Hurricane Hal.

The Senior class of Union high school is presenting the play "Hurricane Hal" at the M. W. A. hall April 17th. Captain "Hal" is a sharp. This is a side-splitting comedy of college life.

Hurricane Hal has been a Senior in college for a long time each year, when he is all set to graduate, he loses his heart to some girl, usually an under graduate—so he stays. Dave, his pal, has him headed toward graduation and everything is lovely, —when along comes Kay. The fall is mutual. Through a strange twist of circumstances, Hal believes Kay is married. Orpha Little overhears a conversation, gets it all wrong, and reports to Kay that Hal has a wife. There you are, everything all tangled and Aunt Bobby nearly wrecks the works.

Everyone must be sure to come if they want to see a really good play. Plenty of fun for all.

BRYAN UNTEID'S BIRTHDAY

Lamar, Colo.—Bryan Unteid, who professes to be just an ordinary sort of "guy," had a birthday Sunday. It was Easter, too, but that was secondary. Bryan was then thirty-one years old, lay in a hospital bed and grinned, a little self-consciously, and suffered sundry persons to surge thru his room and make endless remarks about heroism and stuff like that. It was, undoubtedly, the busiest birthday Bryan ever had. He is here of that, busier than any day since that one week before last when he sat in a snow bound school bus near Town-er, Colo., watching over a brood of near hysterical youngsters, while death crept on them for thirty-six hours. Bryan was the hero of that tragedy, so those who know about it insist, because he managed to keep his head as the cold claimed five of his companions. He was left in charge of the bus when the driver went off to get help, and Bryan assumed command staidly, knowing his task was grim. Then help came, almost too late to save the survivors, and Bryan Unteid came to the hospital here for treatment.

He has been invited to visit President Hoover and the others look on him with moist eyes and make abstract comparison with Lindbergh and other heroes.

STORE MANAGER BEATEN UP

Chicago—Influriated when the manager of a store gave him the keys to the store instead of to his automobile, a robber beat Carl Moser, the manager, in the face with a mallet. After getting the automobile keys the robber and his two companions fled—after pausing to wait on two customers—with $900 in cash, a $500 diamond ring, and the automobile. The robbers entered the store while Moser was alone and forced him to open the safe, from which they took $900. They then took the diamond ring off his fingers and demanded the keys to his automobile. When he gave them the keys to the store by mistake one of the trio seized a mallet and started to beat him in the face. He and his companions then fled in Moser's automobile.

RAID ON A JEWELRY HOUSE
Cincinnati—Expert yeggmen, working with an apparently accurate knowledge of the surroundings, escaped with $75,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry, $4,000 in bonds and $200 in cash after pounding open two safes at the Edmond M. Jacobs company, wholesale jeweler, sometime in the night. The robbers chopped thru a three foot brick wall to get to the office, located on the third floor of a downtown building. They carefully cut a flap out of the combination cloth covering the corridor wall and then chopped thru the brick.

Once thru the wall, they sawed out the back of an inside show case and entered the office by means of the sliding showcase doors.

Like Coffee . . . the best Gasoline is Blended

THE sun beams cheerfully through an eastern window. The subtle fragrance of the morning coffee adds zest to the morning air, advance notice of the joy to come as you give the "cup test" to the coffee blend of your choice. Coffee roasting is important, of course, but the most skillful roaster cannot make a popular coffee from just one type of coffee bean.

The coffee connoisseur would not deign to drink coffee made from a single type of bean. Neither should the thoughtful motorist allow an unblended gasoline to go into his fuel tank. Gasoline must be blended if it is to possess all the vital properties contained in the three types of gasoline.

CONOCO Gasoline is blended, just as carefully as the finest coffee. In CONOCO blended gasoline you'll find: Natural Gasoline, for quick starting; Straight-run Gasoline, for power and long mileage; Cracked Gasoline, for its anti-knock qualities. Motorists are fast learning that this is so. The result is a fast increasing group of gasoline connoisseurs who have added to their knowledge of the good things of life the fact that good gasoline must be blended. The CONOCO Red Triangle marks the spots where CONOCO Blended Gasoline may be found. Try it today.

Rap Bingham Plan to Hike the Income Tax

Progressives Join in Fight Against Solon's proposal to Slash Exemptions.

Washington, April 5.—Senator Bingham's proposal that federal taxes be increased, especially by reaching hundreds of thousands of "little fellows" now exempt from paying, stirred up a storm of opposition Sunday. The Connecticut senator, who is a member of the senate's finance committee, was revealed to be far out of step with the views of Senator Watson of Indiana, and other administration leaders, who are against any increase in taxation at the coming session of congress.

His view is that the treasury deficit should be covered by borrowing. With a return of normal business the present tax scruple will suffice, they believe.

In opposing loans in peacetime to meet treasury deficits and insisting that they be met by increased taxation, Bingham was in agreement with Senator Borah (R., Idaho). But in his proposal that present day exemptions on small incomes be removed and that some of the wartime nuisance taxes be restored, Bingham ran afoul of the progressive group in congress.

Such progressives as Senator La Follette (R., Wisconsin), however, take the view that taxes should be levied according to the ability to pay and their view was that persons of large incomes should pay more and the "little fellows" be exempted, as under the present tax law.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, a leader of the independent wing of the republican party, said he did not agree with Bingham's "methods of taxation."

"I am not opposed to an increase in taxes if there's going to be a deficit, but the increase should be applied on inheritances taxes and on larger incomes," he said, adding: "I am opposed to issuance of bonds. I don't want to increase taxes on the smaller incomes, nor do I want to cut down the exemptions as Senator Bingham proposes."

Republican leaders are loath to increase taxes next year, upon the eve of the national elections, because of the unfavorable effect it would have upon the voters.

The Treasury department can borrow money now at unusually low interest rates and administration leaders hold it would be wiser to follow this course than boost tax rates, which would have a depressing effect upon the business recovery.—Omaha Bee-News.

DEATHS IN AIR REDUCED

Washington, April 5.—A record for safety in scheduled air transportation unequalled in three years is revealed in accident statistics for the last half of 1930 compiled by the Department of Commerce.

During the six-month period only two persons riding as passengers in an airplane engaged in scheduled operations met death, where in the preceding six-month period 22 passengers were fatally involved.

The figure is the lowest for any six-month period since 1927, when the entire year's operations were carried on with the loss of but two lives. A greater mileage, however, was covered during the last half year than in all of 1927. Estimates by the department indicate that 20,000,000 miles were covered in scheduled services in the six-month period.

In all, there were three fatal accidents in scheduled flying, resulting in deaths of the two passengers and pilot, and the piloes of each of two air mail planes. All the accidents recorded by the department occurred at night.

During the first half of 1930 there were six fatal accidents in scheduled services, involving five pilots, one copilot, and 22 passengers.
