GETTING THE ARSONIST. The conviction of 52 arsonists in Illinois last year established a new high record for the division of fire prevention, according to S. L. Leggett, State Fire Marshal. This success, he says, was made in face of the fact that Illinois has experienced its most serious wave of arson during the past two years.

In Illinois deputy fire marshals investigate all suspicious fires and follow up clues. Community cooperation, through local arson squads, has been helpful in directing the attention of the authorities to cases that might otherwise have been overlooked. The passage of a new arson law, containing a sliding scale of penalties making it possible to fit the punishment to the seriousness of the crime, has been of assistance.

All states would do well to follow the example of Illinois. Arson, one of the most despicable of crimes, is likewise one of the most difficult to conquer. The arsonist works most stealthily and can only be traced by expert investigators. He causes a gigantic annual destruction of property and life. Every time one of his kind is convicted it is, in the fullest sense of the word, a public service.

Fewer Bees are Being Kept in Nebraska, Report

Yield of Honey Shows Increase But the Number of Hives in the State Show Decrease.

The increase of honey due to a 10 per cent increase in yield per colony last year was almost offset by the reduced number of colonies in Nebraska. The price was somewhat lower, says the state and federal division of agricultural statistics. The bee industry needs more support for cleaning up foul broods and reduction in the assessed value per colony.

Final estimates on the 1930 crop total 2,651,352 pounds as compared with 2,530,920 pounds in 1929. The average yield per colony was 66 pounds, an increase of 10 per cent over the average yield of 60 pounds in 1929. The price was a little lower, averaging 11 cents per pound as compared to 12 cents a year ago. The crop is valued at $291,649 against $303,710 for the 1929 crop.

There was more direct marketing of honey to consumers or retailers during the past year. The increase in honey production since that swept across the capitol from the house by means of direct sales to consumers or retailers instead of selling to whole sale dealers. This situation is general thruout the country says the United States department of agriculture.

Honey is now being offered in attractive containers to grocers and other retailers in local areas. Some bee-keepers are making "cream of honey" by running granulated honey thru a grinder, which makes a very pleasing product. This is developing a consumer taste for honey on waffles and pancakes, in particular.

Some bee-keepers, according to the department, have arranged with the dairymen to handle honey, others are devising in local papers and developing the parcel post business. Roadside honey stands are also increasing in some localities. Direct mail selling is being developed by circularizing people whose names appear in telephone directories.

Opportunities for bee-keeping are outstanding in Nebraska. These crops do not yield as much nectar in eastern Nebraska. The bee industry needs more support to eliminate foul brood which cause severe losses. The assessed valuation of bees should be reduced since colonies are being acquired at twice their sale value. A little more support and the encouragement would stimulate another branch of Nebraska's highly diversified agriculture.

RUSSIANS BACK TO FARMS. Moscow—Soviet Russia is going "back to the farm," according to figures just issued by the government. During the last ten days in January and the first ten in February a total of 726,000 families joined the collective farms, the figures show. This migration is the greatest in history. Development of these farms has always been the backbone of the soviet movement. The word "joined" is used by the government as meaning that these families have made application to enter the collective farms. The majority will be accepted.

In contrast to the present situation, the government was having difficulty getting families for the farms last year and almost had to force the peasants to return to the soil. It is estimated that the collective farms will cultivate 66,000,000 hectares of land in 1931.

WOULD LOWER TARIFF WALL

Washington—The democratic party was called upon by Representative Cordell Hull to place economic problems, including the tariff and commercial policy, first on its program for the next two years. The Tennessee senator-elect and former chairman of the democratic national committee issued a formal statement asserting "high tariff walls here and everywhere have constituted the greatest single underlying cause of the present world economic collapse."

Reviewing trade, unemployment and other conditions, Hull demanded "a re-examination of our tariff rate structure with the view to its readjustment to a decent level."

On Wednesday evening, February 11th, at 8:00 p. m., Miss Elsie Rikli of Murdock, Nebraska, and Mr. Emil Beulke of Swedeburg, Nebraska, were quietly married at the Evangelical parsonage at Murdock. The marriage lines which made these worthy young people one for life were read by Rev. H. R. Knosp, pastor of the Evangelical church. The impressive double-ring ceremony was used.

The bride was very charmingly gowned in a very pretty blue silk crepe dress and carried a beautiful bouquet of Ophelia roses. The groom wore the usual navy blue. Miss Bernice Rikli acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Earl Robbins acted as best man. Immediately following the ceremony, the newly wedded couple went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rikli where a reception and miscellaneous shower was given in their honor. They received many and very useful presents. The Sunday school class, "The Class in the Corner" of which the bride was a member, and the E. L. C. E. of the Murdock Evangelical church and immediate relatives were in attendance; about eighty guests being present. Various games were played during the evening by the young people. After the social hour, a very delicious luncheon was served.
