DEATH CLAIMS SCHILDRAUT

Hollywood—Rudolph Schildkraut, sixty-five, an actor two decades ago in Jewish theaters of Europe and later a celebrity in Biblical pictures of the screen, died here Tuesday in the midst of his film career. Death from a heart attack, struck as he rested before finishing another episode before the Kleig lights. Schildkraut was born in Constantinople and during his education in Rumania he developed a liking for dramatics. He then entered repertoire, left this for comic opera and was carried to stardom in classical dramas of the European Jewish theater. With this background, he emigrated to the United States twenty years ago from Vienna after a year of experience in German films. His objective was Jewish drama but his initial appearance was unfortunate. As a member of the cast in "The God of Vegeance," in New York he and eleven others were arrested on charges of giving an immoral play. He was convicted and fined $200. Three years later the sentence was set aside on agreement to make no effort to present the play again.

CAPONE CHARGES DROPPED

Miami—The official campaign of Miami and Dade county to drive Scarface Al Capone, Chicago gangster, from his $250,000 island mansion at Miami Beach appeared at an end Tuesday with announcement that two remaining perjury charges against him would be dropped with reports that Capone would build a $375,000 estate in Broward county. In advising that he will enter an order to nolle prosequere the remaining charges, County Solicitor George E. McCaskill said he did not believe they could be prosecuted successfully. Capone was acquitted Saturday at the first of three perjury charges by directed verdict of Criminal Court Judge E. C. Collins. Meanwhile, public officials who have been active in attempt to oust Capone ever since his arrival April 20 for an announced two weeks vacation, awaited confirmation of reports that the gangster will take up his Florida residence in the county to the north of Miami.

FARMERS STIRRED UP

From Wednesday's Daily—Last evening Dan Horschlar and Joe Safarik, well known farmers residing in the community west of Myriad were in the city to consult the officers relative to the invasion of their places by representatives of the natural gas lines. Mr. Horschlar complained that the parties laying out the line to be followed by the ditching outfit had invaded his place, blew up trees, torn down and damaged fences and through the fences the cattle had gotten into the Safarik place. Also the trees blown out and chopped down had blocked natural water courses and caused much damage. The matter was reported and Deputy Sheriff Rex Young took the matter up with the officials of the gas line company who are at this city, getting the matter arranged so that it would be more satisfactory to the farmers.

WILL INSTALL NEW SIGNS

F. H. Kleitsch, engineer of the state department of public works, has notified the Chamber of Commerce that he is planning to have installed a new sign at Sixth and Main street for the direction of the traveling public. The sign will have arrows pointing to the various directions with the distance to the nearest towns, indicating the route north and south on highway No. 73, also the route of No. 34 east over the new Missouri river bridge to Chicago and the east and the directions west to Lincoln and cities along the line. The local committee of the Chamber of Commerce have long urged the department to place this sign and feel well pleased that their request was granted. The sign will probably be placed at the east end of the small park on Main street, south of the Hotel Riley.

Farm Board Reviews First Year's Existence

Members Reluctant to Make Definite Statement of Results; Time Is Too Short.

Washington, July 15.—The farm board, looking back over the first 12 months of its existence today frankly reluctant to say whether it had gained or lost the initial encounter with the accumulated ills of agriculture. The time has been entirely too short, members said, to determine the success or failure of the multitudinous projects launched under the agricultural marketing act and which, to speak of victory or defeat, must be viewed in the aggregate. Particularly is the time too short, they said, considering that their program deals with the readjustment of 141 years of agricultural practices for which it took congress eight years to agree on a formula.

Individually, members expressed satisfaction with the progress they had made in eliminating competition between supplemental commodity loans—those made to enable co-operatives to finance the immediate marketing of their products—usually are seasonal and to be repaid within the year, while the facility loans extend over a long period of time and are designed to finance the acquisition of physical properties for which the principal need is still to develop.

Stabilization embraces such emergency operations—the handling of things to obtain immediate results—and long-time operations, or the focusing of innumerable projects into an economic advantage under which the farmer can control the distribution of his own products.

