A GREAT ROAD CONFERENCE

The problems surrounding road building throughout the world were aired and discussed at the recent Sixth Annual International Road Congress in Washington, D. C. One thousand representatives from 61 nations attended.

Among the most important reports read to the Congress were those dealing with the use of asphalt, tar and bitumen. In presenting conclusions regarding the use of these, it was declared that "the rapid increase in the adoption of surface treatments to produce thin mat surfaces, upon gravel, stone and slag roads for light and medium traffic is probably the outstanding recent development." This should be of great interest to the many states which are seeking a way out of the rural road problem. Agriculture has reached a point where year-round farm-to-market roads are essential to future progress, both social and economic. Five million of the 6,250,000 American farmers are now cut off from their markets during a part of each year by impassable roads.

Good surfaces of asphaltic character can be laid over many existing roads at a low original cost, and maintenance costs are likewise small. Good roads are an investment that pay returns to the taxpayers in more prosperous farm conditions, in increased tourist travel and stimulated trade in small towns and villages.

Weeping Water Ladies Band of Forty Years Ago

Interesting Article On Band With Picture Given by the State Journal on Sunday

Forty years ago the most popular musical organization in south-eastern Nebraska was the Weeping Water Ladies' band. In existence from about 1887 to 1890 it was much in demand in nearby towns. The band was organized by T. R. Boone, a Weeping Water merchant who was musically inclined, and the young women who made up its personnel were already musicians, several of them having studied piano at the old Weeping Water academy.

The opening of the Waubesa bridge at Nebraska City, Oct. 18, brought back clearly to Mr. Boone and to Mrs. Boone, who was solo cornetist of the ladies' band, the circumstances of the Burlington bridge opening at Nebraska City in 1888, at which members of the band were not only performers but honored guests. Mr. and Mrs. Boone are now living at 530 North Fourteenth street in Lincoln. Another member of the old band is Mrs. Furlman, then Etta Fitchie. She is now one of the Weeping Water members. Miss Edith Clizbie, another member, is still living at Weeping Water. Some of the group have left this part of the country, others have passed away.

Other bands played at the dedication, but the ladies were shown the honors, being placed at the head of the procession, and given first place on the program on a large stand that was erected in the park. Later they were invited to the home of J. Sterling Morton, where ice cream was served to the band and where they played on the lawn, later being invited inside to play especially for Mr. Morton.

The town was to be their host at supper at the hotel and there was some concern over their staying so long at the beautiful Morton home. Mr. Morton assured them that he would see that the train was held until supper was finished, and they were taken to the train in a carriage. There was some jeering at the station, Mr. and Mrs. Boone remember, that the train should have been kept waiting an hour for "only a ladies' band."

The implication evidently was that ladies should not be so much bother and not that ladies' bands were common. As they recall it, it was the only such organization in the state at that time. Lincoln, early residents of the city recall, had a ladies' band in the late seventies.

Altho it was in the days when ladies "kept their places pretty much in the background, the young women who made up the band were not unduly overcome by the situation. All, even to the little twelve year old Mable Swearingen, were pianists and had appeared in public. Mr. and Mrs. Boone had recently married and acted as chaperons for the girls. With the exception of the derisive crowd at the train they were treated with entire deference and respect.

Demure as the ladies' band looked in the picture Mrs. Boone says that it enjoyed a great deal of innocent fun during the three years of its existence. It was organized to play during some political campaign and continued its playing until one or two of the members went elsewhere, which broke up the band. The costumes were blue tannet trimmed with gilt braid. The hats, set at a great variety of jaunty angles, were decorated with silk flags.

The personnel of the band was as follows: Louis Marshall, Mrs. William Jameson, Ona Woodard, Dora Swearingen, Etta Fitchie, May Clizbie, Myrtle Barnes, Lillian Swearingen, Mr. Boone, Mrs. Boone (before her marriage Myra Lanphere), Mable Swearingen and Edith Clizbie.

Of the members of the band, Miss Lillian Swearingen, later was Mrs. L. K. Hasse and for years clerk in the office of the county judge, while Miss Mable Swearingen is now Mrs. Henry Weidman of Chicago, and well known in this city.

WHEAT POOL FACING A LOSS

Winnipeg—Premier John Bracken of Manitoba Tuesday said that unless wheat prices improve losses to the western governments in the Canadian wheat pool guarantee may exceed ten million dollars. The governments of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta guaranteed bank payments to the pool in financing the 1929 crop. In discussing the 110,000,000 figure, Premier Bracken said, "One cannot say positively until the crop is sold. Unless, however, the prices improve, the losses probably will be greater than the figure quoted."

Regina, Sask.—"The statement is not correct," said Premier Anderson Tuesday when shown a dispatch quoting Premier Bracken of Manitoba as saying that unless wheat prices improved the losses to the western provinces involved in wheat pool guarantees would exceed $10,000,000. Premier Anderson said he believed the Manitoba premier had made no such statement.

Iowa Highway is a Great Piece of Road Work

New Highway From Missouri River to Glenwood Planned for Permanence by Engineers

The new highway from the east end of the new Missouri river traffic bridge to the city of Glenwood, Iowa, is a real piece of work from the engineering standpoint and is constructed with the view of permanence that marks the Iowa highway system. The roadbed has been built up to a height that will eliminate any possible overflow in the lowlands along the river bottoms, or the creeks that pass through the west part of Mills county. The engineers have provided for the drainage of the land through which the road passes by large and well built bridges and culverts that will be ample for many years to come in handling the demands that may be made on the road.

