Charles W. Bryan, former governor, filed again for the office today as a democratic candidate, with a statement declaring his purpose "of carrying on the fight to reduce taxes in the state of Nebraska and to protect the bank deposits of the people when placed by them in banks for safe-keeping."

Mr. Bryan said that he had hoped "some representative democrat other than myself" with similar convictions would file; but that he has been convinced the goal he seeks is his own unfinished work. He declares for a state income tax, paved roads, and old-age pensions.

To Protect Deposits.

"I have filed as a candidate for governor for the purpose of carrying on the fight to reduce taxes in the state of Nebraska and to protect the bank deposits of the people when placed by them in banks for safe-keeping. I had hoped that some representative democrat other than myself, with convictions on the importance of reducing state taxes and protecting bank depositors would be willing to file and stand as the democratic candidate for governor this year. Democrats, together with hundreds of taxpayers and bank depositors throughout the state, regardless of party affiliation insist that the issue of tax reduction and bank security, which is the cornerstone of the future prosperity of the state, is my unfinished work and that they consider it my duty to re-visit them in the coming struggle to restore people's rights in Nebraska.

"The three last republican national administrations, culminating with the work at our present great stationary engineer at Washington, has brought high tariffs, and higher tariffs, mergers of all kinds of corporations, utilities and consoliations with respect to the public utility industry has brought about 14-cent eggs, 24-cent cream, 65 cent wheat to the men and women on Nebraska farms and demoralized the live stock prices and all other agricultural products and has brought agriculture to the verge of ruin.

Greatly Increased Taxes.

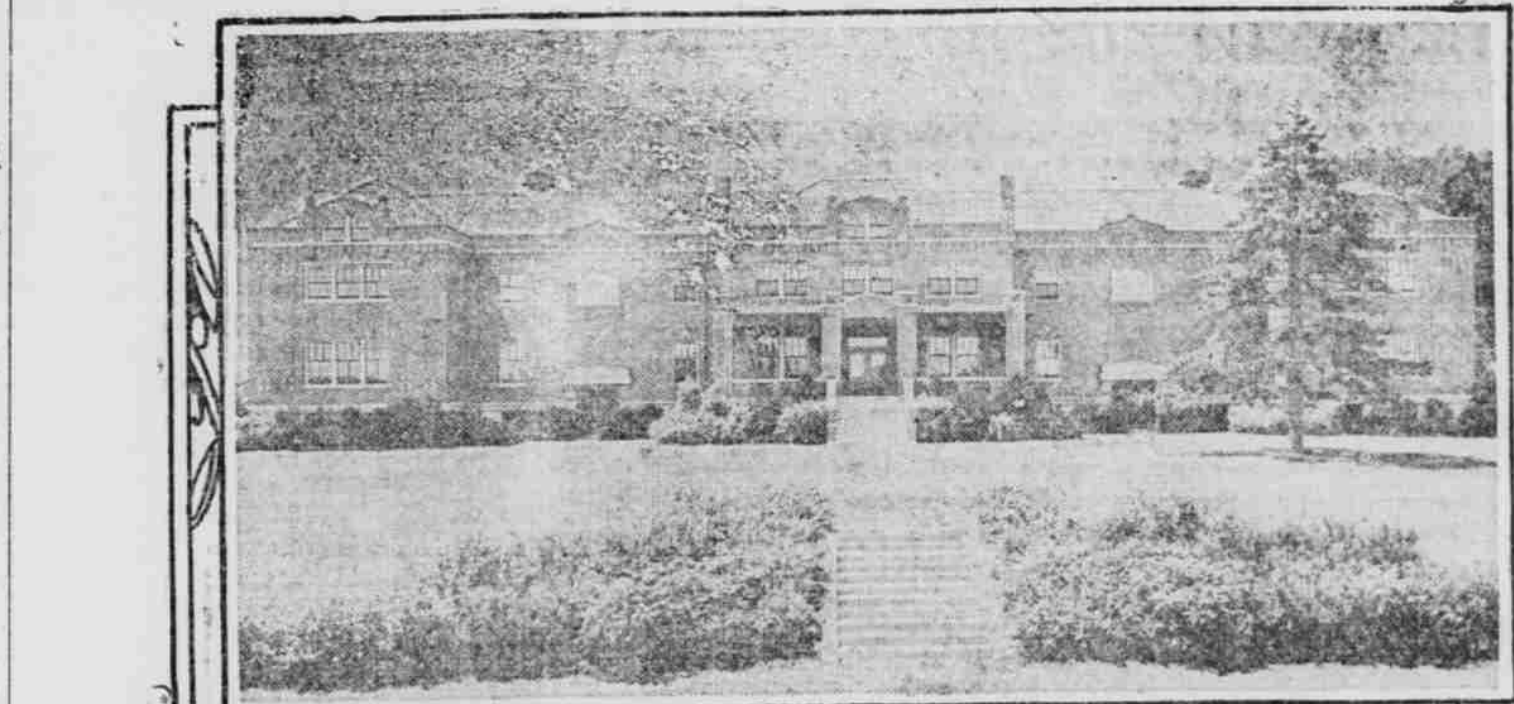

"The republican administration in Nebraska has increased the taxes on farmers, mechanics and the homes of the common people 80 per cent since my term as governor ended six years ago, and this administration has increased the cost of state government 30 per cent during the last two years, although they sacrilegiously promised the people in the last state campaign that they would reduce taxes if that party was entrusted with power again. More than 33 per cent of the farmers' income now goes to pay taxes which are levied upon him, a great deal of which is unnecessary and inexcusable. The enormous increase in taxation by the republican administration has led to waste, extravagance, enormous increases in salaries of state employes, created unnecessary state jobs, placed hundreds of unnecessary men on the payroll for political purposes, and all coming at a time when the farmers' income is being constantly reduced through the greed of Wall street and the stock gamblers and the unconscionable profiteers of all kinds.

