Mr. Stradley has taken this new route home to see some more of the world. In doing so he has had to pass through the lower portion of the continent and then up the west coast to Panama, and through the great canal, thus giving him a great view of the wonderful country and the canal which it took America, and American ingenuity, push, work, and money, to complete. New Denies Charges Brot by Bartlett

Former Postal Executive Says Assistant Made Lease Contracts—'Wanted My Job'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—A deep-seated hostility between Harry S. New, postmaster general under President Harding and Coolidge, and John H. Bartlett, his assistant, was disclosed today by New before the senate postal lease investigating committee. He came to defend his record against Bartlett's accusations. Declaring Bartlett was "obsessed with the idea that he ought to be postmaster general," New said the reason he had "endured" his former assistant for six years was because of his "capacity as a trader."

The former postmaster general defended the St. Paul commercial station postoffice lease which he approved, and denied he had attempted to prevent a grand jury investigation of it or had recommended dismissal of the assistant district attorney who had submitted it to the jury.

Bartlett Retaliates.

Bartlett, in previous testimony, said after the grand jury had called the lease fraudulent New had recommended dismissal of Assistant Attorney Fessler at St. Paul. Bartlett also testified that New ordered execution of the lease though it was known he, Bartlett, was opposed to it.

Contracting this testimony, New said today that Bartlett's bureau had made every lease, and that he had never interfered with Bartlett in any case including the St. Paul contract.

Bartlett late today issued a statement saying: "The only strained relations that I ever had with former Postmaster General New were because of just such statements as he made today before the senate committee, namely, that I had full and untrammelled authority in the matter of making leases, when, as a matter of fact, he went over my head and ordered leases made as in the case of the St. Paul lease."

Disapproved System.

"When any complaint came up about it he would turn the blame on me by complimenting me for my shrewdness in making trades, which I had not made at all, but which he himself had personally directed in my absence."

Asserting that he had disapproved of the leasing system in five of his six annual reports, New told the committee "no set of government contracts ever awarded received more careful, painstaking and conscientious scrutiny than did the contracts for those buildings entered into during my administration."

"Everyone of these contracts in my day without a single exception," he said, "was made through Bartlett's bureau."—World-Herald.

Monarch Reported as Being Ready to Flee

Prepared for Forced Move, But General Feeling Is Alfonso Not Sort to 'Run Away'

Hendaye, France.—A report flashed along the Franco-Spanish frontier that Alfonso of Spain had thru a "straw man," purchased a chateau at Talence, near Bordeaux. This was interpreted here to mean that the king was prepared to take refuge in France should need arise, but that general feeling is that he would never "run away."

Instead, say those who know the Spanish monarch best, he likely would retire to the chateau voluntarily to permit free functioning of the constituent assembly which his new cabinet is said to have promised and which would decide whether Spain is to become a republic, like her numerous offspring in the Americas or be converted into a "democratic" monarchy similar to that of England.

Madrid.—Spain has a new government, peacefully formed, and is looking forward to a period of calm after the political turmoil of the last five days. Juan Bautista Aznar, staunch royalist and political neutral, heads the ministry formed by King Alfonso in a successful effort to head off another military dictatorship like that of Miguel Primo de Rivera.

The king called for no participation by left, socialist and republican elements, and the attitude remained problematical. The public generally, however, seemed to be waiting quietly until the program and policies of the new government could be formulated and put into effect.—State Journal.

The retiring viceroy of India is making what may well be his final effort to end the civil disobedience campaign and enlist the co-operation of the Congress party in framing a new constitution for that country.

Spent 68 Millions on Iowa Highways

Two-thirds of 1930 Total Spent on Hard Road Program—3,260 Miles Paved

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 19.—The annual report of the state highway commission filed today with Governor Dan Turner showed more than 68 million dollars and secondary highway construction and maintenance in Iowa.

On primary highways $42,600,000 went into the construction of 1,030 miles of paving, 247 miles of graveling and 551 miles of grading, plus the bridging work completed. Another $3,300,000 went for maintenance.

The bulk of secondary road money went for maintenance. The 99 counties spent $22,149,000 for construction and maintenance of county trunk and county local roads.

Iowa now has nearly 20 thousand miles of surfaced primary and secondary highways. In addition 3,700 miles are graded ready for surfacing.

Since 1919 the construction expenditure on the primary system has totaled $190,061,950.37.

Condition of the primary system: Paved, 3,260 miles. Graveled, 2,693 miles. Graded, 484 miles.

Condition of the secondary system: Graveled, 13,544 miles. Graded, 3,196 miles. —World-Herald.

EXPECT MORE REMODELING

Omaha—Declining birth rate in United States will have its effect on the lumber business in that lumbermen may expect to sell for a smaller proportion of new homes in future years, Paul Kendall, Kansas City, told Nebraska Lumber Merchants' convention here Thursday. To offset this, however, lumbermen in the future will sell for a larger proportion of remodeling projects.

He said that remodeling work is expected to increase by $207,000,000 this year over last and quoted predictions that farm building in 1931 will exceed that of any year in the past decade. George L. DeLacey of Omaha told delegates that for their own protection as employers they should carry workers' compensation insurance, should employ no person in violation of labor laws and should make certain that any subcontractors they employ also carry workers' compensation insurance.

WOMAN TELLS OF KILLING

Buffalo—Nancy Bowen, sixty-three year old Indian woman, told on the witness stand how she killed Mrs. Clotilde Marchand nearly a year ago, "that I might live a while longer and the rest of my relatives be saved."

Testifying at the second trial of Lila Jimerson, Cayuga Indian woman jointly indicted with her for the murder, the feeble old Indian woman calmly narrated the details of the killing which the state contends was instigated by Lila.

She testified that when she became ill in February, of last year, Lila told her she had been bewitched by Mrs. Marchand, the "white witch" and unless something were done to remove the spell Nancy would die. On March 6, Nancy's testimony