The road construction has extended now to the outskirts of Glenwood and the contractors on the road grading are expecting to reach their final goal in the next two or three days along the west, the gravel for this section is now just at the approach to the city.

Already the contractors on the graveling of the roadway from the east are ready to start from Glenwood to work west to meet the section of gravel that is now being laid from the west, the gravel for this west section coming from the Bell pits near this city.

The new road has been straightened as far as practical and where possible the dangerous curves have been eliminated and when the road has had time to settle and the gravel has been thoroughly placed it is going to make a real highway and one over which the motorist can enjoy traveling.

This highway from Glenwood will be designated as highway No. 134 to connect here with the Nebraska highway of this number on the east with Iowa highway No. 34.

In this highway as well as the other fine paved and gravelled roads over our neighboring state the highway commission is to be congratulated on the fine work they have secured and H. A. Darting, of Glenwood, a member of the commission, has been a real worker in making Iowa one of the best states in the United States from the standpoint of good roads.

TRUCK DRIVER WINS INJURY DAMAGES

Lincoln, Oct. 28.—In alighting from his own truck to aid another trucker whose machine had skidded from the pavement, R. M. Price, Fremont, was pursuing duties incident to his own employment and is entitled to aid under the state labor law for injuries he suffered as a result, the compensation board ruled Tuesday.

Price was injured near Sioux City when he stopped to aid the other driver. His employer declined to assume liability but the commission held he should be paid $15 a month until able to resume work.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Copy for this Department furnished by County Agent

Circular on How to Roast Turkeys.

A new Extension circular on how to roast turkeys will soon be ready for distribution at the Agricultural College and at the office of the county extension agents. The new circular is number 999 and has been prepared by Miss Florence Atwood, Foods Specialist of the Extension Service. The circular was prepared in connection with another new extension circular about the dressing, grading and marketing of turkeys.

Preparation of the fowl for the oven, the roasting process, how to tell when the turkey is done and recipes for stuffing and dressing are included in the circular. The first few paragraphs deal with carving turkey and are thought to be of interest particularly to young husbands who will preside at the Thanksgiving feast this year for the first time. If you are interested in having this circular, write or call the Farm Bureau office.

Analyze Working Methods.

Some interesting discoveries have been made by the women who are taking the project work on Conventional Home Equipment and Accounts. Since starting the work they have taken time to analyze many of their methods and have found that in many instances there is an easier and quicker way of doing some of the every day tasks. For instance, a right handed person will save time and motions by working right to left. Stack soiled dishes on drain board, service wagon or table to right of dishpan. Have drainer or rinsing pan at left of dish pan. Have place to stack or put away clean dishes at left of drainer.

To prevent small rugs from slipping on a polish floor, sew fruit jar rings or a piece of rubber tubing to each corner of the rug. Every task involves a set of motions on the part of the worker and many of the motions we have been in the habit of using are really needless. Why not join a project club and have the benefit of the many tricks which these women are finding helpful.

132 Cass County Farmers Keeping a Farm Account Book.

One hundred and nine farmers completed farm account books last year and 132 have books this year. The average labor and management wage for the 109 farms last year was $1,578. The average of the 20 most profitable was $4,112. The 20 least profitable was $216.00.

The size of the farm in crops, produce, livestock, return per $100 invested in cattle, hogs and poultry; and return per $100 worth of feed fed, are a few of the factors that are figured out for those keeping accounts.

These record books are well distributed over the county. With a few exceptions the precincts have the following numbers: South Bend, 6; Louisville, 7; Nehawka, 10; Liberty, 13; Plattsmouth, 16; Tipton, 14; Weeping Water, 18; Center, 16; Avoca, 7; Greenwood, 14; Stove Creek, 9, and Elmwood, 2.

What Does it Cost to Operate a Corn Picker?

Six farmers in Cass county are keeping a Cost Account record on their corn-pickers this year to help solve this problem. These records were sent through the county agent's office from the College of Agriculture.

The summary of these records from all over the state on many makes of pickers will give very valuable information as to costs of operations. Any one wishing to keep a record on his machine may inquire at the Farm Bureau office for the blanks.

Exhibit at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Vincent and Frances Rehmeier, John Day, Glen Heneger and Milford Smith, 4-H Club members of Weeping Water are exhibiting their Baby Beeves, Fat Barrows and Fat Wether Lambs at Ak-Sar-Ben, which starts October 31st.—D. EINSTEIN PRAISED BY SHAW

New York—Three thousand miles across the Atlantic the voices of George Bernard Shaw and Prof. Albert Einstein came to the western world Tuesday almost as distinctly as tho they had traveled only a few yards. Shaw and Einstein spoke at a dinner given in honor of the latter at London by the joint British committee for the promotion of the physical and economic welfare of eastern Jewry.

Shaw in a speech that kept his British audience chuckling most of the time introduced Einstein and proposed a toast to him as "the greatest of our contemporaries." Einstein responded in German. Shaw placed Einstein among "the men who are great among great men."
