SEEKING HARMONY AT HOME

Paris—Aristide Briand, having announced his willingness to remain in charge of France's Foreign Relations, political leaders were busy trying to stifle the hostility of his political enemies and seeking to build real national unity. France as a whole seemed to be impressed with the necessity of such a unity because of the many international problems on the horizon and the big disarmament conference scheduled to open at Geneva early next year, all possessing vital interests for France.

French opinion still regards relations with Germany as the outstanding question of foreign policy, and press dispatches indicated that Germany may ask at least a moratorium on war reparations. Frenchmen received this as an indication that economic and financial problems are likely to arise to complicate the entire European political situation.

Warning that M. Briand's old time enemies in the chamber of deputies will continue their battle against his policy was given by the announcement of Deputy Franklin Bouillon that he would interpellate the government when the chamber reconvenes. He said he would demand that M. Briand be replaced.

PLACE BLAME ON MENOICAL

Havana—Gen. Mario G. Menocal, former president of Cuba and prominent opposition leader, was charged with being "the chief reason for Cuba's political unrest" in a report of Lieut. Miguel Calvo, head of the secret police. The report, it was learned, charged the former president with responsibility for the republic's unrest and with being "the most insistent of fourteen men who at the present time are aspiring to the presidency." President Machado left the palace at noon, still troubled with a slight indisposition due to a neuralgia attack, and went to his country place at Santiago de las Vegas.

Feeding Hogs in Car Causes Many Deaths

Department of Agriculture Urges Shippers of Hogs to Watch Effects of Feeding

"In hot weather don't feed shipped hogs in the car." That is the essence of shipping instructions being prepared for hog producers by the Agricultural Department of the Colorado & Southern and Burlington Railroads. "A full stomach materially reduces their ability to resist heat," they insist, "and the hogs are continually showering transit swine unless shippers cooperate by withholding feed until the hogs arrive at a favorable feeding station."

"Neither chinders nor ordinary dirt should be allowed before loading and the hogs should be rested and cooled before being put aboard the cars. Overloading should be carefully avoided and hogs of different sizes and from different herds separated by partitions." The Burlington has recently installed new double deck showering devices at all strategic shipping centers and it is hoped through the discreet use of these and the cooperation of shippers to reduce hot weather hog losses to a minimum.

"The hogs are not to be fed until they are cooled and the car is cleaned, bedded with sand and, where possible, thoroughly wet down before feeding," continues this timely report. "Less than the normal feed should be allowed before loading and the hogs should be rested and cooled before being put aboard the cars. Overloading should be carefully avoided and hogs of different sizes and from different herds separated by partitions." The Burlington has recently installed new double deck showering devices at all strategic shipping centers and it is hoped through the discreet use of these and the cooperation of shippers to reduce hot weather hog losses to a minimum.

"The matter of shrink is a much over emphasized bugaboo. The hog buyers trained thru years of study and experience are not easily fooled on the dressing percentage of the hogs they buy. They purchase all lots on a basis of quality and not on the basis of shrink. The shrink of hogs is largely a result of many heat prostrations. If properly loaded, however, without excess feeding and bedded with damp sand, the fattest hogs will arrive at market despite hot weather handicaps in good condition."

FIND BODY IN RAVINE

Omaha—The body of a woman betive of Detroit, was found early Tuesday to be Miss Grace Austin, a lady night in a ravine near the southern limits of Omaha. A bullet thru the head had ended her life.

The body was propped up against a tree, a .22 caliber rifle on the ground beside it. Police believe the woman shot herself. A copy of the book, "The Heroic Adventure," lay nearby.

A note found on the body asked that J. C. Austin, General Motors building, Detroit, and Gertrude M., 1340 College avenue, Racine, Wis., be notified.

The dead woman was about fifty or fifty-five years old, police doctors said. She was well dressed. She had been dead for several hours when the body was found by a group of boys.

Personal effects in her purse indicated that she may have come to Omaha from Spirit Lake, Ia. Racine, Wis.—Miss Gertrude Nusgrove, Racine school teacher, said she believed she was the "Gertrude M." addressed in a note found beside a body of a woman discovered dead near Omaha and expressed opinion the tentative police identification of the body as Miss Grace Austin was correct.

