The chief speaker of the evening will be Coach W. H. Browne of the University of Nebraska football team and former coach of the Lincoln high school for a great many years and who will have a clean cut and interesting message for the Plattsmouth boys.

EXPLAINS LEGION'S STAND

Boston—Dr. Neil D. Williams, first national vice commander of the American legion, whose statement regarding payment in full of adjusted veterans' compensation certificates aroused protests from several legion executives Monday, spoke at a banquet here Saturday. He took the place of National Commander O'Neill, who is ill.

"The American Legion does not want to deviate from its legislative program," Dr. Williams said. "We desire to take care of disabled veterans first of all. We are for the payment of adjusted compensation, in principle, but we favor no special plans and we will look with disfavour on any individual who tries to disrupt our program."

Congressman Patman of Texas, who Monday asserted in Washington that the legion's legislative agent in Washington was obstructing passage of adjusted compensation legislation, was also present at the banquet and called for payment.

Roy Cochran to Stay on Job as State Engineer

Official Announcement Lacking But Retention Indicated—Bryan Appears to Be Satisfied

State Engineer Roy Cochran is to stay on his job as the supervising and planning head of Nebraska's highway organization, under Governor Bryan.

All the signs point to this, although no official announcement of the fact has been made at the capitol and not a word on the subject has come from either of the two men.

It has not escaped notice, however, that a month has passed since Bryan was inaugurated as governor in which he has had ample time to put a new man in charge of highway construction and maintenance if he intended to do so.

That no such step has been taken is regarded as the best evidence that none will be.

Other departments under the governor's control are in new hands. The public works department alone has not been disturbed to date. Its affairs are running along smoothly, and apparently a good understanding exists at this time between Governor Bryan and State Engineer Cochran.

Just how this situation came about, after the public had been given to understand in statements issued by Mr. Bryan previous to his taking office that he contemplated changing the personnel of the highway department, has not been made clear. Perhaps, like Topsy, it "just grew." Perhaps the governor had more trouble than he anticipated in finding another man with the requisite qualifications and experience.

It may be, too, that his opinion has somewhat to do with it.

Laying Out Year's Program.
Whatever the explanation, it is a fact that Governor Bryan now seems to be satisfied to keep Cochran and make use of the latter's long experience and familiarity with the state's highway problems.

Probably it was not hard for the governor to come to this conclusion, in view of the fact that he first selected and appointed Cochran to the state engineer's post in 1923. That two republican governors subsequently made use of Cochran's services in the same position and claimed credit for extensive roadbuilding during their respective administrations, was, in one sense, a compliment to the executive who found the right man for the job.

One thing that undoubtedly influenced Bryan in favor of retaining Cochran was the urgent pressure upon his administration for speeding up in view of the fact that he first set work throughout the state in order to take advantage of 1 1/2 million dollars of federal funds that are available to Nebraska this year but must be spent by September 1 under the terms of the act by congress appropriating the money.

Shipping up such a big program, on top of the regular amount of construction operations to be carried out during the 1931 season with gasoline tax revenue and federal aid, was too big an undertaking for any green hand to tackle. Governor Bryan, as a good business man, knew this. And that is probably the one big reason why Roy Cochran remains state engineer.

Saved Wood and Said Nothing.
During all the time that the question of Cochran's reappointment was hanging fire, when criticisms of his anticipated dismissal by Governor Bryan were drawing fire from many sources, the state engineer had nothing to say. He declined to be drawn into a controversy involving his tenure as a state official, but kept right on with the performance of his duties.

Friends of Cochran are aware that he had more than one string to his bow. In all likelihood he could have stepped right into another job paying as much salary, or more. Some men would have quit then and there in disgust. But the state engineer "kept sweet and did nothing to rattle the situation." He has the diplomatic temperament combined with the habit of a soldier (he is a World war veteran and a United States reserve officer) to keep plugging along at the business in hand and let other matters take care of themselves.

When the time came for Governor Bryan to assume responsibility for the conduct of the state government, there were many things demanding Bryan's attention. There were appointive positions to be filled, conferences to be held with state senators and representatives, departmental policies to be put under way, and the financial budget to prepare for submission to the legislature.

Ah yes, the budget. That was a big task. And the biggest and most important feature of it was the spending of about $24,000,000 in the next biennium for highways.

Got State Engineer's Advice.
And who was there to advise Mr. Bryan on this score of the budget? Why, Roy Cochran, to be sure—the same whom Bryan had called to the job eight years before and who has been on it ever since.

About that time, too, the state senate was arching up its back and showing its teeth to the governor because he had named "deputy secretaries" in code departments and waited to submit their names for confirmation. If Bryan had "fired" Cochran at that juncture, it would doubtless have touched off some imposing fireworks in the senate.

The movement to take the highway department out of the governor's hands and turn it over to a special commission might easily have become formidable in the legislature.

