While Alvo is well represented in most lines of business and has a good school and a fine church and is very progressive, there is one thing which the town needs and that is a resident physician. The city would be a good location for a young physician, the last practitioner, the late Dr. Lawrence Muter resided here for thirty years and always made a good living and another doctor could do the same.

On June 2nd, 1920, Miss Stella Bray and Arthur Dinges were united in marriage and have lived in happiness and both been good workers since they came to Alvo a number of years ago, and immediately made many friends which have remained since. They have enjoyed this friendship and good health, and on last Monday their friends gathered to express their pleasure that they are still a moving force in Alvo for the very best condition of society and government. Here is to you Arthur and the good wife, and may you continue to prosper and make and keep many friends.

Skipper's Boisterous Voyage.
S. C. Kellogg, who is familiarly known as Skipper Kellogg, had a runaway with one of his cars last Wednesday. He had come to town with his Durant sedan, and as he was going home and had just passed over the top of a hill, the car, observing two wagons coming, and being slightly nervous as to wagons, took a notion to avoid them, and struck for the field. Do what he would, Skipper could not control the machine and it vaulted a ditch by the roadside and through the fence, out into the wheat field, when he was able to quiet it down as there was no wagons there. The car was still very nervous and it was only after Arthur Dinges had been called that the car would work as intended by Mr. Durant when the car was manufactured. It had to be taken to the hospital of Mr. Arthur Dinges for a course of treatment. And he assured the writer that there is liable to be no more trouble hereafter.

Canada Revises Its Ex-Soldiers' Pension Scheme

Tribunal and an Appeal Court Is Set Up to Discuss Veterans' Grievances

Ottawa, Ont.—The revised Soldiers' Pensions Bill, providing for a pensions tribunal and a pensions appeal court where the claims of disabled veterans will receive sympathetic attention, passed its third reading in the Canadian Senate.

H. W. Laird of Regina said that it had always been the proud boast of the Canadian people that their ex-service men had received as generous treatment as the veterans of any country in the late war, and in many respects better treatment. As time went on, said the senator, there might be a disposition among the new generation to forget what was due the men who had carried the burden of the war but he hoped that such would not be the case.

Necessities of the situation might force Canada to bear the semblance of burdens placed upon the United States after the Civil War, but he thought this should be avoided as far as possible. He pointed out that expenses incurred on behalf of returned soldiers were as follows:

Pensions already paid, $408,000,000.
Soldiers' re-establishment, $187,000,000.
Loss on land settlement, $30,000,000.
Net loss on life insurance, $900,000.
A total of $625,900,000.

The success of the revised Pension Act was much of an experiment and its success would depend in a great measure on the attitude of the veterans' representatives before the tribunal.

"If they cooperate," he concluded, "with the Government in seeking only what is fair, and while demanding justice at the same time have some regard for the eternal fitness of things they will have performed a worthy service on behalf of the men they represent and also assist in carrying out the generous intentions of Parliament."

DRYS SAID TO BE GAINING

Rochester, Minn.—Liquor drinking decreases as prohibition talk increases. Dr. James Doran, federal commissioner of prohibition, declared in an address here Thursday night before the third annual convention of the First district, Minnesota Women's Christian Temperance union. Dr. Doran said liquor consumption is less than a year ago and it will be still less in another year, he predicted.

"America," he said, "is the only country in the world that had nerve enough to tackle the liquor problem effectively. England attempted to control the matter by limiting the hours of sale and Canada attempts solution by government sale, but both methods fall short of the mark."

"Canada's act this week stopping legal exportation of liquor to the United States was lauded by Commissioner Doran as a 'gracious and friendly act,' which has assisted greatly.

Cox is Advocate of Dry Law Repeal, He Says

Former Governor of Ohio Indicates Preference for Government Manufacture.

Columbus, O.—Former Governor James M. Cox of Dayton, democratic presidential nominee in 1920, declared his preference for repeal of the prohibition amendment here Thursday night. Addressing a state wide gathering of democrats at a victory dinner in his capacity as chairman, Cox said:

"The people will never change the existing order by bringing back the saloon, nor will private interests ever again be permitted to become selfishly allied on any side of this issue. With this understanding, I unhesitatingly favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. As between the old saloon order, with its brewery-controlled politics and what not, and the present set up I would prefer the latter. But we all prefer not being compelled to choose between these two extremes. Both are impossible."

Cox indicated his preference for government manufacture and control of alcoholic liquor in a declaration that there is need of another government provision, which shall "in plain terms, prohibit the manufacture of traffic in alcoholic liquors anywhere in America by private or corporate interests."

Disagreeing with Dwight W. Morrow, republican senatorial candidate in New Jersey, Cox said the federal government now has control over interstate traffic that would prohibit shipments from a wet state into a dry one. Morrow was quoted as saying there was need for such restriction.

The many of Mr. Cox's friends have been urging him to seek election to the United States senate, he declared he will not be a candidate

A little city surrounds the home. It has its own heat, light and power plant, a laundry and a bakery. A fine dairy herd of 60 cows provides milk and cream for the institution. The lands of the home comprise 640 acres, 450 of them under cultivation. Three irrigation wells insure loss of crops from dry weather.

Between 35 and 40 members live in cottages connected with the home or in rented cottages outside the grounds. They draw allowances of rations and fuel free. A well equipped hospital ministers to the needs of the sick.

The oldest member of the home is Mary A. Barger of St. Paul who will reach the century mark on May 25, 1931.

A new administration building will be erected within the next six months at a cost of $60,000. Ivan S. Gallant, a Spanish-American war veteran, is superintendent.

The Milford home was opened in 1895 with a membership of 10. The present enrollment is 60 men and 120 women. The officers and attendants number 58. Charles F. Jackson, a Spanish-American war veteran, is superintendent. The home is pleasantly situated on the Blue river at one of the scenic spots of the state. The inmates enjoy the delights of nature so near at hand. Some of the boys who have exchanged their rifles for bamboo poles are expert fishermen.

The plan of operation at Milford is identical with that at Grand Island. Veterans are cared for without charge and have the enjoyment of their own pension money. Good meals, comfortable beds and pleasant rooms, with radio, cards and visiting fill the sunset years of veterans, their wives and widows with peace.

Nebraska's provision for war veterans is outstanding among the states and shows the patriotic spirit of her people.
