Economy

The proper care of any machine is true economy. Say, how are your brakes; are they working? And the rods in your motor—Does the battery turn the motor over like it means business? True economy is keeping the machine in perfect condition. We are here to do it.

BRITAIN'S RIGHT DOUBTED
Leeds, England.—George Howard Ferguson, high commissioner for Canada, said at a luncheon here that doubts had been expressed whether Canada should be kept in the British empire. More than three-fourths of the foreign investments of Canada came from the United States, he asserted, and less than one-fourth from Great Britain.

"You can imagine," he said, "the influence of a connection of that kind."

Reed Retorts

to Sorensen's Letter on Law

Objects to Alleged Hampering of the Attorney General at Ak-Sar-Ben Tracks.

Senator Perry Reed of Hamilton county, arising to a question of personal privilege Tuesday morning, answered statements made by Attorney General Sorensen in a published letter in which Reed was mentioned in connection with Ak-Sar-Ben races. It said he drew $20 a day for his services and did everything in his power to prevent the attorney general from stepping races and gambling at the Ak-Sar-Ben track. Reed was president of the Hamilton county fair at that time.

"I was simply an official at the Ak-Sar-Ben races," said Reed. "The attorney general seems to think because I was an official I was contaminated. I will say I received more pay than he said I did. I have served as an official at many county fairs, at Senator Kunkel's fair, at Senator Frush's fair, at Senator Wellensiek's fair. The attorney general says I did all I could to prevent him from stopping the races. There were rumors of a suit to stop the races. Owners of horses heard of it and they did not want to ship their animals under the circumstances. Secretary Gardner asked me about going to the attorney general. I did so and told him 700 horses were to be shipped from all over the country and owners would be out an immense amount for feed and shipping costs. I told the attorney general that if he intended to stop the races, if I were in his place, I would give notice. He said he did not intend to stop the races of his own will, but if requested would have to act. As palaver, probably, he told me that so long as I was there, everything would be all right."

"The attorney general wrote to all county fair officials. I got his letter in which he said he was going to close up everything. I did not answer his letter. Gardner and I are called contractors at many fairs. One carnival man claimed exclusive rights to midway in our county fair. Independents claimed some rights. A carnival man told me he had talked to the attorney general and that he had been told he could not have contracts, games and scale of premiums with candy, and so on. In the end Sorensen told him to close up."

"This is the only fair where any action was taken. The attorney general did not treat all alike. He spoke at St. Paul fair and at the Pawnee county fair. I am for law enforcement. I never drank a drop in my life. I am for enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. I am willing to put my reputation up against that of the attorney general's at home or anywhere else."

"The attorney general said in his newspaper letter that this cut of his appropriation by the senate committee would be a great victory for the underworld, as much as to say that I am connected with the underworld. I would be willing to give him $50,000 appropriation if he would use it in the right way, but not to build up a political machine."

During his talk Senator Reed said he understood the corn game, known as "bingo" was operated at the Pawnee county fair.

Senator Wherry, connected with the Pawnee county fair, was asked by Wellensiek if the corn game ran at his fair.

"What has that got to do with it?" answered Wherry. "I am interested in an appropriation for law enforcement for the attorney general. A United States marshal at our fair said it was one of the cleanest. I don't know about the corn game. I like Senator Reed, do not drink, and may not know all that is going on. The corn game is run at all fairs. I'll admit that running a county fair is not running a Sunday school."

Randall endeavored to speak and was called to order by Wherry.

"Confine yourself to the question, and then raise the question before the senate," ruled Lieutenant Governor Metcalfe.

"There are senators here who don't drink and don't smoke," said Randall. "I wonder if they have one redeeming vice. I move that the senate go on record as favoring more and better county fairs."

The motion was put and carried. A recess was taken for the senate to confer on the appointment of Guy Spencer of Omaha, nominated by Governor Bryan, to be a member of the game and park commission for a second term.

CHARLES V. BOB IS INDICTED
New York.—An indictment by a federal grand jury was added Tuesday to the troubles of Charles V. Bob, mining promoter. Bob, with Frederick C. Russell, was indicted on eleven counts, ten charging mail fraud and one conspiracy. Thousands of American and Canadian citizens were losers. The government charges, thru purchase of stock from Bob. He is reputed to have sold $7,000,000 worth of stock. Russell was secretary and treasurer of Metal and Mining Shares, a corporation of which Bob was chairman of the board. He also was a lecturer at New York university and was connected with the Alexander Hamilton Institute.

FINDS YOUNG MEN 50% UNDER MODERN WOMEN

New York, April 23.—The modern young man, said Cosmo Hamilton Thursday, is just about 50 per cent beneath modern young women.

It may be due to rickets, Mr. Hamilton thinks. Or it may be because the modern young man "watched the laurel wreaths die" during and after the world war and "grew up in a world without heroes, without illusions, without God."

