DENOUNCES THE HYPOCRITES

Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! because ye build the tombs of the prophets, and garnish the sepulchers of the righteous, and say, If we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets. Wherefore ye be witness unto yourselves, that ye are the children of them which killed the prophets. Fill ye up then the measure of your fathers. Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell.—Matthew 23: 29 to 33.

Liquor law violators crowd Leavenworth prison.

Listen, boys and girls: You can not preserve your youth in alcohol.

How to get along on good terms with your wife: Forget her age; remember her birthday.

Lots of men after laying up something for a rainy day get discouraged because it doesn't rain.

The scientist who insists that the human jaw is growing smaller, never examined those of some of our Senators.

Don't worry about gubernatorial booms. Before the fight is ended some of the booms will be transferred into boomerangs.

One of the enigmas of the present generation is that in spite of the prevalence of soap box orators, dirty politics still persists.

Lotta people were late Tuesday as a result of not being able to remember where they put their umbrellas way back in early April!

While too late to save the corn crop, generous rains have broken the drought in all affected areas, the Weather Bureau reported.

President Hoover has taken toigsaw puzzles and the next thing we know, there'll be a commission to study the cost of the things.

A New York doctor is advising people to keep cool by thinking of next winter. What's the use? Even then we've got to think about our heat.

Stock market authorities class cosmetic manufacturers as one of the "depression proof" industries. Because, perhaps, they keep stiff upper lips.

The unemployment situation in a fishing town in Spain was solved recently when a school of sardines appeared on the coast. How very uncanny!

And speaking of endurance contests—ask any married man.

The soviet propaganda seems to have produced a foreign trade controversy, if nothing else, in the United States.

At that we doubt if loud-speaking can make you as furiously angry as the whisperers can.

The Democrats need to rally their party, take back their bolters, if they want to lick the Republicans.

Speaking of Lindy's major achievements, the fact escapes most of us that he made his Maine flight the other day.

Time was when city folk flocked to the parks to escape the heat; now you'll find them in refrigerated movie houses.

Youth will have its fling, and there's that great-grandmother, 61 years old, in St. Louis, who has passed her 225th hour of tree-sitting.

"Don't you envy Byrd the glory he gets from discovering both poles?" "No, the only thing I care a rap about discovering is a parking space."

A restaurant just opened in Paris makes a specialty of sausages made of whale meat. It is rumored that the place will soon go up the spout.

Anglers can become irritable in hot weather, as witness the one who held a piece of bait before a colleague and asked, "Is it worn enough for you?"

Talking picture equipment is to be installed soon on 200 of the navy's ships. Will it be proper to say now, when sailors leave port, that they're going out to see?

The Connecticut farmer who traded 75 acres of land for a radio set is thought to have done it to tune in on this farm relief program he's heard so much about.

The commerce department declares that miniature golf courses have help. Our impression, on the contrary, was that they were putting the country in a hole.

A Kentucky editor suggests that emporium be built specializing in milk drinks. At least the beverage should be popular with those patronizing baby golf courses.

A news item says that cabbage is 91.5 per cent water, 7.5 per cent organic material and 8 per cent mineral salts. That's another place where a bad acting little minority can make the majority look sick.

And just about the time Old Man Drought has been put to bed, along comes—achoo—hay fever.

Last Thursday was a dull day in Chicago. Only five gangsters were shot to death by their rivals.

Everyone thought President Coolidge intended to retire to private life, and here he is writing for the papers.

Congress, a news item says, has appropriated $18,000 to eradicate the Florida sand fly. Who do they mean, Capone?

"Why does Floyd Gibbons speak all at once?" asks a writer in Life. Probably he wants to get it out of his system.

Straw votes on pending political contests are interesting, but they do not seem to either affect the results of the price of liquor.

First cotton bales are now becoming common in Mississippi. From now on they will no doubt want to count them in large numbers.

Two men posing as plumbers robbed a Chicago woman of several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry. To them the job was a pipe.

President Hoover, it is reported, takes no part in the chess games at his camp. He's more interested probably in moving men on their boards.

All that is necessary to cure the smoking habit according to a Russian scientist is to take three hypnotic treatments. It might work for a spell.

In order to support some of the candidates who are tossing their hats into the ring for the next campaign it will be necessary to chloroform your conscience.

German airplane manufacturers are trying to perfect a plane that will travel 400 miles per hour. Might as well throw away our telephones and telegraph instruments.

The fact Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh have taken their first flight together since Charles, Jr., was born, leads to the suspicion the boy has already become an endurance crayer.

A full-grown fin-back whale entered New York harbor the other day, coming up within sight of the statue of liberty. Possibly he wanted to see some of Mr. Hoover's prosperity.

A new X-ray tube has been perfected in Germany, said to possess twice the power of the old ones. This may enable a doctor to count the money in his patient's pocketbook.

A West Virginia coal operator has urged the president to suspend radio broadcasting because in his belief it has caused the drought. To be sure, the programs have been rather dry of late.

