Dedicate Fine Memorial to the Pioneer Mother

Hurley Addresses Ponca City, Okla., Ceremony Over Radio; Gift of Marland.

Ponca City, Okla., April 22.—Typifying the pioneer woman who bore the cross of hardship and sacrifice to help claim America's frontiers for civilization, a monument was dedicated here today that this and future generations might not lose sight of the heroic, though unsung, part played by woman in the building of an empire.

In a setting in which the old west was mingled with the new era, the "Pioneer Woman," as done in bronze by Bryant Baker, noted sculptor, was presented to the state of Oklahoma by E. W. Marland, wealthy Ponca City oil man, himself a pioneer of this commonwealth.

Introduced by Hoover.

Radio made the dedicatory ceremonies nationwide in scope. Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, son of a pioneer of Oklahoma, delivering the principal address from Washington, after being introduced by President Hoover.

"Woman has never been given her just place in history as a pioneer, an educator, a builder or as a leader," said Secretary Hurley.

"Historians have been so busy with the lives of great sons that they have not stopped to immortalize the mothers who produced them. The characters of men are molded by women."

Tribute to Woman.

When we speak of the pioneer woman, we are very naturally inclined to limit her sphere to the last frontier in the United States—the place we know and love so well—our southwest. But the pioneer woman has played her part in the conquest of nature through all the ages. She has been with her man and her family in their struggles with the wilderness and the desert places of the world. The pioneer woman gave to America its character and soul. The "Pioneer Woman," her countenance betokening hope and the determination to hold true unto her course as she sets forth into a new land, rises majestically from a plot of ground just off United States highway No. 77, and in the foreground of the two million dollar Marland estate. At her side, as she strides forward, sure of step, is her eager son, and clasped in her hand is a Bible.

The unveiling ceremonies were brought to a close with a humorous address by Oklahoma's cowboy comedian, Will Rogers, formerly of Claremore.

Rogers recounted episodes of early life in Oklahoma and the desert crowd cheered with laughter at his sallies.

"The real reason I came to this celebration," Rogers said, "was to pinch hit for Governor Holloway in case you impeached him before he got through with his speech."—World-Herald.

NEW GAS INNOVATION

One of the most interesting recent developments in house heating and cooling is the innovation, on a commercial basis, of an automatic gas-heated air furnace which can be used for maintaining temperature and humidity in winter and also for circulating water-washed air to reduce summer heat.

The operation of the entire apparatus is completely automatic, being controlled by a conveniently located thermostat. It occupies but three square feet of space, and can be placed anywhere in the house, due to its positive circulation.

For a number of years gas furnaces have been replacing old-fashioned heating units. As a fuel, gas is clean, efficient, practically "fool proof," and economical. Now that the same furnaces will cool as well as heat, the field for use of gas has

TELEPHONE PROGRESS

Present-day life in America is absolutely dependent upon the telephone. In 1929, telephone conversations numbered 64,173,144, or an average of one call for every two persons, according to Department of Commerce figures.

During the year, approximately 900,000 new telephones were installed in homes, offices and other buildings, a new high record for any one year.

Extension of international communication was also an important feature of telephone progress in 1929, and a new service of telephone communication between shore and ships at sea was inaugurated.

During 1929, approximately $700,000,000, or nearly $2,000,000 a day, is being spent for new telephone construction.

Why the NEW Polarine

THE MODERN MOTOR OIL

SAFEGUARDS HOT MOTORS

Complete removal of wax and tar from the new Polarine prevents this modern motor oil from running dangerously thin when heavy load and high speed cause the motor to heat.

Mud, sand and hard hills—plowing, disk-ing, harrowing—low speeds in low gear for miles, heat any type of motor. That's when bearings burn out and wear is most severe—unless your motor oil holds its body.

The new Polarine is not surpassed by any oil, at any price, from any kind of crude in resistance to thinning by heat. It also deposits less than half as much carbon in the motor as any old process oil.

A premium quality oil by every test and specification, the new Polarine sets new lubrication standards. Sold at no advance in price.

NEW D-L-D DIFFICULTIES

New difficulties in connection with routing the highway at Gretna may so hamper the work of paving the D-L-D from Waverly to Ashland that the state highway department may be unable to complete the strip between Lincoln and Omaha this summer. The department expects to let the contract for paving and it was hoped that all but five miles would be hard surfaced by fall.

Citizens of Ashland protested changing the highway so that it would pass their town and hindered construction last fall. Decision was made to follow the Burlington tracks south of the city to the Platte where a new bridge is to be built.

Along the south side of the tracks, the highway was to continue to a point to an underground crossing to be constructed near Gretna, according to plans. Angling northeast, the road was to form a junction with the present paving at the Douglas county line, thus doing away with the present crossing at Gretna.

A hearing is to be held before Governor Weaver Wednesday to discuss the proposal by certain Gretna citizens to continue the highway on the south side of the tracks to the present turn east of Gretna. Whether satisfactory adjustments will permit work to proceed this summer will depend upon outcome of the hearing.

FINLAND TOWN BANS HONKING

Oslo, April 20.—Finland has made a start toward the suppression of city noises by forbidding the use of motor horns in the town of Aabo. Aabo has demonstrated that the horn is no more necessary on the automobile than it was on a sledge, a one-horse bus or a hay wagon.

News of the demonstration reached Norway, and in consequence the Royal Automobile association of Oslo has proposed that in every city of that kingdom the use of the horn shall be done away with and the attention it involved redirected to skillful driving.
