Does Not Look So Bad. James M. Teegarden, senior member of the firm of Teegarden and Crocker Realtors, was looking over some business matters in Murdock on last Wednesday and in speaking of the depression, said that during the past week they had closed up deals which sold three very fine farms in Cass county and which went at good prices, which is an indication that the world or that portion of it which is described by the boundaries of Cass county, has not gone to the Bow Wows by a good deal. People want Cass county farms and will continue to want them for this is a very good place to live and the land here will always be good property.

Knows How To Cook. We, the writer, went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Thimigan to get the data for writing the wedding of their daughter, but when we arrived at home the following day, found that some one had beaten us to the job, for the copy was in the hands of the machine man. But we will have something to say, and that as to the decorations of the home when the wedding was performed under an over hanging wedding bell with red and white streamers making the altar a most beautiful place. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Tool, cousin of the groom, and the best man was Lester Thimigan, the brother of the bride. Mr. E. W. Thimigan, father of the bride, gave her away, while Mrs. Hannah McDonald, mother of the groom, gave him away and was with the ring ceremony, the ceremony being conducted by the Rev. H. R. Knosp, their pastor. The color scheme was carried to the dining room where the wedding dinner was served. One feature was striking and testifies to the guarantee of a happy home was that of the baking of the wedding or bride's cake by herself and which was an exquisite piece of cookery. When a bride ticks the palates of the consouers of fine cookery, she is inclined to always maintain the health of the home. We extend congratulations and best wishes to this young couple, wishing them happiness, health and prosperity.

Very pretty and impressive wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thimigan, Murdock, Nebr., on Tuesday evening, Sept. 8th, when their daughter, Miss Florence L. Thimigan, became the bride of Mr. William J. B. McDonald of Murdock. Promptly at 5:00 p. m. the contracting parties took their places beneath a large white bell and before a beautiful lattice trimmed with pink and white streamers and decorated with pink and white candles on each side of the lattice on pedestals, a basket of pink cosmos, Rev. H. R. Knosp, pastor of the Murdock Evangelical church spoke the solemn words which made these worthy young people one for life. The impressive ring ceremony was served. Only the immediate relatives were present to witness the happy occasion.

The bride wore a very pretty brown silk and wool crepe sport dress and was accompanied by Miss Mary Tool as bridesmaid. The groom wore a brown-striped suit and was attended by Mr. Lester Thimigan as best man.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thimigan of Murdock, Nebr. She is an industrious, ambitious young woman and possesses rare talents, being a graduate of the Murdock High school, class of 1927, and later took a commercial course at the Grand Island Business College.

The groom is a young man of sterling character and is one of the progressive and successful business men of Murdock. He is a graduate of the Murdock high school, class of 1926. He is a son of Mrs. Hannah McDonald.

Immediately after the ceremony a very delicious two-course dinner was served. The dining room was elaborately decorated in pink and white.

The same evening, the happy couple, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lacey McDonald departed for an extensive honeymoon trip to Denver and the Rocky mountains and other places of interest.

ENJOYS VISIT FROM FRIENDS From Saturday's Daily— Mrs. Lois Troop and sister, Mrs. Mary Vodra, were enjoying recently a visit from their nieces, Mesdames Victor Mason and Edyth Forsythe of Selma, La., who arrived and visited for a few days during this week and on yesterday departed for Lincoln where they are the guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Sherman. Mrs. Sherman being a cousin of the visitors. Mrs. Troop also was enjoying a visit from Mr. and Mrs. Winfield S. McIntire of Chicago, who were accompanied by their two sons, Winfield Scott, Jr., and Calvin Lee. Winfield S. McIntire was formerly Miss Dorothy Joy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Joy, and granddaughter of Mrs. N. A. Leist, a sister of Mrs. Troop. The McIntire family have been spending a few months with the father of Mrs. McIntire, Mr. Byron Joy, Mr. McIntire left Chicago a few weeks since to visit in California and was driving, when his car was injured at Salt Lake City, and where he had it left for repairs. He received $800 as damages for the injury to the car. Mr. McIntire continued his trip via an airplane and found the trip most exhilarating and when approaching Los Angeles, was high in the air, and could see nothing of the city only white clouds as the sun's rays played on them. As they came nearer the city the pilot dipped the plane, cutting thru the barrage of clouds when a most beautiful vision appeared, the wonderful city bathed in the glorious sunshine of Southern California. The McIntire family visited here for some days when they continued their homeward bound trip in their trusty Buick.

