PROSPECTS OF THE GRADUATE

Usually when the commencement season comes around and quite some thousands of capped and gowned youths prepare for their onslaught on a waiting world one's reaction is a trifle disdainful. Here is complacent, cocksure youth, educated and eager to set the world buzzing with noble deeds and remunerative, we are wont to say. Leave them alone and they will come down to earth after a time.

But the graduates of America's second universities in the Year of Our Lord 1931 are in a different position. One suspects that, no matter how complete their education, they must be aware that the world is not waiting for them any too eagerly. Nearly all of them expect a livelihood, and quite naturally. But the world they step into is not the world of the Coolidge bull market. It is a chastened, harassed world of myriad troubles and disciplined patience. For eager youth it is a hostile world. The graduates of this month and next should therefore be seen through different eyes. Instead of amused disdain, they merit something approaching genuine sympathy from the rest of us. But even so, there must be a tonic quality in the experience of chagrin that awaits many of them.

If the shock is great on learning that they are the victims of collegiate overproduction, their joys will be the greater when they do come thru the fire of job-seeking and emerge a bit sinned, but richer in their understanding of a matter-of-fact economic world.

Hail, then, to the graduate! May none of them starve, but may they all learn clearly that bread and butter is a chief concern, outside the cloister of the college.

TOO MUCH WHEAT

The fundamental trouble with the world wheat situation, as pointed out by the American delegates to the London conference, is that the world is now raising more wheat than it can consume. When Russia went out of the export market in the World War, the United States, Canada, Argentina, Australia and India increased their production to meet the deficiency.

After the war this process continued, due largely to the rapid motorization of the wheat farms. As a result, according to the figures of the department of agriculture, world wheat production outside of Russia in 1929-31 was 28 per cent ahead of the 1920-21 production, while the consumption had increased only 21 per cent in the same period. A burdensome surplus accumulated.

At the same time Russia began coming back, and is now producing a billion bushels or more a year. With such a production she can export from 100 to 200 million bushels, thus contributing to the surplus that is depressing the world markets for wheat today.

There is only one remedy for such a situation, and that is the production of less wheat. Farmers cannot continue to produce indefinitely at a loss. Low prices are bound eventually to force out of wheat production the land where production costs are high. But this condition cannot be brought about by government action except in countries like Russia where there is a dictatorship. In the United States individual farmers, or voluntary organizations of farmers, will have to decide how to meet the stubborn facts of the world wheat surplus.

TRUE AMATEURISM

Douglas Fairbanks was only one of several outsiders to invade the charmed circles of golfers contesting for the British amateur championship. We say outsiders only as a term to describe those better known in other fields and not to characterize the quality of their golf. As a matter of fact, these gate crashers gave a good account of themselves. Despite an adoring feminine gallery, Fairbanks was but one down at the finish. Bombardier Wells returned to his pugilistic form by taking the count at the hands of Bernard Darwin, golf writer and, we believe, a descendant of Charles Darwin. Wells, renowned in boxing for the brittleness of his jaw, carried Darwin to the nineteenth hole before bowing in defeat. Perhaps he should have become a golfer in the first place. Sir Harold Gillies, famous physician, won his second-round match from the erstwhile British sensation, William Sutton. Incidentally, Sir Harold played in his first amateur championship tournament 24 years ago.

We realize that the ordeal of championship golf is such as to weed out all such interlopers in favor of the hard-bitten campaigners who, amateur or professional, devote most of their time to pursuit of the game. Yet we like to dally with the idea that some time, in some tournament, a movie actor and an ironworker, say, should kick over the dope bucket and appear resplendent in the final match. What a blow that would be for the Joneses, Voigts, Moes, Evanses and Johnstons who monopolize the headlines and the cups.

