such would be the case, still from another angle it is not so hopeful, notwithstanding every one would like to see the boring done to a demonstration as to whatever there was oil under Nehawka or not. We sure would like to see a good vein struck and a gusher operating. But we will have to wait.

Find Engineer Dead at Throttle of Fast Train

Prompt Action of Fireman Averts a Collision on the Milwaukee Road in Missouri.

Kansas City—Passenger train No. 3 of the Milwaukee railroad thundered southward toward Excelsior Springs late on Saturday with a dead engineer at the throttle and only the quick action of the locomotive's fireman in stopping the train averted a rear end collision with a freight train. The incident became known Sunday when the family of the dead engineer, George F. Robinson, sixty-eight, expressed the wish to give the fireman, E. E. Milburn, credit for saving Mr. Robinson's perfect forty-nine year record with the railroad from being marred.

The train, from Ottumwa, Ia., was due at Excelsior Springs at 4:51 o'clock. A freight train running ahead of the passenger, was scheduled to take the siding to clear the main line for the faster train. Eight miles east of Excelsior Springs, Milburn was surprised to see the train rounding a curve ahead and not yet completely on a side track.

When the passenger train did not slacken, Milburn shouted across the cab, and then was startled to see Robinson slumped in his seat. Milburn leaped across the cab, closed the throttle and applied the air brakes. The train slowed down sufficiently to allow the freight to get into clear on the siding.

Milburn then ran the train into the Excelsior Springs yards where another engineer entered the cab, and the run to Kansas City continued. The passengers left the train at the Union station here without knowing what had occurred.

Mr. Robinson died of heart disease, Dr. W. L. Wagon, Clay county coroner, decided—State Journal.

GRAIN PRICE MANIPULATION

Washington—The agriculture department announced Sunday that a hearing on complaints involving alleged attempts by members of the Chicago board of trade to manipulate grain prices and otherwise violate the grain act has been postponed and transferred to the capital. The hearing had been scheduled for Monday in Chicago. The department announced it would be conducted here, April 7.

The formal charges against William B. Massey, John S. Reddy and Philip J. Reddy, of the Chicago board of trade, include, in addition to that of attempted manipulation of the price of grain on the Chicago board of trade, issuance of "false misleading, or knowingly inaccurate reports affecting the price of grain;" failure to keep records of grain futures transactions and "other irregularities." The brokers have been ordered to show cause why the grain futures commission created by the grain futures act should not bar them from all trading privileges on grain futures of the United States. The hearing will be conducted by a referee designated by Secretary Hyde.

FIRM IS DENIED REFUND OF TAX

Lincoln, March 24—A stockholder's attempt to regain illegal taxes paid the Lincoln school district by a corporation met defeat in district court here Monday.

If the decision is sustained, the school district will be allowed to retain more than $25,000 collected under the unconstitutional intangible tax law of 1925.

Judge Shepherd basde his decision on the contention that stockholders in corporations cannot take what is profitable from such a relationship and reject the unprofitable.

When the corporation paid the taxes without knowledge of the stockholders, it failed to protest or demand return of the taxes within 30 days as required by law. Verna Crider, one of the stockholders, filed the suit.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

Real estate taxes will be due May first and from that date it will be delinquent and subject to 10 per cent interest, so all taxpayers are urged to make their payments as soon as possible.

JOHN E. TURNER, County Treasurer.