In return for restraining her liquor smugglers Mexico has asked the United States to kindly keep her gamblers at home. In these parts most of the gambling is on midget golf courses.

A dentist says that by looking into the mouth you can tell the age of a human just as you can a horse. So now women will be motivated by reasons other than good form to cover up their yawns.

A New York man who stole a dollar watch the other day was sentenced from 20 to 40 years in prison. Had he taken a more expensive movement he might have been given a more correct time.

Just as the Noise Abatement Committee had solved its major problems, along comes announcement of the discovery of a new musical instrument which is a combination of the saxophone and bagpipe.

When a candidate for office conducts his campaign in a manner unbecoming a gentleman the chances are he won't be a gentleman if he gets into office. And this thought is not confined to one candidate, either.

Much of the pedestrians slaughter takes place on highways outside of the bounds of cities where the walker must use paved surfaces built primarily for vehicular traffic and none too wide for the needs of the latter. Segregation of footpaths would save many lives.

The question raised by Mary V. Robinson of the woman's department of labor as to what women may do who are "too old" for jobs and too young for death, is still being widely discussed. In all probability, it will be a live topic for several years, for a problem of this kind can be solved only by the rigors of experience.

THE RAINBOW ENDS IN MR. FESS

If there is any man in the Senate of the United States who typifies the complacent regularity of the machine politician it is Mr. Fess. In 17 years of service in Congress he has never left the reservation. He has never contributed to the discussion of current problems an idea which postdated the philosophy of McKinley Republicanism in the late 1890's. On questions of property rights and the protection of big business he is the complete standpatter. On questions of social legislation he is the eloquent disciple of the doctrine of laissez faire. On questions of foreign policy he is the perfect isolationist.

We do not question the fitness of Mr. Fess to serve as the symbol of Republicanism as it has come down to us through Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Harding. We do believe that his selection as party chairman by Mr. Hoover will be a bitter dose to those liberal Republicans who believed in 1928 that Mr. Hoover would give his party new leadership and a new philosophy of government.

It is a far cry from Herbert Hoover, the bold and daring engineer, to Mr. Fess, the party wheel horse. It is a far cry from Herbert Hoover, the creator, to Mr. Fess, the apostle of let-well-enough-alone. It is a far cry from Herbert Hoover, the expert in world affairs, to Mr. Fess and his Chinese walls. If Mr. Hoover had deliberately set out to show his liberal supporters in 1928 that they were utterly mistaken in their estimate of his type of Republicanism, he could not possibly have made a better choice.

The significance of the President's decision becomes all the more impressive when it is remembered that he had complete freedom in the selection of a party chairman. There were no compelling reasons of party strategy which forced him to decide on Mr. Fess. He was under no personal or political obligation to the man. There were a hundred men whose selection would have been typified the spirit of social engineering and the new economic statesmanship which Mr. Hoover seemed to many of his friends to represent in 1928.

Mr. Hoover chose none of these men. He chose Simeon D. Fess. Once more he has given his most enthusiastic friends good reason to believe that what they saw in 1928 was a mirage and not a vision—From the New York World.

HAVENS AND HIGH SEAS

Havens or high seas!
Choose which you please,
Land-bounded comfort,
Contentment and ease,
Fire on hearthstone,
Wind in the trees,
A hand at home-coming,
Would you have these?
Or do you still long
For rights that are gone,
Wind in the rigging,
Red sun at dawn,
Where blue touches blue,
And the limitless view
Is pregnant with longing—
Do these call to you?
Heavens or high seas,
Cyclone or breeze,
Whichever you choose,
You will never have ease!

—E. Leslie Spaulding in the Chicago Tribune.

A GANGSTER'S BOOKS

Jack Zuta, Chicago operator in liquor, gambling and vice on a big scale, who was riddled with bullets in his Wisconsin retreat a few days ago, kept books. Those books, now in possession of the State's Attorney's office, show enormous receipts; that, of course, was to be expected. They also show disbursements, by way of canceled checks and notes, to Judges, former Judges, police officials, politicians and a subscription to a political organization. There are few persons unsophisticated enough to be surprised at these revelations.

Gangsterism in Chicago thrives under the aegis of official and political protection. It could not prosper in Chicago or any other city without such protection.

Zuta, it seems was a systematic "business man." His ledgers were as carefully balanced, the dispatches say, as those of any legitimate enterprise. There was method in his madness. He retained the evidence so that if any of the men he had bought became restive he could bring them to heel with the incriminating documents.

How much the dead gangster's books may contribute to smashing the alliance between Chicago's officialdom and underworld remains to be seen. The State's Attorney's office has published the records. Presumably it intends to follow through. It will need assistance. Here is an opportunity for the press of Chicago to come to the aid of its city with a purpose and courage that have not distinguished it. What of Chicago's public opinion? In the last analysis

Chicago can be redeemed only by the people of Chicago. As to the reaction of the people of Chicago to the Zuta disclosures, there can be no question if the necessary leadership is furnished in pitiless publicity and official capacity and determination.