At any rate, the British author who divides his time between New York and London, observed: "The modern young man is afflicted with half-wittedness, a vacuous ego, undesirable and immature, and never to be trusted. He has thin skin and mental freckles."

"Man should be dominant," he added. "The present transcendence of woman indicates the decline of the cycle—the beginning of the end."

Sioux Indians Do Big Part in Conservation

Chiefs Tell Isaak Walton League How Their Tribes Saves Much Wild Life

Chicago.—In exchange for some of the useful knowledge given the Red man by his white brothers, two Sioux Indian chiefs came from their reservation in South Dakota to bring a message of conservation to the Isaak Walton League of America at its fifth annual convention here.

The chiefs, who have lived on a government reservation in the Black Hills since late in the 'nineties, are known as No Water and Young Skunk. It has been a policy of the Sioux tribe, from generation to generation, they said, never to kill any more game than was actually needed for immediate needs, and never, if it could be avoided, to kill a female of a species. It still is a source of great dismay, they said, to see white men indulging their sportive nature to the point of exterminating the game.

Sioux Indians at first thought the white man extremely cruel for this reason, but have come to realize that he is not intentionally so.

Emphasizing the unfavorable condition of wild life especially since the drought, Paul G. Redington, chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, on April 24 urged the necessity of stricter observance and enforcement of the laws regarding migratory wild life.

Pointing out that there were only 35 United States game protectors to cover the entire country and possessions, he said that the number should not be less than 75 to 100, except during emergency seasons when deputy wardens could be employed.

"Principal among modern conditions capable of correction is the deplorable and wasteful destruction of habitat by unwise drainage, forest fire and water pollution. It would be impossible to estimate the wild life destroyed by these agents alone. Drainage projects should never be undertaken until competent examination and investigation show that the area is a type in which through agriculture or other industry than in its original and natural quality as a producer of game, fish and fur."

Henry O'Malley, Commissioner of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, speaking at the April 24 session, said he believed the critical point in the conservation of fishery resources has been passed with public and official recognition of the vital need for "vigorous and active conservation measures."

CONVICTS LIKE ASA KEYES
San Quentin Prison, Cal., April 26.—A prosecuting attorney who at the height of his career was hated and feared by the criminals with whom he dealt, is now a convict in the state penitentiary here.

He is Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles, serving a sentence for bribery conspiracy.

When he entered the prison a year ago he was well guarded, was refused work among the prisoners and was given a protected berth. It was feared that some of the prisoners who had been prosecuted and convicted by Keyes might attempt to harm the man.

But in the year that Keyes remained in the prison he became well liked by his fellow convicts, and says that he has learned much about men and criminals while there.

"One year of prison has done much for me," he says. "Every official who deals with crime should have a stretch in prison. With a prisoner past 50, one year here is equal to from 5 to 10 for a younger man."

Keyes is planning to ask the pardon board for a parole.

FLEE SAN SALVADOR AS VOLCANO IZALZO ERUPTS
San Salvador, El Salvador, April 26.—The volcano Izalzo began an eruption Sunday, throwing ashes and darkening all of the towns in the vicinity. The population of the vicinity was panicky and was preparing to flee.

Apportionment Bill is Approved by the House

Necessary 51 Votes Barely Acquired—Curry Cries "Vote Trading in Senate"

The legislature, in joint session Tuesday morning, confirmed the appointment of Guy Spencer by Governor Bryan to serve on the state game, forestation and parks commission. The senate vote was 33 to 0 and the house vote 98 to 0.

Charges by Representative Curry of Furnas, author of H. R. 479, congressional apportionment bill, of a colossal trade or trades in the senate at the expense of that measure in order to put the appropriation bill across, delayed but did not block house concurrence in senate amendments Tuesday.

After the widest forty-five minutes of the session with the house under repeated call, the fifty-first affirmative vote was finally procured and the senate's amendments approved 51 to 42. Six republicans voted with forty-five democrats on the currying side, Cromer, Norris, Oleson, Rasmussen, Smith, Sorensen. Two democrats, O'Gara and Burr, voted with forty republicans against adoption.

The senate changed the house plan in several particulars, taking Saline and Jefferson from the First district and substituting Butler and Saunders. Saline and Jefferson shifting to the Fourth. The house amendment shifting Garfield to the Fifth and Greeley to the Third stands. The bill now goes to the governor for his approval.

Representative Bremer, democrat of Hamilton, co-author of an apportionment bill which was sidetracked in favor of the Curry bill, confessed that the senate had turned a bad bill into one of excellence. He conducted the battle for adoption.

Senator Confesses.
Mr. Curry declared that a senator had confessed to him that "they traded their socks" in the upper branch. He assumed that part of the trading had some bearing on the senate's reduction of the attorney general's litigation fund, restored by the committee. He said that the senate cry in getting votes for the appropriation act was something like this: "Help us and we will slip something over into the Fourth district for you."