SUPPOSED MASONIC APRON OF AARON BURR IS FOUND

New York, May 27.—At the Jumel Mansion, which was Washington's headquarters for a time during the revolution, is a Masonic apron supposed to have been the property of Aaron Burr. The donor, late Mrs. William W. Armstrong, said it was a gift to an ancestor from a relative of Burr.

Reserve Report Notes Gains in Several Lines

General Output and Work Figures, However, Change Little in April

Washington—While the general output of manufactures and employment in factories showed little change from March to April, according to a summary of business and financial conditions in the United States published in the Federal Reserve Bulletin, certain industries experienced more than usual seasonal increases in business.

The automobile industry, the report states, had a larger than seasonal increase in output. Consumption of cotton by domestic mills also increased contrary to the usual seasonal movement, the bulletin declares.

Large increases in the production of petroleum and anthracite coal are also noted. The number employed in factories in the middle of April, the report declared, was about the same as a month earlier. In car-building shops and in establishments producing machinery, employment decreased considerably, while in the automobile and cement industries there were seasonal increases, and in the fertilizer industry a larger than seasonal increase.

Employment in textile mills declined by less than the seasonal amount, reflecting chiefly a slight increase in employment at cotton mills, and a small decrease in the clothing industry; at mills producing woolen and silk goods declines in employment were larger than usual. Factory pay rolls declined somewhat in April.

Value of building contracts awarded, which fluctuates widely from month to month, declined considerably in April, according to the F. R. Dodge Corporation, and decreases were reported in all the leading classes of construction. In the first four months of the year total awards decreased 26 per cent from the corresponding period of 1930, reflecting declines of 10 per cent for residential building, 17 per cent for public works and utilities, 25 per cent for educational building, 43 per cent for factories, and 57 per cent for commercial buildings.

Freight car loading showed about the usual seasonal increase in April. Department store sales increased 9 per cent from March, and the board's index, which makes allowance for the usual seasonal variations including changes in the date of Easter, stood at 105 per cent of the 1923-1925 average, compared with 97 per cent in March.

The general level of wholesale prices declined 1.6 per cent further in April, according to the bureau of labor statistics. In the first half of May, prices of many leading commodities were reduced further, and for the six-week period as a whole there were large declines in the prices of cotton, silk, and textiles; livestock and dairy products; cement, petroleum products and nonferrous metals.

Loans and investments of reporting member banks in leading cities declined by about $150,000,000 between April 1 and the middle of May, reflecting substantial liquidation in loans on securities and in all other loans, largely commercial. This liquidation of loans was offset in part by further large additions to the bank's investments, which on May 13 were more than $1,000,000,000 larger than at the beginning of the year.

Volume of reserve bank credit declined somewhat in the six weeks ending May 15. Contrary to the usual seasonal tendency, there was some further increase in currency demand for the period, reflecting chiefly banking disturbances in the middle West. Gold imports continued in considerable volume and supplied the member banks with sufficient funds to meet the additional demand for currency, and also to reduce somewhat the amount of Reserve bank credit outstanding.

DOUBT CHINESE MEAN WAR

Shanghai, May 27.—Prospects of another civil war in China appeared problematical today, despite bellicose statements from both the government and revolting southern factions.

President Chiang Kai-Shek is expected to take up arms against the southerners unless the latter assume a conciliatory attitude. Authentic information indicates the rebels—Communists in the eyes of the government—apparently are marshaling their forces for a military attempt to penetrate Nanking's domain, claiming semi-independent war lords are joining their cause.

Among these, they assert, are Marshal Feng Yuxiang and Sun Po-sun of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese republic. However, observers believe the rebelling factions are merely indulging in sword-rattling to determine the extent of popular support, while carefully maintaining a position that will permit them to return to Nanking banners if their political fortunes seem to dictate such a move.

The thrones of the kings of the underworld seem to be doing a bit of tottering, too.

MisSimplicity makes your clothes fit like a Paris Mannequin's!

Leading dressmakers everywhere say, "It's no trick to achieve smart lines, when the frock is fitted over a correct moulding foundation." MisSimplicity, designed by Gossard, skillfully moulds the figure to slim curves. The diagonal "cross-pull" of the waist-line straps flattens the diaphragm and abdomen, uplifts the bust, slenderizes the waistline and holds the figure to correct posture. Side panels of pliant elastic taper the hips to perfection.