The truth, however obvious, cannot be asserted and repeated with too much emphasis. The truth is that the books of Zuta are the books of every other gangster in Chicago and everywhere else. Organized lawlessness flourishes only by permission, connivance and spoils-sharing of corrupt officials.

A PROBLEM IN PSYCHOLOGY

Profiteering has come back into the vocabulary of America with the suddenness of a cyclone. We thought that with the end of the World War we had seen the last of this ugly form of theft. But the soaring prices of certain commodities suggest that profiteering is with us again.

It should be borne in mind, however, that prices are almost invariably the normal resultant of the demand and the supply for any sort of merchandise.

There is no reason, to begin with, why the coming season should be a "hard winter," at least not any more than the present season is a "hard summer." If consumers as a whole will take the pains to buy intelligently, avoiding those commodities which are too costly, the profiteering scare will evaporate shortly.

In those isolated cases where jobbers jockey the prices of their goods Government action should be taken. But such cases will be rare unless the public falls prey to the psychology of a bull market in foods, somewhat in the fashion of the late and lamented bull market in stocks.

The American people are assured by no less an authority than President Hoover that there is an adequate supply of food for human consumption. It remains for the people to make their purchases with discernment and prices will remain at wholesome levels, and in the cases where they have soared will return to equitable levels.

BANISHING "MOTHER"

The American "youth movement," we are told, insists that "Mother" must be abandoned. We are told that "Father" and "Mother" imply a subservience out of all harmony with the cynical omission of emancipated souls who are looking forward to fullest exemplification of their "careers," "self-expression" and the sloppy silliness of hard-boiled cynicism which has grown to regard normal affection for parents as an interference with the freedom to which their colossal degeneracy entitles them.

So Mother is to become "Kate," or "Fannie," or "Sal," or "Old Girl," or "Sis." Well, the biological relation between parent and child perhaps is a bit singular. To the "enlightened" and "emancipated" progeny of the adolescent age of the present it indeed may be something to be ashamed of!

True parenthood will never be dragged into the slime of abnormal perversion such as is here manifest in the contemplation of "liberated souls." No child born of woman that is worthy to live will ever forget or fail to experience and express the love, reverence and devotion which are a mother's due.

There is no name below the stars so sweet as that of Mother. It stings in the soul of every worthy while mortal so long as life may last. It will take more than the hard-boiled cynicism and mocking mushiness of biological youthful oral derelicts to banish a name and designation dear in the thought of angels and or normally human men and women since the beginnings of the race.

MORE OR LESS TRUE

Still, when you consider how fool men fall for the baloney a vamp hands out, it's not surprising they believe the label on the stuff the bootlegger sells.

Another thing that gives us a laugh is a grass widow who got her divorce in Paris feeling superior to one who got hers in the old home town.

Giving ash trays as prizes of afternoon bridge clubs is bad enough, but the worst won't have happened till cute little cupidons also become appropriate prizes for the ladies to give and receive.

Conceit is something there would be very little of in the world if we could see ourselves as others see us.

The only more foolish way to waste time than looking for a needle in a haystack is to look for a square meal in a dinette.

Now and then we pass a Jane who looks as if she were trying to break the record for wearing the shortest skirt the longest.

There are a few married women who write the heart throbbing editors for advice on what to do with a rantankerous lesser half, but most of them feel between their own tongues and the rolling pins they can inflict all the punishment necessary.

Women like the newspapers for the bargains advertised in 'em, but the news they enjoy most is published by the gossips.

Nothing makes a modern girl more wild than having her boy friend hint she ought to become domestic after they are married.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
In the District Court of Cass county, Nebraska.

In the Matter of the Application of Carl D. Ganz, Administrator C. T. A. De Bonis Non, for License to Sell Real Estate.

Now on this 2nd day of August, 1930, this cause came on to be heard on the duly verified petition of Carl D. Ganz, Administrator of the Estate of Sarah Thimgan, deceased, praying for license to sell so much of the following described real estate:

Lots seven, eight, nine (7, 8, 9) and the South half (S½) of Lot six (6), in Block three (3), in the Village of Murdock, Cass county, Nebraska—as to bring the sum of at least Seventeen Hundred Dollars ($1,700.00) for the payment of debts against the estate of said deceased and expense of administration and costs.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before me at chambers in the City of Plattsmouth in said county, on the 16th day of September, 1930, to show cause, if any there be, why a license should not be granted to the said Carl D. Ganz, Administrator of the Estate of Sarah Thimgan, deceased, of the above described real estate as shall be necessary to pay said debts and expenses.

It is further ordered that a copy of this Order be served on all persons interested in this estate by publication for four successive weeks in the Plattsmouth Journal, a newspaper published and of general circulation in Cass county, Nebraska.

By the Court,
JAMES T. BEGLEY,
District Judge.
