Had Pleasant Trip.

On Sunday, two weeks since, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lynn was surprised as the afternoon came, by the appearance of E. J. Lynn and wife, who were nephew and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn, and son of Andrew Lynn, brother of Uncle Daniel. They visited during the afternoon and evening, remaining over night. As they were talking in the evening, Mr. E. J. Lynn said: "Uncle Daniel, you and auntie had better go home with us in the morning and make a good long visit." There was room in the car which they drove and the idea took with both Mr. and Mrs. Lynn and they accompanied their nephew and niece home where they visited at the old home where they had resided near a half century since, and there they met their many old friends and found the home town, Geneva, which was some 500 when they had left, and when they went out this time, a city of 2,800. They visited at many places and with their many friends and when they were ready to return home, they were brought to Lincoln by a son-in-law of Robert Hastings, Mr. Fred Nunn and wife, who were coming to Lincoln and this only allowed Uncle

Daniel and the good wife to pay their way from Lincoln to Union. Taking the trip all in all, it was a most pleasant one and a good visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Frans and party enjoyed the visit with their friend very much. Many years ago, when the Modern Woodman of America was instituted in Union, Mr. Hoag became a charter member of the order and which he has remained until this time.

Suit to Enjoin Filing of Referendum Petition

Ask Court to Prevent Secretary Marsh from Submitting Law to Voters at General Election

Charging that the petition to submit Senate File No. 33, the new motor truck license law, to the voters of the state for referendum, is not sufficient and does not contain genuine signatures of 5 percent of the voters of the state, William B. Banning, Charles B. Stewart and V. G. Hill filed a suit in district court to enjoin Secretary of State Marsh from putting the measure upon the ballot at the election in November, 1932. It is claimed that only 11,313 names are good and the petition is void. The petition asks that pending a final hearing a temporary injunction be issued against Secretary Marsh to restrain any action under the pretended referendum petition.

Mr. Banning is former state senator living at Union, engaged in orcharding and banking. Mr. Stewart is secretary of the Nebraska farm bureau federation. Mr. Hill is connected with the American Automobile association at Lincoln.

The suit is brought by the three plaintiffs in their own behalf and on behalf of other citizens of the state similarly situated. It is claimed that the referendum petition to refer the law, passed by the 1931 legislature, to the voters does not contain the required 5 percent of electors of each two-fifths of the counties of the state as required by law.

It is alleged that the Nebraska Motor Transport association, inc., a corporation with headquarters at Omaha, is an association of truck owners and operators and that the corporation sponsored the securing of signatures and filing of the petition. It is claimed that the association employed 645 different counties, and purports to contain the signatures of more than 10 percent of the electors so distributed as to include 5 percent of the electors of two-fifths of the counties since there were 437,776 votes cast for governor at the general election in 1930.

The plaintiffs contend that the petition contains a large number of names of fictitious persons; a large number who were not qualified electors when they signed; and that a large number are invalid and cannot be counted by reason of forgery, false and detective certificates, signatures procured thru false misrepresentations of circulators and that a large number of names cannot be counted because the signers did not write on the same line at the left of their signature the date the signature was affixed. It is also alleged that a large number should not be counted because they were procured contrary to the provisions of the section covering the matter.

It is also claimed that some of the circulators circulated the petition outside of the county of their residence without first having filed with the secretary of state a bond as provided by law. It is further alleged that some of the circulators did not have the qualifications required by law and that signatures secured by such should not be counted. Further charges are made that the petition contains names of persons, who as a condition precedent to the rights to vote are required to register, and who were not registered at the time of signing, and who did not file with the petition an affidavit setting forth the officers of the transport association should have known that the petition did contain a large number of names which should not be counted but that they made no effort to eliminate names from the petition before it was filed. It is charged that because of these irregularities the petition is void.

FARMERS AID BOYD COUNTY

Butte, Oct. 13.—Although drouth and grasshoppers laid waste to crops and even vegetable gardens in Boyd county this summer, leaving hundreds of families on the verge of destitution, that county through its American Red Cross chapter is stocking up empty larders.

Sixteen carloads of foodstuffs have been or will be shipped into the stricken communities and distributed where most vitally needed, W. T. Wills, secretary of the chapter, reported Tuesday.

Fruit growers in southeastern Nebraska already have furnished two carloads of apples and are loading five more. The growers are loading the cars for 10 cents per bushel.

Potato producers around Scotts-bluff, Alliance and Chadron, have shipped seven carloads of tubers charging the Red Cross from 35 to 50 cents a hundred pounds at the loading point.

A carload of beans will be shipped from western Nebraska and a carload of wheat to be prepared as breakfast food.

Reduced railroad freight rates have aided also in transporting the provisions.