WORLD WHEAT CONFERENCE

Delegates of eleven wheat-exporting countries are meeting in London to find a way out of the dilemma of surplus wheat production. Canadian, American and Russian members of the group have the whip hand, and of these the Americans are in a peculiarly strong position, since American wheat has been kept out of world market almost entirely this year, and a change of policy is inevitable.

No radical scheme to limit production or even exports is contemplated, such as is being tried by sugar, copper and coffee producers. The view of most delegates is that faulty distribution of wheat is chiefly responsible for low prices, and that continued world overproduction is unlikely. Certainly it is clear that Russian wheat, which has done most to depress prices, will not continue to be a menace, since Russia needs her wheat as soon as her greater need for a favorable trade balance is rectified.

It seems probable that the London conference can do little more than recommend better distribution of wheat crops. The real work of reducing the surplus and stimulating prices must come from the action of individual countries and small blocs.

At Geneva plans are on foot to absorb the wheat of Eastern Europe into France and near-by countries. America still is working on the problem of reducing acreages and artificially maintaining prices. Russia

UNABLE TO EAT

"I suffered such great distress from indigestion that I was unable to eat. I bought ZINSEP and immediately obtained wonderful relief," says J. E. Resler, Falls City, Neb. "End your stomach misery with ZINSEP. It's GUARANTEED." At all drug stores.

in time will give up her policy of exporting at low prices for immediate cash benefits. Purchasing power of China and Japan and other consuming countries will improve with general trade recovery.

These independent but related factors must be our reliance in the stabilization of wheat, rather than any spectacular world-wide scheme to limit exports or production.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

In the District Court of Cass County, Nebraska.

In the matter of the application of Searl S. Davis, Administrator of the Estate of John Karvanek, deceased, for license to sell real estate to pay debts.

Now on this 8th day of May, 1931, came Searl S. Davis, Administrator of the Estate of John Karvanek, deceased, and presents his petition for license to sell real estate of the deceased in order to pay said claims, costs of administration and these proceedings; and it appearing from said petition, that there is an insufficient amount of personal property in the hands of the Administrator to pay the claims presented and allowed by the County Court of this County and the expenses of administration and these proceedings; that it is necessary to sell the whole of said real estate of the deceased in order to pay said claims, costs of administration and these proceedings.

It is Therefore Considered, Ordered and Adjudged, that all persons interested in the Estate of John Karvanek, deceased, appear before me, James T. Begley, Judge of the District Court, at the office of the Clerk of the District Court in the Court House, in the City of Plattsmouth, Cass County, Nebraska, on the 27th day of June, 1931, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, and show cause, if any there be, why such license should not be granted to Searl S. Davis, Administrator of the Estate of John Karvanek, deceased, to sell all of the real estate of said deceased, so as to pay the claims presented and allowed, costs of administration and these proceedings.

It is Further Considered, Ordered and Adjudged, that notice be given to all persons interested by publication of this Order to Show Cause for four successive weeks in the Plattsmouth Journal, a legal newspaper published and of general circulation in the County of Cass, Nebraska.

By the Court. JAMES T. BEGLEY, District Judge.

Do you buy GASOLINE blindfolded?

Many buy gasoline from the nearest pump, believing all gasolines are alike. When their motors lose pep they blame the motor, or the kind of gasoline they bought last.

That's not quite fair, because the quality of gasoline you use has a lot to do with the way your motor behaves.

Some gasolines contain sulphur compounds which attack metal and destroy the perfect fit of the parts. Unless scientific refining completely removes it, tar collects on valves, clogs piston rings and heavily coats the combustion chamber and the exhaust manifold with carbon.

That's why many motors lose much of their power after a few thousand miles of operation—why low grade, cut quality gasoline often proves the most expensive fuel you can use.

Balanced RED CROWN GASOLINE gives quick starts and all the power and mileage your motor is capable of on refined gasoline. It contains no sulphur or tar to injure your motor or cut down its mechanical efficiency. Clean, high power, balanced Red Crown Gasoline is the safe road to cheap power and mileage.
