VOTERS NOMINATE WALTON

Oklahoma City—J. C. Walton, once ousted from the governor's chair, Tuesday night won a decisive victory toward a political comeback. Complete returns in the city primary gave him one of the two nominations for mayor. C. J. Blinn, received 8,361 votes and Walton 8,189. They will fight it out in the final election April 7.
Mayor Dean, seeking re-election, was eliminated when he received only 2,361 votes. With Walton trailing Blinn by only 172 votes, a bitter fight was forecast in the final election.
Altho impeached as governor, and now under a federal indictment for mail fraud, Walton apparently set his foot securely on a lower rung of the political ladder in comeback fight. Walton's indictment was in connection with operations of the Universal Oil and Gas company along with eighteen others including Richard Enright, former police commissioner of New York City and S. E. J. Cox, former business partner of Dr. Frederick Cook, arctic explorer.

League Control of Air Services Urged in France

Leon Blum, Socialist Leader, Suggests Internationalization of Plane Lines

Paris, March 11. — Internationalization of air transport, under supervision of the League of Nations, is recommended by Leon Blum, Socialist leader, as the only way out of the present situation, which he describes as "chaotic" and which he says can result only "in waste of effort and dissipation of capital."
The Socialist leader in the party organ, Le Populaire, takes as his text the case of the Aeropostale Company, which, although subsidized, has been obliged to appeal for additional state aid. The Government has devised a temporary scheme for operating the company under state control, and thus is enabling it to continue service which provide the only air link between France and South America.
The Socialist leader's comments are not without political significance, since his party has been doing everything possible to keep the Aeropostale affair before the public and is even clamoring for resignation of Pierre Flandin, Minister of Finance, who admitted in the Chamber of Deputies last week that he had formerly been attorney for the Aeropostale Company, but had severed this connection upon accepting the ministerial post.
The Socialists claim that the Aeropostale affair bears a striking similarity to the Oustric affair, which obliged Raoul Peret, Minister of Justice, to resign from the Tardieu Cabinet because of his legal connection with the banker, Albert Oustric.
M. Blum's thesis is that due to the international ramifications of air transport systems, and their finality, the only proper procedure is to organize all air transport systems as a public international service under League of Nations supervision.
He points out that since the Aeropostale Company operates only the French and African sections of the transatlantic service, while the South American sections are financed by Brazilian, Argentine and Uruguayan companies, it is necessary in order to maintain the service, not only for France to come to the aid of the Aeropostale but for South American governments to take similar action with respect to its affiliated concerns.
M. Blum recommends internationalization of world air services, not only in order to secure increased efficiency and prevent waste, but also to check a growing tendency toward international competition and rivalry on air routes, which he thinks may threaten friendly relations between states.
The air budget for 1931-32 provides for expenditure of 243,000,000 francs (nearly $10,000,000) for promotion of commercial flying.

From Pasadena, Cal., where he is spending a short vacation, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler says he will place the prohibition issue before the Republican party in the presidential campaign of 1932.

House Members Put Soft Pedal on Their Row

Take Quieter Attitude Than Senate Toward Board of Control—Ask Business Head

Lincoln, Neb., March 17.—While members of the senate committee on state institutions are wrangling among themselves over the question of how far they should go in condemning the administration of the board of control, members of the house committee are taking a more temperate attitude.

"After all, the real background for all this fuss in the senate is the dismissal of certain employees," one member of the house committee said Tuesday.

House members have spent considerable time the last several weeks inspecting various institutions. Except for the details of the senate committee's probes into complaints concerning the Hastings and Grand Island institutions, they feel that they have the situation as a whole pretty well in mind. They will soon be ready to make their recommendations on the needs of the various institutions.

Kehm Sees Economy Chance

One recommendation which will probably be made will be the appointment of administrative heads for the state hospitals. Under the present system the doctor who is in charge of the institution supervises both the business administration and the medical work.

Representative Karl Kehm, chairman of the house committee, expressed the opinion that such a recommendation might be made. "Of course, such a plan might be opposed on the ground that it is merely creating another job, but there is no doubt in my mind but that a considerable saving would result in administrative expense, supplies, and other things, which would more than equal the salaries paid," he said.

Chairman Kehm said that in his opinion there is no ground for serious complaint against the board.