Early History of Plattsmouth is Recounted

for political trade or not may be a matter of conjecture which succeeding events may throw further light upon. After the Cass delegation had expended considerable oratory in defense of their cause, Kempton's motion came to a vote and resulted in 13 nays and 12 ayes, so the motion to locate at Plattsmouth was lost. The vote was on a strictly sectional basis with every member from the south Platte voting for Plattsmouth.

The following day, January 25, 1855, Rev. Wood of Forney county moved to insert Brownville in the bill but the motion last 17 to 8 as this was the only time Brownville figured in either the discussion or more of an effort to further the possibility of a south Platte selection rather than a real boom for Brownville. Mr. Poppleton of Douglas then countered with a motion to insert Omaha City in the bill and there followed a series of parliamentary maneuvers on the part of the south Platte faction in an effort to keep Poppleton's motion from coming to a vote. Mr. Latham accented the same postponement until March 16, which of course would have completely sidetracked the motion of the Douglas county member but was defeated by a tie vote, 13-13. Mr. Johnson then asked for "indefinite postponement" but his motion lost 14 to 11. Mr. Decker's motion to postpone until the afternoon session straggled by a 15 to 10 vote and further argument and action went over until two o'clock.

At this time, the vote to insert Omaha City was put to a vote and lost 13 to 12 on a strictly sectional vote as both sides stood solidly opposed. But within five minutes, Mr. Poppleton of Douglas county retracted his motion to insert Omaha City and it carried 14 to 11. The south Platte phalanx was broken and the three Cass delegates, Latham, Kempton and Thompson voted for Omaha while two north Platte representatives, Doyle of Dodge and Smith of Washington joined the south Platte ranks and voted no ye.

The final vote was as follows: Voting aye: Byers, Clancy, Davidson, Davis, Goyer, Poppleton and Whited, all of Douglas; Kempton, Latham and Thompson of Cass; Arnold of Washington; Purple and Robertson of Burt. Those voting no: Cowles, Mr. George Maddox of Pierce, Finney and Wood of Forney; Johnson and Singleton of Richardson; Doyle of Dodge and Smith of Washington.

What happened between the morning and afternoon session that persuaded the Cass county trio to abandon their interest in Plattsmouth and a south Platte selection? It is strange, powerful influences must have seized them during the noon hour and convinced them that Omaha was the best place for the capitol. Or perhaps in a moment of secluded, studied thought, they came to the conclusion that they had been wrong before. Mr. Latham was none the less to defend his action following his vote in the afternoon. He said on the floor of the house that the Cass county delegation was disagreed as to the best course. That he was in favor of Plattsmouth and that he had pledged himself to support his town but that if he could not succeed, he would vote for Omaha. In reply, Mr. Decker of Pierce who voted "no" to the last, charged that Latham had openly deserted his friends and constituents and sold himself. "We have stood up for Plattsmouth like men, voted together every time and every honest man will admit that the south Platte has the largest population and ought to have the capitol. Smith of Washington, one of two north Platte men who voted against Omaha, charged that bribery and corruption had been practised, that it was most disgraceful to vote against Omaha and all its interests. As if to make sure that Omaha would succeed, even, Gov. Cumming appeared in person before the house in the critical afternoon session and continued his argument that he had found that the north Platte had the largest population and that he had based his representation accordingly, despite the fact that his own figures disproved his allegation.

The most bitter critic of the Cass county delegates was the Bellvue Palladium. Certain of defeat from the first in its advocacy of Bellvue as the seat of government, The Palladium now turned the full force of its disappointed rage against the Cass delegation. It branded Mr. Latham as the "bell weather of that shameful delegation who were traitors to their constituents and offered no more resistance to Omaha than a fifteen year old boy." In its frenzied exhortation of Messrs. Latham, Kempton and Thompson, The Palladium for the moment forgot its own fight for Bellvue and actually argued in favor of the selection of Plattsmouth as the place best endowed by nature. Bellvue's resentment against Omaha for having robbed her of what she thought to be her rightful heritage, was so deep seated that she would support any place rather than see Omaha be successful.

On February 7, in a special edition, The Palladium continued its denunciation of the three upon whom they placed the blame for Omaha's success. "They are looked upon as having sold their constituents and pocketed the money. Since the days of Benedict Arnold, nothing has appeared indicating treachery more clearly than the vote of these delegates. The vote of these unprincipled tools turned the scale against the best interests of the whole region of country on both Sides of the Platte and crushed all hope that Plattsmouth might be favored with the capitol. The interests of Cass county were sold to the friends of Omaha City whether for something or for nothing, it matters not to the people of Cass county; they were sold and their power and influence has gone with it.