Governor Bryan didn't do what his critics would like to have him do. He cited Cochran to the governor because he had named "deputy secretaries" in code departments and waited to submit their names for confirmation. If Bryan had "fired" Cochran at that juncture, it would doubtless have touched off some imposing fireworks in the senate.

Bulls Force Stocks Up to New Levels

4,800,000-Share-Day Sets New Record; Values Are Highest Since Mid-October.

New York, Feb. 10.—Feverish speculation such as Wall street has known in months swept through the stock market Tuesday, boosting aggregate share values to the best level since mid-October.

The more popular shares ended the day $1 to $14 higher, and the day's transfers in the stock exchange swelled to 4,800,000 shares, 700,000 more than Monday's, and the largest since Dec. 17. The sweeping advance met more resistance than it did Monday, however, and the net progress, as measured by the price index of 90 leading issues, was only a little more than half as wide.

The advance, which started with an unexpected, explosive bull drive late in Saturday's trading, has in three days added more than $2,000,000,000 to the aggregate quoted value of all shares listed on the stock exchange, or more than the total gain of a month of January.

While the vigor of the upturn has been attributed to a well-organized assault by powerful professional operators against a nonovercrowded and largely amateur bear interest, commission houses reported that speculative contagion was again spreading among the general public.

The advance in stocks was accompanied by a flurry of bullishness in the wheat market, and July and September deliveries shot up about 2 and 3 cents a bushel. While bears were having difficulties in stocks, the upsurge of grain prices was accompanied by vague and unconfirmed rumors that the great Russian bear was in trouble.

In addition to wheat, cotton was also strong, and closed in the New York market $1 to $1.20 a bale higher.

Copper was quoted 9 3/4 cents a pound, up 1/4 of a cent from its recent 35-year low, and was so actively bought that there was talk in trade circles of still higher prices.

The bullish developments in commodity prices were accompanied also by good news from the steel industry. The United States Steel Corp. reported a gain in bookings of new business in January leaving an increase of 188,755 tons in unfilled orders at the end of the month, the largest January gain since 1928.—Omaha Bee-News.

LYLE STIRS $100,000 SUIT BY THOMPSON
Chicago, Feb. 10.—Edward O. Higgins, attorney for Mayor William H. Thompson, announced Tuesday that he had filed suit for the mayor for $100,000 damages against Judge John H. Lyle, based on statements in Lyle's majority campaign speech Monday night.

Higgins said Lyle, who is contesting with the mayor for the republican nomination in the primaries Feb. 24, charged Thompson with misuse and misappropriation of public funds.

PROTEST OIL IMPORT CUT

Washington, Feb. 9.—Proposed legislation to restrict importations of foreign oil into the United States loomed Monday night as a possible source of foreign protest.

While State department and Venezuelan legation officials declined to comment on the international aspects of the Capper bill to impose limitations on foreign petroleum importations, reliable reports in official circles were that Venezuela had represented the bill as discriminatory.

Jobs Increase as Chicago Fair Work is Pushed

Many Are Employed in Building Activities and Allied Businesses

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Construction of the Chicago World's Fair is getting under way at a rate which is reported as being better than that of the previous Chicago Exposition and others—actually 15 to 18 months ahead of several great fairs, and to that extent is helping to relieve unemployment.

With more than two years to go before the opening date, June 1, 1933, the exposition has completed an Administration Building, a copy of Fort Dearborn, and the main features of a giant Travel and Transportation Building. The last can be used at once for conventions, the fairgrounds are being improved, and a highway drive to relieve world's fair traffic is also nearly completed.

A large building program is ready to launch April 1. An electrical building and a big edifice to house collective displays of industry are first on the list.

Many more will find work indirectly as a result. But it will not be easy to estimate their numbers for they will be workers in steel mills and other plants which make materials for the exposition buildings. Following the trend of mass production, the architects of the exposition are using materials which can be made ready for use in the factory.

Other buildings are expected to follow shortly after these two.

There is enough money. Curtailment of the original layout was necessary because of the business situation and plans had to be revised. A number of times to keep them within the means of the exposition, Rufus Dawes, the president, was determined that it should be kept on a strict "pay-as-you-go" basis.

But now that the outlines are decided upon there is no lack of cash. At present $6,500,000 is ready for the officials to call for it. This is in pledges of bonds. Banks and Chicago citizens promised to buy bonds amounting to $13,500,000 backed by 40 per cent of the prospective gate receipts. Less than a third of this amount has been called.

Another spring construction project is 21 acres of new land, an extension to the island upon which the electrical exhibit building will stand. The South Park Board, which will direct the work, has enough funds on hand to carry out this $650,000 project, according to George T. Donoghue, superintendent.

