TIME'S RULING HAND

Perhaps no man's name has been connected with so much of obloquy and anathema as that of Jefferson Davis, one-time Confederate President. But the healing hand of time has erased much of this. The perspective of the years shows the great Southern leader no less entitled to the admiration and respect of the American people than is true especially of his greatest general, Robert E. Lee. Both were similarly motivated. Both stood with their states and people. And now, after long years, a memorial to Jefferson Davis has been unveiled at Washington. There was no popular protest in the north, though many still are living who took part in the dramatic activities of the Civil war.

The effigy of the Southern leader was the gift of Mississippi to Statuary Hall. Senator Harrison declared that this recognition of the service and sacrifice of a great man would forever hold our country together.

It will at least show that those who live today have realized that the time has come to honor the man who has chief of some of the greatest military heroes of warfare, most all of whom long ago were distinguished by worthy remembrance at the National Capitol and elsewhere.

It is true, as John Sharp Williams said at the unveiling of the Davis statue, that: "No Southerner would impeach the character of Lincoln, and no generous soul would deny to Jefferson Davis the credit due to a great man, falling greatly with a falling state."

Davis was loyal to his people. He served his country well as Senator of the United States. If Lincoln suffered because of fratricidal strife, so Davis must bitterly have suffered in full realization of the tragedy of his "los teause."

We presume Mr. Capone has some bright young man in his office capable of looking after things while he is away on his vacation. The late E. P. Ripley of the Sante Fe once was quoted as saying the three elements of success in big business were organization, co-operation and deputization. It would be sad to learn that Mr. Capone, in spite of a brilliant start, must turn out to be a flop merely because he forgot to train someone to whom he might deputize important duties in time of need.

WAR DEBT HOLIDAY

The offer of the United States government, made through President Hoover for a year holiday in the payment of war debts and reparations, brings a rainbow of hope to the world that the great economic depression may to a measure at least be relieved.

The nearness of all of the nations to each other in these modern days is such that the prosperity of all is more or less affected by the affliction of any one of the great nations of the world.

To cure the cause of world wide depression will materially aid the cause of every nation and this cause can be placed, particularly in Germany, on the great burdens of reparations that country must pay and which has crippled every line of their industrial and economic life. The great burdens of the war debts and reparations has led to a grave crisis in the German national life, the government desperately battling to maintain the stability of the republic, has found a rising tide of opposition that if not checked must sweep that great nation into the ranks of the communistic groups that have threatened to engulf many of the other nations of the world, which only a move similar to that suggested by President Hoover could relieve.

Wise leaders of the nations who have carried on the governmental work of the last few years, have grown to appreciate that the spirit of co-operation and tolerance among the nations was necessary to save them one by one from being swept into the gulf of despair or destruction of the existing forms of governments.

The general approval of the nations to the Hoover suggestion is apparent and in our country the conferences of the political leaders of both of the great parties have agreed on the backing of the yearly holiday in war debts and reparations.

The attitude of the French government has not been announced, but the strong approval of the British government to the plan shows clearly that the old world nations are to urge strongly the acceptance of the offer of the United States to forego their war debt collections for a year and to relieve Germany of the $485,000,000 that they must pay to the allied nations for the year.

CROWDING OUT ROWDYISM

At the forthcoming state convention of the American Legion at Fremont and national convention at Detroit, a new method of handling the situation is to be tried out. In years past young boys, scarcely more than babes in arm at the time of the war have furnished most of the cause for complaint on grounds of rowdyism. To those unfamiliar with the facts and to enemies of the Legion, the entire debacle has been laid onto the Legion. Men returning home from the convention have heard greatly exaggerated reports being spread thru-out the country about the wild times that were had.

And so, this new plan, if it does not stamp out rowdyism, will at least place the responsibility for it squarely on the heads of those to whom it is chargeable. Beginning at sundown of each day, doors of convention hotels will be closed to all but registered guests and the Legion itself will furnish guard details.

No big national convention is a tame affair, strictly speaking. Even reports of the political conventions, as given by radio, were colored with events that were continually happening among men who take a drink now and then—mostly "then." There is something about a man who is law-abiding to the Nth degree at home, that makes him want to make whoopee when he rigs himself out in convention attire—and if this weren't the case generally, attendance at conventions would show a marked falling off.

It is not to be expected that the convention of men who as boys a few years ago went forth to battle for their country, would be any different in this respect than a convention of any of the great fraternal organizations—and it isn't!

This year, however, if there is fault to find, there will be full identification of the miscreants and no attempt to shield them because they happen to belong to the Legion.

The presence of outsiders at any Legion convention is not needed to make it a success.

According to the United States treasury, the dollar bill wears out ten times as fast as the $10 bill, while a $10 bill wears out twice as fast as a $20 bill. Therefore, it is easy to figure out that the higher you go the more tenderly bills are handled. Perhaps $100 bills are kissed tenderly, and if Lester Franklin saw those six $10,000 bills and four $5,000 bills, he must have dropped to his knees in reverence.

UNABLE TO EAT

"I suffered such great distress from indigestion that I was unable to eat. I bought ZINSEP and immediately obtained wonderful relief," says J. E. Reeder, Falls City, Neb., your stomach misery with ZINSEP. It's GUARANTEED. At all druggists.

W. G. McAdoo is making some speeches out on the Pacific coast about the nation's economic and social ills, copies of which are flooding newspaper offices throughout the country. If Bill is launching a propaganda campaign to capture the democratic nomination for president, he may as well desist. We have no faith in any man's remedies for economic and social ills, not even our own. The only way out is to let nature take its course. Furthermore, we have not forgotten how Bill McAdoo sulked in his political tent after the nomination of John W. Davis.

A different picture than one visualizes of Capone was painted over the radio last night by U. S. Attorney General, who gave the youth of the land some concrete examples of the fallacy of believing the life of gang-leaders is one of bravery. Of all the "big shots" in the business only a very few have escaped the clutches of the law and an even worse fate—such as a shot in the back or being put on the spot and mowed down by machine gun fire.

Its regulated combustion increases MOTOR POWER

Ethyl fluid adds nothing to the raw power nature gave gasoline. But this is why it improves the performance of your motor.
Raw gasoline detonates at high compression—creates a series of intermittent explosions. The force of these explosions is largely across the cylinder, instead of downward.
Adding Ethyl fluid makes gasoline burn evenly. The flame flashes from the spark to the piston head. All the gasoline is burned at an even speed and full power is applied.
New RED CROWN ETHYL is made from gasoline of exceptional power. To this gasoline Ethyl fluid is added which so perfectly regulates combustion that the performance of every motor is improved. New Red Crown Ethyl challenges comparison on quick-starting, power, quiet operation and on mileage per gallon.
