Wheat Feeding Not Favored Right Now

Professor Gramlich Relates Present Prices Makes Practice an Expensive One

Altho Nebraska has proved to be one of the leading states in wheat feeding this winter, it is said that under present prices an opinion that most farmers are not justified in feeding the wheat instead of corn. Farmers writing to Prof. H. J. Gramlich of the agricultural college have been told that it is doubtful if the practice is an efficient one now.

Advising farmers over the state, Gramlich says that most of them buying wheat for cattle feeding are perhaps paying about 50 cents a bushel which means it is costing the farmer about $18.00 per ton, figuring on an average market basis but in the state, Gramlich says it cost probably cost $22 to $24 per ton.

"Upon this basis, I do not believe farmers are justified in feeding wheat," Gramlich declares. "Corn looks to be the cheapest fattening feed available at the present time. I rather doubt if farmers would be justified in feeding oats either since it is not a fattening feed."

Referring to the practice of feeding ground grain in self feeders, Gramlich suggests that it may not be practical. He says, however, that farmers may have pretty good results now but as the season advances farmers are bound to experience a tendency for the ground grain to become stale if it is in the self feeder several days before consumption. This is particularly true with corn containing a relatively high percentage of water this year.

When the wheat and corn margin was the reverse of what it is now, Nebraska farmers were finding wheat an efficient feed. They found that it was economical to feed the wheat as a fattening ration when they could purchase it for less than corn. In recent times, however, the market situation has changed and is turning toward less and less wheat feeding and more corn feeding, according to Gramlich.

SUBPOENA POWER IS ASKED

Washington—An appeal for authority for the house expenditures committee to subpoena witnesses and compel them to testify was made in the house by Representative Schaefer of Wisconsin on the eve of the committee's investigation of wire tapping in prohibition enforcement.

The committee expects to hear Attorney General Mitchell, prohibition Director Woodcock and J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the justice department's investigation bureau, on wire tapping.

On several occasions it has been held the group might make investigations without specific direction by the house but that authority must be obtained from the house for compelling testimony.

PRICE STATISTICS STUDIED

Washington—Testimony that retail prices of beef have increased during the past eleven years while the wholesale prices have declined concluded the senate's investigation of food costs. The committee received a mass of statistics at its final session, however, showing the price of meats, both wholesale and retail, have declined sharply during the past two years.

Despite this decline, the figures indicate the disparity between wholesale and retail prices is greater than ever before. The only witness representing the retailers, David van Gelder, of the National Retail Meat Dealers' association, testified the cause of this disparity is due to higher overhead costs and the consumers demand for better meats.

With her brother and sister she had ridden home from school in an automobile driven by E. A. Augustin, who stopped to let the children out of the car.

Lorraine ran behind the Augustin car and directly into the path of the truck driven by Carl Tobin, farmer neighbor of Barnes. Tobin stopped his truck within a few feet but not until the wheels had passed over the girl. Sheriff Dan Sanders investigated and said the accident was unavoidable.

HOWEY SPEAKER ON DUTY ON HIDES AND SKINS PROBED

Washington, Feb. 19.—Argentine hides were held before the tariff commission today as being in many cases superior in quality to American hides. Production in the United States declined and attacked the present 10 per cent duty on imported hides and skins in a hearing before the commission in response to a resolution by Senator Copeland of New York for an investigation.

David G. Ong of the United States Leather company, importers, said South American hides were favored by tanners over domestic skins, being better handled, and less damaged by branding.

Senator Howell (rep. Neb.) defended the action of congress in taking hides and skins from the free list. He said the value of the hides was about 11 per cent of the value of the animal and compared costs of live stock production in Argentina and the United States. Costs were much higher in the United States; he said, citing figures from two ranches of about equal size.

March 15 was set as the final date for the filing of briefs.

SUSPECT TAKEN TO OHIO

Cleveland—After eluding pursuit by Pennsylvania state police, Cleveland detectives climaxed a Pittsburgh child kidnaping by returning "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin to this city to answer charges of murder in the slaying of William E. Potter, former city council. Martin, who was rushed out of Judge Stadfield's court for a hearing, but his attorney was clamoring for time to appeal the judge's denial of a writ of habeas corpus, was put under the grill by investigators immediately upon his arrival here.

County Prosecutor Miller said there was no possibility of Pittsburgh authorities regarding custody of Martin despite the unorthodox removal before the court had signed the denial order. Judge Stadfield indicated he would not sign the order until Martin was returned.