"They have made a few mistakes, but they have been in judgment and not in heart. There is always someone who is dissatisfied if a member of the board has courage enough to say 'No.'"

Representative Kehm spoke highly of the qualifications and work of Mrs. Nellie Benson, woman member of the board.

G. A. Meline of Kearney likewise expressed himself in favor of the appointment of separate administrative heads for the hospitals.

"It is seldom that a competent doctor can be found who also has the necessary business judgment and physical capacity to attend to the numerous details involved in general management of an institution," he said.

While he believed that there is no real ground for complaint against the board, he felt that the management of the institutions could be improved by this means.

He also suggested that special architects or competent inspectors be named to personally look after all the details of new building construction and repair. He favors a revolving fund being established to permit repairs as they are needed rather than by specific recommendation of the legislature.

He is of the opinion that the senate row with the board of control will "peter out."

Two Satisfied at Present

Charles Jones of Schuyler, another member of the committee, opposed the plan to name separate administrative heads. Both he and Representative Peter Van Fleet are of the opinion that the board of control is doing a satisfactory job of managing the institutions.

"The board made a mistake in hesitating to remove the Hastings hospital superintendent. Had they acted promptly there would have been no complaint on the part of the senate members," Representative Jones said.

NOTICE OF SCHOOL CAUCUS

A caucus of the voters of School District No. 1 of Cass county, Nebraska, will be held at the district court room in Cass county court house on Friday evening, March 20th, 1931, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the following offices:

Two members of the Board of Education of the first district for the term years.

The convention will name four candidates whose names will appear on the ballot for the election to be held on Tuesday, April 5th.

FRANK L. CUMMINS, Pres. Board of Education.
FRANK C. CLOIDT, Sec'y Board of Education.

WIFE OF TWO MEN GIVEN AID BY JUDGE

Omaha—Mrs. Thelma Lowe Davey of Omaha is no longer the wife of two men. She was relieved of that embarrassing position by District Judge Herbert Rhoades, who set aside an order granting her a divorce from John C. Lowe of Omaha, formerly of Pawnee City. Judge Rhoades granted the original decree, but when he learned that less than a month after it was granted, she had married George E. Davey, he set aside the decree, leaving her technically married to two men. Mrs. Lowe-Davey protested that she did not know of the six month clause in divorce decrees, which forbids a divorced man or woman from remarrying within six months after the decree had been granted.

In 1881

—Can you remember back that far? Well, let us tell you a little story. In 1881 Plattsmouth was a bustling, growing city. The first Burlington bridge was being built—horses and wagons were numerous on our streets—automobiles were unknown—sidewalks were of boards—the streets were native soil—the river ran close to the foot of Main street—only two or three brick buildings in town. In that year—1881—a young man bought a suit of clothes at "WESCOTT'S." This week this same young man—a little older grown—bought another suit of clothes at "WESCOTT'S" and remarked that he had never bought but 2 suits in the 50 years that did not come from this store.

Three Escape from Jail but are Recaptured

Two Receive Sentences of Ten Years After Rearrest—Pierced the Ceiling

Fairbury, Neb., March 16.—Three prisoners who escaped from the Jefferson county jail early today were recaptured this afternoon in a straw stack near Tobias, and two of them were sentenced this evening to 10 years in the penitentiary on a robbery charge for which they had been held.

Carroll Flory and Alvin Breazeale pleaded guilty after their recapture. They were arrested in connection with robbery of a store at Powell two weeks ago.

The third man who escaped, Adolph Dondlinger, alias Curley Thomas, was to have been tried during the present term of court on a motor car theft charge. Trial has been delayed.

The men were discovered by Frank Bartunek, marshal at Tobias, after they had sought food at a store there. The trio escaped through a hole they had cut in the ceiling of a straw jail into the register of deed's office and then out of a window. Officers believe the prisoners worked several days on the plan to escape and that they had assistance from the outside. An inmate of the jail reported the escapes to Police Officer Henry Arnold, who passed the court house at 6:30 a. m.

County commissioners have begun consideration of measures for reinforcing the jail.—World-Herald.

TAX ON OLEOMARGARINE

Des Moines—The Iowa senate passed a bill imposing a tax of 5 cents per pound on each pound of oleomargarine sold in the state. The house previously had acted on the measure, but minor amendments adopted by the senate reconsideration by the house.