The two-way program is reflected in both loans and stabilization measures. Supplemental commodity loans—those made to enable co-operatives to finance the immediate marketing of their products—usually are seasonal and to be repaid within the year, while the facility loans extend over a long period of time and are designed to finance the acquisition of physical properties for which the principal need is still to develop. Stabilization embraces such emergency action as that taken to remove from the market depressing quantities of wheat and cotton, and on the other hand the natural stabilization that results from co-ordination of co-operative marketing.

Based on Co-operation. The program, board members said, is not so designed that success or failure may be determined within a single year. Co-operation is the fundamental principle upon which it is based, and six million farmers cannot be organized within 12 months. Over all, they pointed out, is the fact that the board faced from the start unprecedented and unfavorable world-wide economic situation.

Wheat, most distressed of the major farm commodities, has received a lion's share of the board's assistance. Of the 195 million dollars the board has lent in 12 months, 75 million has gone to wheat co-operatives and to the grain stabilizes corporation which plans to hold some 69 million bushels of the 1929 crop off the market until prices improve. The board definitely has opposed the suggestion that it remove from 25 million to 100 million bushels of the 1930 crop.

During the year almost every farm commodity has been aided by the board, either through the creation of national marketing agencies or through loans.—World-Herald.

NO WEDDING BELLS

The marriage license record in the office of County Judge A. H. Duxbury is acquiring a thick coating of dust, through disuse, there having been a slump in the marriage market in the past few weeks and no licenses have been issued so far since the twenty-eighth of June. The Judge has a fine line of handsomely engraved certificates to help boost the business but matrimony line the price of wheat and corn seems on decline.

Agriculture and the Tariff.
In a talk given over the radio, Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture, quotes the following facts and figures: "Our net imports for the years 1926-28 of commodities upon which duties were raised, and which can be produced in this country, give a rough measure of the possibilities of shifting production so as to achieve a better balance. For instance, we import vegetables which require 28,000 acres to produce. Our imports of soybean oil require 160,000 acres; of corn, 84,000 acres; of peanuts, 67,000 acres; of figs, 62,000 acres; of meats and meat products, 341,000 acres; of dairy products and by-products, 450,000 acres; of cattle, hogs and sheep, 88,000 acres; etc. On the basis of recent volume of domestic flax consumption and production the increased rates of flax, flax seed and linseed oil, make possible a substitution of 2,300,000 acres of flax for hard red spring wheat. The total shift in acreage from crops of which we now produce too great a surplus to crops to which increased tariff protection now offers a better market could run as high as 10,000,000 acres."

It is not probable that the entire theoretical shift can be realized, nevertheless, the tariff act does offer an opportunity for more profitable diversification and better balance in agriculture which has not heretofore existed. Cost account records kept by Cass county farmers in 1929 show that it costs $9.35 per acre to produce wheat compared to $5.27 per acre in Perkins county. Would it not be advisable to cut the wheat acreage in Cass county and substitute some other crop?—D. D. Wainscott, Co. Ext. Agent.

PAYS TO OPERATE BUSINESS

Jacob Miller, who owns and operates the junk yard on Pearl street, states to the Journal that relative to petitions for the removal of the yard, that to do this would impose a great deal of hardship on him in both annoyance and expense. Mr. Miller in the first place has the plot of ground leased for a year and was compelled by the fact of the construction of the viaduct on Granite street to move a great deal of his iron and other junk to the present location and where it is being complained about. Further Mr. Miller says the market for his line of stuff is very slow now and he has not been able to dispose of it as he might wish. If he had a ready sale and could get rid of the old iron and other articles he certainly would be glad to do it. If Mr. Miller was compelled to move the junk it would cost him from $150 to $200 and which would be a very heavy burden to him in these none too prosperous times. Another phase of the matter that Mr. Miller calls attention to is the fact that he paid for and secured a license from the city to operate the junk yard and has complied in every way with all legal requirements in the conduct of the business.

THE STRICKLER ENTERTAINERS
