OBITUARY Warren Leslie Trumble

Warren Leslie Trumble was born on May 16, 1896. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Trumble of Eagle, Nebraska. The greater part of his life has been spent in Eagle, except for five years he gave to the service of his country. At the age of 18 he volunteered in the U. S. Navy, in which capacity he served for three years. He came home for a short visit with his family and then joined his brother in their country's service. Ernest and Warren enlisted in the Machine Gun Battalion of the 6th Nebraska Infantry in June, 1917. Later they were sent to Camp Cody, N. M., where they were in training a number of months before going to France to enter active service. After the signing of the Armistice, they were again transferred to the Army of Occupation, where they with thousands of their comrades guarded the River Rhine. After Warren's return to Nebraska in 1919, he thought he would like to be of some service to his father, so he went with him to his ranch in Colorado and farmed for several years. Then he returned to Eagle, taking over the truck business, which he still owns.

In May, 1924, he was united in marriage to Olive M. Olson of Eagle. To this union were born two sons—Robert Leslie, age 6, and Jerry Lee, age ten months.

He passed away Sunday, Sept. 27th at the U. S. Veterans hospital at Lincoln.

He leaves to mourn his untimely departure, his widow, two sons, a stepson, Harry, his aged father and mother, three sisters—Lena of California; Nellie and Olive of Lincoln; four brothers—Charlie, Valley, and William of Eagle, and Elmer of Waverly, Neb., besides a host of other relatives and friends. Two sisters and two brothers have preceded him in death.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock on Monday, Oct. 12, at the St. Patrick's Catholic church at Manley. Burial will be in the Holy Angel cemetery at Manley.

About twenty of the members of the Royal Neighbors of America met at their hall on last Wednesday, looked after the business of the order and as well had a sociable time with plenty of good things to eat.

Edward O'Brien brother of R. D. O'Brien, making his home in the west portion of the state, was visiting with the relatives here last week, having just returned from a visit to Illinois, where he had attended a family reunion of the O'Brien family.

While the sun shone brightly, Fred Flatschmann remembered that there was a tinge of frost in the air, and so had John Rohrdanz point up his foundation and see that the chimney was in good condition and the cellar windows so they could be closed and that the house would be kept warm.

Now the next thing is to get a supply of fuel.

Making Severe Cut.

Just west of the Missouri Pacific tracks as it goes south from Manley there has been a stiff hill on highway No. 1, and preparatory to grading this popular piece of roadway, the graders are making a severe cut there and with a portion of the dirt will raise the grade on the east side of the tracks. Transplanting Suggestions.

Autumn is the most opportune time for transplanting in the garden, according to Prof. W. W. Yocum of the Agricultural College. He says the soil is warm and in good condition at this time.

In the fall transplanting, it should be done early. After a hot, dry summer such as Nebraskans have witnessed, transplanting can start earlier than usual because the plants are in a more mature condition due to the heat and drought.

With most perennial plants and herbaceous plants in the best month for successful transplantation.

Fall transplanting of trees and shrubs is not recommended. The winters in Nebraska are too dry and cold for such plants that have a large top exposed. The roots and shrubs are not able to make sufficient development after fall transplanting to supply the exposed top with moisture over winter. Shrubs, he points out will, however, succeed better than trees. This is especially true if they are pruned back to within six inches of the ground as they should be. Then they can be mounded up over the brown.

Plants should be moved when there is least demand for water. Since plants are relatively dormant or inactive during the fall and spring months, this is the best time to do transplanting.

Immediately after transplanting, water should be applied to the plants liberally. Professor Yocum declares that several days and perhaps weeks the ground should not be allowed to become dry around the newly transplanted plant. It should not be kept in a saturated condition but there should be sufficient water so that the reduced system can be used to full capacity.

Testing Circles.

Eight out of twelve women from the Fairview Club are convinced that the use of a dish drainer is a real time and labor saver. "I use a pan of scalding water into which I dip the dishes as I wash them, then stack them in the drainer. By the time I have finished washing they are ready to put away." "I use one-third as many dish towels—really astonishing how few I had been using." The above remarks made by some women who have belonged to the testing circle. This group of women tried out some twenty pieces of equipment by actually using them, and making a study as to the time required, ease in use, efficiency in use, quality of product, storage space required and cost compared to frequency in use.

Other articles which the women found especially helpful were Speedo can opener, Betty Bubbles hand washer, dutch oven, wonder shredder and the Burns bread knife.

WILL PURCHASE MISSION The State Baptist convention at Omaha Thursday voted to purchase the old Merrill mission located west of LaPlatte and which is the oldest established house of religious worship in the state.

This mission was established in 1835 by Rev. and Mrs. Moses Merrill, who were the first to establish a regular religious home among the Oto Indians that were then residing in this section of the west. The mission was operated for a number of years but with the settlement of the river communities other church organizations came to the territory and the old mission was allowed to fall into disuse.

The building has been allowed in the past years to gradually fall into decay and was used as a grain warehouse by the owners of the farm on which it was located. It was urged by the late Monsignor Michael A. Shine of the state historical society, that the mission be secured by the state and made one of the state historical spots and be restored to the condition that it was when the early day Baptist missionary and his wife came here to preach the christian faith.