How to Reduce Taxes.

"To reduce taxes appropriations must be reduced, the army of unnecessary code employes through its ramifications of boards, commissions, bureaus, inspectors, investigators and political hangers on must be abolished, rigid economy introduced and a state income tax should be levied, not for the purpose of raising more tax money, but for the purpose of replacing part of the farm and homes taxes, which should be and can be reduced on each good quarter section of farm land $30 to $40 and proportionally on smaller farms and homes and other real estate, which will require those who reap where the farmer has sown, to pay their just share of the cost of government in this state. This will increase the farmers' purchasing power, increase all kinds of business in Nebraska and increased employes, labor and wages by requiring a larger per cent of wealth created in Nebraska to be spent in our state which is now spent abroad and elsewhere.

Watch Your Ballot.

"The five hundred thousand taxpayers in Nebraska know that taxes are so high now that thousands of property owners will lose their property this year by sheriff sale on account of delinquent taxes. And yet an effort is being made by the governor and the republican party to hang onto the taxpayers eight million dollars in taxes, in failed banks. The taxpayers of this state have no legal or moral obligation to shoulder this additional tax of eight million dollars. It is the entering wedge by our republican banker administration to saddle onto the taxpayers the entire eighteen million dollars that the banks now owe to depositors. The depositors in failed banks are entitled to their money, but they should immediately insist and make their insistence felt as the polls in November that the governor should do his duty and use every power at his command to secure payment for the depositors from those who owe it and not attempt to compel depositors to tax their own property to pay their own deposits and to take their neighbor's property who do not owe this and whose only responsibility in the matter is that they voted the republican

BLIND AND DEAF IN NEBRASKA WELL EDUCATED

The advantages of education in Nebraska, second state in literacy, are not confined to youth of normal endowments but are distributed quite impartially to those unfortunates who have been handicapped in the battle of life. The school for the blind at Nebraska City and the school for the deaf at Omaha are successful and worthy attempts on the part of the state to give specialized education to underprivileged children.

The School for the Blind receives youths who are totally blind or whose eye sight is so deficient as to render them unable to attend the common schools. It is a free state institution, supported by taxation.

A full high school course is offered. Pupils graduating from this school may pass immediately to college, university or normal school. There are courses in music for the musically inclined, boys learn piano-tuning, broom-making and chair-caning. Girls learn cooking, sewing, crocheting, knitting and bead-work. All learn tactile writing and typewriting.

Besides affording the blind with educational opportunities at the Nebraska City school, the state provides free board, room, heat, bath, medical attention and supervision. The school was established in 1875. It has an average enrollment of 50 pupils, the attendants number 25. Every day is visiting day at the school and visitors are more than welcome to view the handiwork and see the provisions for care of the pupils.

The School for the Deaf at Omaha maintains a nine months course of twelve grades. All branches taught in the public schools are taught here. In addition the boys receive instruction in carpentry, cabinet making, painting, printing and gardening. The girls are trained in domestic science, sewing and fancy work.

The method of instruction is oral, the children being taught to speak and to read the lips by teachers specially trained in their work. A student graduating from this school is as well equipped for the serious business of life as the graduate of the high school.

Both institutions are under the management of the State Board of Control with a superintendent in charge. N. C. Abbott is superintendent at Nebraska City and F. W. Booth is superintendent at Omaha.

The physical environment of pupils in both schools is excellent. Modern and pleasant quarters, good food and correct supervision give opportunities for happy living that are denied blind and deaf boys and girls who do not have the opportunity of specialized training.

Iowa Towns to Get in on the Natural Gas

Line to Cross the River at This Place Will Supply Many Places to the South

The natural gas lines which are coming to this part of Nebraska and western Iowa, have created much interest in the cities where there has heretofore been no gas service and in the cities where gas service also exists, the promise of a cheaper line of fuel for heat and power is attracting attention.

The company that has extended their line as far as Palmyra in Oteo county and is operating as a part of the system that will be used by the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power Co., is to supply a great many cities along the route of their large twenty-four inch gas mains, and among the latest places to seek the natural gas lines are Hamburg, Tabor and Sidney.

The line crossing the Missouri river at this place will run branch pipe lines from the main pipe line to handle the needs of the communities.

The town of Pacific Junction will hold a special election on July 10th for the purpose of granting a franchise to the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power Co., to install and serve the people of that place with natural gas service.

Glenwood this week voted to have natural gas franchise granted in that city, and which will serve the community there with the new cheap fuel.
