Farm Girls Put Records Beside Their Brothers

Canning, Preserving and Home Decorating Show Results of Progress

Chicago—How the farmer's daughter is matching the progress being made in agriculture with progress in the arts of home-making is demonstrated in exhibits at the 4-H Club building at the International Livestock Exposition here.

Men as well as women look admiringly at the displays of glass jars of wild blackberry jam from Washington, eggs from Florida, ground-cherries from Minnesota, peas from Massachusetts, each jar the work of a 4-H Club girl who has learned new and better ways of preserving the products of the farm.

Some of the contestants presented a series of jars, the contents of which would make an entire meal. They called it an "emergency shelf." When the snow piles high around the farmhouse and a trip to town is out of the question, the modern farm girl can take down the result of her summer labors. Florence Dressel of Logan County, Oklahoma, who won a championship for her canning, offered as a menu a dinner of baked chicken, mashed potatoes, hot biscuits and watermelon preserves with fruit for dessert.

Interior decorating, an art of the modern farm girl, is also exhibited here. Mail order catalogue furniture has no appeal for these 4-H clubbers. They have learned to appreciate the old things to be found in many a farm loft and they have acquired the skill of restoring them.

Ruth Stokes, an Iowa farm girl, who won the blue ribbon in the home improvement contest, showed good taste in her use of old things, possessions of the pioneer grandparents. "Sentiment, coupled with limited means, kept my family from discarding them," she said, thankfully. To the exposition she has brought the actual pieces she refinished for her study corner. In dressmaking the girls proved themselves not only skillful technicians but good stylists. Their outfits have the smart simplicity that one finds in the more expensive shops. Ruthe Nance of Fulton County, Georgia, won the blue ribbon for a clothing exhibit.

Women play a larger part in the live-stock show itself than would appear at first glance. Just as the farm itself is a partnership of man and woman, so are many of the stock exhibits. After the judging is over and the interested onlookers gather about the grand champions, it is not at all unusual to find the entire family of the winning farmer gathered proudly about the animal. And usually, mother and the girls give out important facts about the champion with as much authority as the men folks. At the exposition, however, they prefer to keep in the background.

DRY ACT REPEAL URGED

Washington—A call from three prominent democrats for repeal of the eighteenth amendment was sounded Friday night before a gathering of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. Senator Tydings of Maryland, joined with Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, and Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pittsburgh, in contending that prohibition had failed and in forecasting its early abolition. Tydings, who led a fight last session against poisoning of alcohol by the government said he believed in the recent elections "the death knell was sounded to ten years of barbarism."

"The wets," the Marylander added, "are not opposed to law and order, and do not believe that legislative acts, even if apparently inequitable, should be ignored, but they do not believe that 531 persons sitting on Capitol Hill should regulate the individual lives of persons in every hamlet and city of the country."

No Attempt Likely for Cut in Income Taxes

Reduced Rates Effective Past Year to Lapse; Old Ones Restored—On March Returns

Washington, D. C., Dec. 5.—The question of a continuation of this year's income tax rates is now regarded as definitely settled. No serious attempt for new legislation will apparently be made in the present session in view of the recommendation of President Hoover and Secretary Mellon against a continuation of the lower rates. In the absence of further legislation the lower rates lapse and the rates in effect prior to this year are restored.

There are individual senators and representatives who believe the administration could have made possible by temporary financing expedients the continuation of the reduced income tax rates. They will be powerless, however, to do anything about it in view of the fact that members of the house ways and means committee, which would have to originate legislation, and the senate finance committee, which would have charge of it whenever it reached the senate, are overwhelmingly in favor of abiding by the recommendation of the president and Secretary Mellon.

The individual income tax rates which will be in effect for returns to be filed in March on 1930 incomes for which taxes are paid in 1931, will be 1 1/2 per cent on the first four thousand dollars of taxable income; 3 per cent on the next four thousand dollars, and 5 per cent on the remainder of the taxable net income. —World-Herald

Iowa Gathers Some More Hog Championships

Prize Stock at Chicago Bring About Ten Times Market Prices—Show Ends Today.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 5.—There's a white pen over in the swine barn of the International Live Stock Exposition with a big green sign that says: "Grand Champion Barrow."

But the sleek white hog that lies in the straw of the banner-decked stall won't be there much longer. He was sold today for 76 cents a pound to a Chicago hotel and brought $205 to Albert H. Stuart of Newhall, Ia., his owner.

It was selling day at the exposition, with auctioneers rattling up prices well above the regular market for the peers of the meat animals. While Stuart was getting $76 a hundred for his barrow at the show, hogs of the same class were going at $3.25 on the Chicago market.

Railroads Buyers.
Sarah Ann Tolson of Farmingdale, Ill., got $1.25 a pound for her junior feeding champion steer—a total of $574—while the cattle that came into Chicago without ribbons today were drawing only $11.25 a hundred. The Wabash railway was the buyer.

The grand champion wether, from the University of Wisconsin, was bought by the Burlington railway for $35 a hundred, compared with today's regular quotation of $8.75 top.

New Iowa Awards.
Iowa collected three more grand championships in the breeding swine division, taking purple ribbons for both boar and sow in the Hampshire division through entries of R. L. Pemberton of Toledo, and for Spotted Poland China boar, entered by I. C. Lister of Pulaski. The premier Spotted Poland China sow was shown by Witt Farms of Hillsboro, Ind.

Otha Wyrick of Kempton, Ind., brought the champion Sylesdals stallion to the show, and E. A. Jones & Sons of Banger, Wis., had the champion mare. The eight-day show will close tomorrow with the matinee and evening horse show.

OFFICIALS ACCUSED OF CENSUS PADDING

Topeka—The supreme court heard arguments Friday on an application seeking suspension of the three Osage county commissioners pending the outcome of a hearing on the charges of census padding. A. A. Hotchkiss, Osage county attorney, in reviewing the state's charges said the commissioner had added names to the county enumeration for the purpose of keeping in the 20,000 population classification. A total below that minimum would have resulted in salary reductions for county officials.

Testing Power of U. S. Radio Commission

Protests Against Orders Are Taken Up to Supreme Court—Issues Presented.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Federal control over broadcasting was attacked today in the supreme court.

Two cases from Chicago challenged radio commission authority to require stations to cease broadcasting or to reduce power and change wave lengths.

Congress directed the commission to zone the country and regulate broadcasting. Under this the commission ordered Chilton R. White, operating station WCRW at Chicago, to reduce power and refused to renew the licenses of stations WMBB and WOK at Homewood, near Chicago, operated by the American Bond and Mortgage company and by Triunion, Incorporated.

The stations, claiming property rights protected by the constitution, challenged its authority but the federal district court at Chicago sustained the commission. The circuit court of appeals asked for instructions on various constitutional questions.

Solicitor General Thatcher, for the commission, contended it not only could exercise a regulatory power, but could refuse to renew old licenses when such action was deemed necessary to improve radio reception.

Counsel for the broadcasters said congress had made no provision to compensation them for the property which the commission's order would destroy and that the radio acts it had passed were therefore invalid.—World-Herald.
