Reds Win Last Night's Contest on Golf Links

Narrow Margin of Two Points Enables Them to be Guests at Splendid Steak Dinner

From Tuesday's Daily—
In the golf tournament held at the links of the Elks Country Club course last evening, the Reds, captained by Geo. K. Petring, won from the Blues, captained by J. W. Holmes, by the narrow margin of two points. The totals were 303 and 301, respectively, a penalty of five points for failure to be present assessed against one of the "Blues," adding to their total and probably causing them loss of the game.

Excitement ran high when it was learned that Walt Soennichsen had gained eight strokes over Wilbur Hall, with only two more needed to tie the score, and three to win for the Blues. While Walt played a wonderful game, he failed to clip off the additional extra points required to win for his side. The scores were as follows:

Reds	Blues
Wunderlich 41	Holmes 40
Westover 38	Cloidt 33
Moore 37	Rosencrans 39
Knorr 39	Harford 46
Wohlfarth 47	Gaylord 42
Bates (Bye) 0	Walling 5
Hall 53	Soennichsen 51
Petring 40	Carl Brown 47

TOTALS 301 TOTALS 303

Promptly at 8 o'clock all the players, with their wives, retired to the beautiful club room, where a table decorated with seasonal flowers had been prepared. The table had been very cleverly arranged by Nadine Cloidt, with colored strings swung from a basket in the center of the table to each place card and as each drew in their strings on which was a prize of some kind.

A wonderful steak dinner with all the wanted trimmings was then served by Mrs. Cloidt. The dinner was pronounced the best ever by every one present.

Those attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, of Papillion, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wunderlich, Nehawka and Blythe V. Rosencrans, Chicago.

CONFUSE NUMBER OF CASES

The number of contagious diseases treated by the University of Nebraska student health service for the year June, 1929 to June, 1930, was erroneously given in the report released Sunday, according to Dr. R. A. Lyman, dean of the report released Sunday, according to Dr. R. A. Lyman, dean of the college of pharmacy and superintendent of student health. The report as published gave the number of vaccinations for small pox, typhoid fever and scarlet fever, instead of the actual number of cases. In reality, Dr. Lyman stated, there were only two cases of small pox, five cases of scarlet fever and no cases at all of typhoid fever during the twelve month period. According to the health superintendent, there were 269 vaccinations for small pox, 135 inoculations for typhoid fever, the majority of which were for R. O. T. C. and survey camp students, and 49 inoculations for scarlet fever.

CANDIDATES VISIT CITY

From Wednesday's Daily—
The first political meeting of the campaign was held yesterday afternoon when two of the candidates for the republican nomination for congress in the first district visited this city and proceeded to boost their candidacies.

The chief feature was the drumming as well as speaking of Alvin A. Misegadis, well known Talmage political leader, who is a candidate for the republican nomination for the congressional honors. Mr. Misegadis came with a fier and a snare drummer while the candidate himself did the work on the big bass drum to help draw the crowd. The candidate presented his views on a great many of the questions of the day and especially along the lines of constitutional government as well as paying his compliments to many of the candidates for state and national offices on both tickets.

Mr. Misegadis is the man who was chief mover in the plan to eliminate all of the opposing candidates except one against Senator Norris and to consolidate the strength of the opposition. He also was the proposer of General Pershing for senator.

The second congressional candidate to visit the city was Minnie Grinstead Himes of Humbolt, who did not make any address but visited all of the business houses of the city and distributed her cards as well as extending a personal greeting to the local voters.

ROBERT TROOP QUITE POORLY

Robert Troop, eighty-eight years old, who has been in Nebraska for over a half century, and a man who helped built the Union Pacific railroad just following the civil war, has been feeling quite poorly during the extremely heated season. He has had to stay down stairs in the basement of the home on account of the oppressiveness of the atmosphere upstairs.

His niece, Mrs. D. C. Rhoden of Murray, and Mrs. W. O. Troop of north of Nehawka, have been assisting in his care. With the moderating of the weather he has been feeling some better. John Lloyd of Council Bluffs, was down accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd to see Uncle Bob, and John brought an electric fan with him, which greatly alleviated the suffering of Mr. Troop for breath. He is feeling some better at this time.

HAS CLOSE CALL

I. V. Gilbert, Council Bluffs traveling man, had a very close call from death Tuesday morning when the room at the Dennis hotel at Elmwood which he was occupying, was found to be in flames. Mr. Gilbert was overcome by the smoke and a few moments later would have succumbed to the effects of the smoke and flames had not Mrs. Dennis, the proprietor of the hotel discovered the fire and gave the alarm.

The bed on which Mr. Gilbert was sleeping was just breaking into a blaze when discovered and the room filled with dense clouds of smoke, the bedding having been smoldering for some time.

The blaze was extinguished with the loss confined to one room of the hotel.

RETURNS FROM HOSPITAL

John F. Wolff, who for the past eleven weeks has been at the hospital at Omaha, has so much improved that he was able to return home Tuesday afternoon, feeling much improved altho still somewhat weak and showing the effects of his illness which has covered some sixteen weeks all told.

The patient will however, continue his treatments with his family physicians and occasional visits to the specialists in Omaha until his trouble has cleared up.

One Killed as Gasoline Train Cars Derailed

Possibly Three or Four Others Perished in Accident Near Homer —18 Cars Derailed

At least one man was killed, and possibly four or five, in the wreck of a gasoline train Sunday afternoon a mile south of Homer, Neb., or 17 miles from Sioux City, according to reports to Omaha offices of the Burlington railroad.

Determination of the exact number of dead could not be made until wrecking crews reached the center of the debris.

About 18 of the 26 cars derailed, according to persons who visited the scene of the wreck, contained gasoline, much of which was spilled on the right of way until the ditches were knee deep with the fuel. A total of 100 thousand gallons of gasoline was estimated to have been spilled, offering continual threat of fire or explosion during the work of the clearing away the wreckage.

Boarded Train at Winslow

One victim had boarded the train at Winslow, Neb., and was "beating" his way, trainmen told railroad detectives following the wreck. Several other vagrants seen to have been on the train earlier had not definitely been accounted for Sunday night.

Search for bodies in the wreckage for many hours, officials stated, because of the severe danger from the gasoline. Sunday evening no traces of bodies were seen, though the suitcase of the one victim could be seen in the wreckage.

Caused by Loose Wheel

The derailment was caused by a loose wheel on a grain car, which tore up the track, spreading rails and allowing the following cars to be derailed. Nearly a score of the cars piled up, the others remaining upright and not seriously damaged.

About 1,800 feet of track was torn up. The train crew was headed by J. F. Stapleton, conductor, and Earl Closson, engineer, both of Lincoln.

Guards had difficulty keeping crowds away from the gasoline, while wrecking machines were on their way from Sioux City and from Fremont. It was reported that the gasoline would have to be cleared away before much other work could be done safely, and the line was not expected to be cleared before morning.