Cattle Testing Appeal Pushed

Program for Eradication of Tuberculosis Up Despite Bryan—Two Strong Appeals Prepared

Figures showing savings to Nebraska farmers because of the state's cattle tuberculosis testing and an appeal to maintain the testing program because of its importance to the dairy industry have been sent to members of the Nebraska legislature by groups interested in maintaining the state government's efforts at tuberculosis eradication.

Support for the program was wiped out in Governor Bryan's budget recommendations to the legislature. Two strong appeals have been prepared, one by H. C. Johnson, president of the Nebraska State Dairyman's association, and one by F. S. Rickard, secretary of the Omaha livestock exchange.

"With Nebraska fast becoming one of the leading dairy states," wrote Mr. Johnson, "the public demanding high quality dairy products, many large cities requiring milk sold to be free from tuberculosis germs, together with the fact that no few cities have ordinances requiring all manufactured dairy products be made from tuberculosis free milk, the question of tuberculosis eradication in livestock becomes of much importance."

"I brought these facts to the attention of Governor Charles Bryan before his budget message was delivered and urged him to lend his support for a successful completion of the program to eradicate tuberculosis from livestock in Nebraska. Governor Bryan failed to see the necessity of continuing the program. I desire to urge your support of appropriations sufficient for continuing this splendid work."

Government handling of tubercular animals slaughtered at Omaha is described in the message of Mr. Rickard to the legislators. Farmers receive for their cattle agreed sums less deductions for tubercular cattle.

"You will note," comments Rickard, "that Nebraska farmers received $2.24 per head more average salvage than did Iowa and $4.34 per more than New York and $5.20 more than the average for the United States."

"This same record also indicates that Iowa taxpayers paid $319,462.11 to owners of reactor cattle as state indemnity. New York paid $2,397,371.16 while Nebraska paid $50,481.32. In Montana where the salvage is paid to the state the average amount on all reactor cattle slaughtered covered by this report was $10.75 per head. In the entire forty-eight states all of which are operating under this co-operative plan, Nebraska takes fourth place in the average amount of salvage paid farmers for reactor cattle."

POSTOFFICE LEASE INQUIRY

Washington—Senator Blaine said Sunday night he expected to produce "further evidence" of the use of political pressure to prevent a second grand jury investigation of the St. Paul commercial postoffice station lease. The chairman of the committee investigating postoffice leases also predicted the inquiry would show the postoffice department's leasing policy had been unwise and "negligent almost to the extent of culpability." He has indicated an attempt was made to block the St. Paul investigation for fear it would "blow up" the presidential campaign of 1928, in the midst of which the grand jury was scheduled to meet to inquire further into the lease which had been pronounced fraudulent by a previous jury.

Blaine announced his committee will begin a series of daily hearings Tuesday which will last virtually to the end of the session.

Bill for Repeal of Party Circle Beaten in House

Had Twice Weathered Sharp Attacks; Vote is Close—Early Backers Changed Stand

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 9.—After twice weathering the storm of heated debate in the house of representatives, the Porter bill to abolish the party circle from the general election ballot was killed by that body this afternoon by a vote of 48 to 47. Fifty-one votes were required to pass it.

Party lines held tight, with the exception of about a dozen members. Representatives Bobbit and Jellen of Omaha left the rest of the democrats to vote against final passage of the measure. Representative J. Crounce of Omaha, who had voted for the bill in committee of the whole, was not present when the roll was called today. Representative Jellen of Omaha had also voted for the bill in committee of the whole, but opposed it today.

F. J. Klopffing of Wayne and Mark Lukens of Bloomfield, both democrats, who supported the bill previously, were absent today.

Republicans who left the majority to support the bill today were Allen Burke, Bawaroff, Marlan Cushing, Ord, L. T. Hunt, Syracuse, Fred Mason, Upland, J. Morrow, Seward, Obed Raasch, Norfolk, and E. H. Sorenson, St. Paul.

The bill had previously been advanced to third reading from the committee of the whole by a vote of 50 to 47.

Call of House Made

The first roll call on the bill brought the house nearly to disorder. As the vote was announced as 48 for passage and 47 against, G. R. Curry (rep.) of Arapahoe, moved for a call of the house and demanded that the galleries be cleared. The request was supported by four members and the search for absent representatives began.

The tide swerved to the opponents of the measure, however, as J. L. Bishop (rep.) of Lincoln, arrived and voted "no."

The margin of defeat grew wider as George M. Story (rep.) of Platteview changed his vote to no, and J. E. Reed (rep.) of Havelock, arrived and also cast his lot with opponents of the bill.

Repeated attempts to round up the absentees failed and the democratic forces could not swerve Crounce and Sheldon, who declined to vote one way or the other.

After both factions had jockeyed back and forth for more than 15 minutes, the republicans succeeded in raising the call, only to have another invoked by Speaker Max Klier when George W. Mallory of Greeley, democratic floor leader, tried vainly to stem defeat by temporarily changing his vote to gain another hunt for members.

Curry, however, again called to raise it, and this time he succeeded. —World-Herald
