Bible School Lesson Study!

Sunday, January 10th By L. Neitzel

The First Disciples

John 1:35-42. As a fitting introduction to this lesson we will follow the events in the life of Christ, as given by the other evangelists and omitted by John. We have given in his prologue to his gospel the information that Jesus was the "Son of God." Then he has no more to say until the baptism of Jesus. The birth of Jesus, the childhood and presentation in the temple, the visit of the wise men, the flight into Egypt, the return to Nazareth, Jesus in the temple with the doctors, the forty days temptation—all these are passed over and left for other writers to narrate. Luke has the most complete record of these events. The baptism of Jesus is recorded by all the evangelists.

New follow the two events recorded in John 1:19-35 (just preceding the subject matter of our lesson):

(1) The visit of a delegation of the Jews to John the Baptist. These men were duly authorized to inquire about this new doctrine that John preached, as also in regard to his person. This was very proper. One function of the Sanhedrin was to judge false prophets, hence they now desired to judge the claims of John.

John alone gives us the testimony of John the Baptist to Jesus. Priest and Levites were the proper parties to inquire into a new religious movement.

(2) This testimony of John the Baptist is highly significant and the scene is momentous when this wilderness preacher is able to point and say, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."

John here referred to Hebrew history, beginning of the sprinkling of the blood of the passover lamb, and remembering also the comparison of the Messiah to a lamb in Isaiah 53:7: "He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter."

It is every Christian's blessed duty to make these words the theme of his life, pointing sinners to the sin-bearer, pointing dying souls to the eternal life.

If John had only given us what transpired in those two hours conversation in the house where Jesus lodged; but we know this, that these two disciples left John the Baptist and

And at the home of Harold Reed, who lives on the farm of Frank Schlichtemeier a son came on January 3rd. All are doing nicely and the home's happy.

Receivers Are Selected

Dover, Del.—Chancellor Wolcott disclosed late Friday that he appointed three receivers for the American Commonwealth Power corporation, large public utility system with executive offices in New York, St. Louis and Grand Rapids, Mich.

The receivers were appointed, the chancellor said, with the consent of the corporation upon a petition filed by Daniel Hoegarty, of New York, a stockholder. Simultaneously with the filing of the bill of complaint Chancellor Wolcott said, the corporation filed an answer admitting all its allegations, including those of insolvency and inability to meet maturing obligations.

The direct cause of the receivership petition was the company's inability to meet a $4,000,000 short term loan maturing Saturday. The petition was filed in a "friendly" effort to bring about a reorganization of the system. Altho earnings have been maintained, inability to finance capital requirements led to the action, which also included the American Community Power company, a principal subsidiary. The receivership action against the latter concern will be terminated shortly, it was reported by interested persons.

The Edison family, through J. V. Miller, Edison's son-in-law, previously stated the Milan property would be preserved, although plans for beautifying it are not yet complete.

The Kingdom begins with personal acquaintance. As it began, so it continues. The mark of citizenship is personal knowledge, still. Strangers and aliens may say, "I know about him," but the true citizen can say, "I know him."

The writer of this gospel in later life wrote three epistles, also Revelation, but in his first epistle he uses the terms "know" and "known" 32 times; he KNEW what he was talking about.

The first chapter has been called the chapter of the "Eureka's" from the number of times it contains the Greek verb for "finding."

ARGENTINE HAS OUTBREAK Parana, Argentina.—A rebellion against the authority of President Urburu broke out in Entrerios province Sunday, and more than 100 men, including police, firemen and soldiers, were marching on La Paz to put down the movement. President Urburu ordered his troops to maintain order in the province, and regiments were held in barracks in readiness to intervene. A similar outbreak in Concordia was understood to have failed because police were previously informed and took drastic steps. Governor Etchevehere of Entrerios province received a telephone call from the rebel leader, Mario Kennedy, at La Paz saying the disturbance there was part of a nationwide revolution. The rebels were said to have occupied the police station, the telegraph office and other public buildings in the vicinity of La Paz early Sunday morning. Telegraphic communications were broken. Concordia.—Reports that a widespread revolutionary movement was impending aroused alarm here Sunday, but police and soldiers stationed at strategic points prevented a local outbreak.

Buenos Aires.—Rebels who rose against the government at La Paz surrendered to the forces in Entrerios province said officials in Buenos Aires, and the uprising had been put down. Four men were killed in a clash at La Paz, the government was informed.

Seventy-five Farm Records Collected. Seventy-five farm records were checked in at six meetings held in the county last week. There are about 25 more to be collected this week and next. Any one wishing to start a new book should get in touch with the Farm Bureau office this week.

The books that have been brought in this year are more complete and accurate than they have ever been before. People find the new book much easier to keep than the old one, and too, the year more interested in keeping account of every dollar spent. The eliminating of any possible unnecessary overhead operating expense is a step to immediate relief to themselves.

D. H. I. A. Wins Jersey Bull. The Cass-Otoe-Johnson Improvement Association was awarded a registered Jersey bull as an award for making the greatest improvement in herd sires used by members of the association.

All the D. H. I. Associations were entered in a herd sire contest and six bulls were given away as awards. Members of the Cass-Otoe-Johnson association have replaced several scrub bulls with purebreds with good records. This is the object of the contest. Sam Pickering of Unadilla will be given the use of the bull for the first year. After that other members of the association will use the animal. This award was made at the dairy meeting held during Organized Agriculture this week.

Lee Farris Wins Corn Yield Contest. Lee Farris of Union, has been announced the winner of the ten acre corn yield contest in the eastern region. This is the second time Mr. Farris has won the ten acre corn yield contest in Cass county. This year his corn yielded 68.4 bushels. This winning entitles him to a $15.00 cash prize and a gold medal. The awards were made at the Crop Growers Association meeting held during Organized Agriculture in Lincoln this week.

Mr. Farris has been in the contest three years and his yields are: 1929, 102 bu.; 1930, 62 bu.; and 1931, 68.9 bu.

The outstanding thing about Mr. Farris' field this year, besides the high yield was the uniform, smooth type of ears. From 100 consecutive stalks fifteen excellent ears were found. These were so uniform, well filled, sound and smooth that they would be a credit to many corn shows. The reason for this is that Mr. Farris has been hand picking his seed corn and carefully selects this type of ear.

The object of this contest is not just to see who can grow the most corn per acre but to obtain valuable information from the summary of the records that the contestants keep. These records show which cultural methods are the most satisfactory, what legumes will do toward increasing the yield, how the selection of good seed influences the yield, and what it costs to produce the corn.

County Corn and Hog Day at Alvo. The annual county Corn and Hog Day will be held at Alvo February 10. A Corn Show with cash prizes will be the feature of the morning. A free lunch will be served at noon. P. H. Stewart and Ed Janike, specialists in Crops and Animal Husbandry, will be the afternoon speakers.

A. J. Roelofs of Alvo is local chairman of arrangements for the day's program.
