No More Buggies in State of Nebraska

State Board of Assessment Wipes Them Off Property List as Far as Taxes Are Concerned.

No more "thanks for the buggy ride" in Nebraska. Horse drawn buggies have been officially wiped off the map of the state so far as the state tax commissioner and state board of assessment are concerned. It matter not whether the vehicle is a single seated top buggy, a phaeton, herdic, barouche or any of the many other varieties of horses drawn vehicles, they are not supposed to exist when the county or precinct assessor comes snooping around the place. If they do exist the vehicles are supposed to be worth noting except possibly an antique or curio. They need not be listed for taxation.

State Tax Commissioner Smith has sent printed copies of his new tax schedules to county assessors. Formerly where there was a place to list "waggons and buggies" there now appears only "waggons" under the head of farm machinery. He omitted buggies after consulting county assessors.

But to make up for the loss of one item the state tax commissioner has inserted a new and somewhat important item, milking machines and dairy equipment under the head of farm machinery.

Each county must furnish its own printed schedules for county and precinct assessors. A total of 475,000 for each of two forms must be printed by the counties. One form has to do with the listing of tangible property and a separate form is for listing intangible property and a separate form is for listing intangible property.

Under the head of tangible property two new items are listed, one being electric refrigerators and the other electric washers and ironers. Pianos, organs and phonographs, formerly separate items, are now grouped with "other musical instruments."

Yearlings, two-year-olds and three-year-old cattle, listed in three classes, are hereafter to carry as S or an H, and the average weight, the letters denoting the number of steers or the number of heifers. Fat cattle will also be numbered as to steers or heifers.

The only change in the schedule for intangible property is that when one holds intangible as an executor, administrator or trustee he must state for whom he is holding it.

Corn, Hog Day Held at Alvo, Attracts Many

Annual Event Proves One of the Big Features of the Year to the Farmers.

Over one hundred people attended the annual corn, hog and poultry day held at Alvo, Wednesday, February 10th. W. Anderson of the Agronomy department, presented charts on the ten acre corn yield contest. Since the individual farmer can do very little if anything toward raising the price of corn, the best thing to do is to try to lower the production costs per bushel. The use of high yielding varieties and improved methods of cultivation are the big factors in cutting down the costs. Both of these points were emphasized and illustrated on Mr. Anderson's charts.

The reason that so many men dropped out of the pig crop contest is because of disease. This is also true of many other farmers, said Ed Janlike, livestock specialist from the college in his talk on the pig crop contest. Hog lot sanitation is the nearest "cure all" we have for the hog grower. When pigs are kept on clean alfalfa ground they will have more resistance to all diseases besides being free from worms.

The Corn Show was judged in the morning by Mr. Anderson. There were fourteen entries in the ten ears of yellow, twelve in the white and 21 in single ears. The following were winners:

Single ear white—1st, Dale Keller; 2nd, A. J. Roelofs; 3rd, A. J. Roelofs; 4th, Elton Keller.
Single ear yellow—1st, Ellis Mickle; 2nd, Sam Jordan; 3rd, Vincent Rehmeier; 4th, Mrs. Lizzie Lewis.
Ten ears yellow—1st, Frank Taylor; 2nd, Vincent Rehmeier; 3rd, Neal Lewis; 4th, Roy Stewart.
Ten ears white—1st, A. J. Roelofs; 2nd, Frank Taylor; 3rd, Dale Keller; 4th, Willard Christensen.

Everett Gooding of Omaha, was a visitor in the city today to spend a few hours attending to some matters of business and meeting the old time friends.