O'Malley of Greeley, democrat floor leader, declared that Curry had confessed to him that "they traded their socks" in the upper branch. He assumed that part of the trading had some bearing on the senate's reduction of the attorney general's litigation fund, restored by the committee. He said that the senate cry in getting votes for the appropriation act was something like this: "Help us and we will slip something over into the Fourth district for you."

Chief objection raised by Curry to the senate plan was that it gives the Fourth district a population of 250,000 which is 35,000 more than in the Second as proposed and 21,000 more than in the First.

"It means," he said, "that 35,000 people in the Fourth district are being disfranchised in the way of proper representation."

David Cress objected to the trade that takes Saline and Jefferson from the First district. Puney of Saunders who complained bitterly of the bill as it passed the house because it placed his county in the Second district with Douglas, is pleased with his First district association as also Representative Oleson, his colleague from Saunders.

Two Arguments.
Those favoring adoption urged two points: That if the amendment were rejected and the bill sent to conference, there would be no apportionment at this session with the result that congressmen will be elected at large, and second, that it is proper to provide a smaller population in the First district and also the Second district because of the expectancy that these districts will outstrip the others in growth.

To Representative Rehig, democrat of Douglas, fell the honor of casting the fifty-first and deciding vote. O'Gara of Cedar tried to induce a ruling that would compel six members who passed on roll call to vote. Speaker Kier was, however, unable to devise any scheme to so force them.

Pages Pheasant Scrip.
By a vote of 51 to 25, the house passed S. F. 318, by Wherry and others, authorizing issuance by state game commission of pheasant shooting scrip to hunters at not to exceed 50 cents per coupon, one ticket to be given a farmer for each bird killed on his land, the farmer to cash in his tickets at face value. It is optional with him, however, as to whether or not he shall demand his coupons.

S. F. 9, by Axtell of Jefferson, amending the law designating the state highway system, was passed on night reading, 81 to 4. It provides that where any state highway runs not more than two miles from the limits of an incorporated town or city not on a highway and where a highway is within six miles of a town or village not served by a railroad, the state department may build a connecting highway. Also authorized under limitation filling of gaps to make complete otherwise continuous highways. Slightly changes highway No. 87 1/2. Burchard to Liberty, to avoid grade crossings.

S. F. 306, by Senator McGowan and Representative Randall and Wells, placing gas pipe lines under the jurisdiction of the state railway commission, was approved with the emergency clause, 88 to 4.

Senate amendments to H. R. 38, by Ough of Dundy. The bill provides for refunds to gas dealers where the four cent tax is paid in a state but the fuel sold in a state with a lesser tax. The senate struck the portion providing for a hearing before the state treasurer and added the name of Senator Bowring as introducer.

The house also adopted senate amendments to H. R. 173, by Bishop of Lancaster, appropriating $500 for the relief of Frank Mraz, penitentiary inmate injured while operating a circular saw in the furniture factory. The senate struck the emergency clause and also the word "assignee." Vote on concurrence 57 to 17.

Withdraws Resolution.
Representative Dan Heffernan of Dakota county withdrew his resolution voicing opposition to construction or purchase of a bridge between Sioux City, Ia., and South Sioux City, Neb., until such time as the neighboring state enacts reciprocal legislation. The resolution set forth that the Iowa legislature is committed to bridge construction as a private enterprise.

The matter within the bill to draw fire was that which urged direction of traffic to Omaha and Lincoln and away from Sioux City and other Iowa points until such reciprocal legislation is enacted. This was looked upon more or less as a booby trap and when it was explained that it will not tend to encourage good feeling between the states, and that Iowa, the same as Nebraska, has a right to enact such laws as it deems fit, Mr. Heffernan withdrew it without vote.

Presented With Watch.
Speaker Max Kier was presented with a wrist watch by Representative Myrtle Musser of Sheridan, on behalf of the membership. In her presentation, she said:

"I want to compliment you for the splendid manner in which you have presided through the session. You have been kind, generous and pleasant. We have all enjoyed the fellowship. We've been unruly at times but after all we are only boys and girls grown up. You like to try up under the clouds with the birds and we had that in mind in selecting this token of our esteem."

The speaker, who is a first lieutenant in the army reserve air corps, expressed his appreciation in the following:

"When I look upon the crystal, I shall have a sort of panorama of this entire session from the millinery days to the start down the aisle. I am going to remember that I have ninety-nine good friends scattered over the state."

Representative Cone of Douglas submitted a motion calling upon the capitol commission to install an elevator in the state house of adequate size. His proposal was not taken up at the time for argument.

Messrs. Jensen, Buresh and Corunne, following the humorous example set in the senate a few days ago, proposed that date of adjournment be set for July 4 and that the motion or resolution be not taken up until July 1.

The result of the first roll call on H. R. 479, congressional apportionment as amended by the senate, showed forty-eight affirmatives and thirty-nine negatives. Then the parade of calls came, the galleries were swept clear, the doors locked and even honorable senators chased to other parts. The first switch came when Gillespie of Sarpy voted "aye." McMahon of Douglas added his affirmative voice which ran the string to fifty.
