ABOLISHMENT OF BUREAUS

Washington.—Senator Robinson told the senate it's time that those who favor abolishing bureaus or boards should specify what they want eliminated. Sounding again a democratic cry for government economy, his comment came in debate on an amendment by Senator McKellar to cut the pending interior department appropriation bill 10 percent excluding salaries. The amendment also provided authority for President Hoover to consolidate or abolish bureaus in the department or make such other changes as he deemed advisable to bring down expenditures.

A point of order was raised against the move by Senator Smoot and the proposed change was still pending when the senate adjourned.

McKellar attacked the proposed sales tax in the house revenue bill, and asserted his measure was one way of eliminating it. He said government economy, a tax on stock sales and sharp reductions in tax refunds were three steps by which a sales tax could be removed.

Robinson asserted that altho the move wouldn't "settle the problem of new revenues," all reductions "diminish the problems relating to the balancing of the budget."

Police Re-construct Method of Kidnaping

Believed to Be the Work of Three Men—Assert That Woman Had No Part.

Hopewell, N. J.—Possibility that a woman aided in the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., is eliminated in a police reconstruction of the crime made public Tuesday night. The police disclosed they have been working on the theory the abduction was carried out by three men, all shrewd criminals, who had made an intensive study of the Lindbergh house, grounds and family habits for some time beforehand. This preliminary study, the police now believe, may have extended to the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother at Englewood. Here is how the crime was carried out, as police reconstruct it:

The three men parked their automobile along Featherbed lane and went to the house on foot. One of them probably carried a flashlight, because his footprints were laid out in a straight line, while those of the others veered irregularly, indicating they were walking in darkness. Each of the men carried one section of the extension ladder, later found abandoned. When the house was reached the ladder was assembled and placed against the wall near the nursery window.

One of the men mounted it while his two confederates hid behind nearby clumps of bushes. As the kidnaper reached the window he encountered an obstacle inside. This was a cedar chest on top of which was a suitcase. He stood on the window sill and, bracing himself by placing one hand against the pane, backed into the room. (A muddy footprint was found on the sill and a smudge fingerprint on the pane.)

He had carried a chisel up the ladder with him, but upon finding the window open tossed the tool to the ground, where it was discovered by police. After entering the room the kidnaper lifted the baby from his crib and, returning to the window, signaled to one of his confederates. The latter climbed up the ladder and received the baby.

They then descended, one at a time, and started back to their automobile. In attempting to take the ladder apart the kidnapers broke one of the pegs and decided to abandon it.

The ransom note, never made public, was believed to have been left either on the cedar chest or on the suitcase.—State Journal.

BLAME OVERWORK IN KREUGER DEATH

Paris, March 15.—Friends, pointing to the fact that Ivar Krueger had not taken a holiday for 15 years, declared Tuesday the noted financier would not have taken his life had he not been too tired to carry on.

A younger brother of Krueger was making arrangements to have the body taken back to his native Sweden for burial.

The Paris press, despite the seriousness of the financial situation created by Krueger's death, had nothing but praise for him. The country has been grateful to him since he lent the government $25,000,000 in 1927, making possible the stabilization of the franc.

Mayor of Union
Suffers Assault
Attack Saturday

Trouble Started at Dance Followed by Alleged Hold Up of George Stites.

George A. Stites, mayor of Union, was the victim of what he claims was a holdup and assault late Saturday night at the hands of three young men of Union.

The story as given the county authorities is to the effect that Mr. Stites at a dance given at Union, had taken a bottle of whisky from a young man at the event and which the mayor had intended to take home with him as evidence against the parties. Later in the evening when Mr. Stites was en route home he was approached by three young men and it is alleged that one of the party drew a revolver on Mr. Stites and demanded that the whisky be turned over. Mr. Stites complied and then it is claimed that the men turned on Mr. Stites, knocking him down and beating him as well as administering several kicks as he lay helpless.

This morning a complaint was filed here in the county court by Mr. Stites against Dale Porter, charging Porter with assault with intent to do great bodily injury, as well as complaints against Ronald Porter and Ralph Surface, charging them with assault and battery.

Sheriff Thimsan and Deputy Sheriff Becker were at Union this morning to serve the warrants and bring the men to this city to face the charges preferred by Mr. Stites.

Farm Machinery School.

Farmers of Cass county will be given the opportunity to learn how to repair their own machinery at scheduled meetings to be held in March and again in June. Two meetings, which are in the nature of farm machinery schools, will be held in the county in March, the first of which will be held at the Roy O. Cole farm shop, near Mynard, on Monday, March 21st. The date and place of the second meeting is March 23rd at the Eagle school house.

Paul R. Hoff and O. J. Trenary of the College of Agriculture will have charge of the repair work at each meeting. Mr. Hoff is extension specialist in engineering and Mr. Trenary teaches college and short course classes in farm machinery at the agricultural college.

Overhauling of old machinery, such as press drills, corn listers, corn planters and similar machinery used in early spring work, will be taken up at the March meetings. Farmers will bring in two of each of these machines, and the object of the instructions is to show what a small amount of money it takes to fix up machines which appear to be worn out.

The second series of meetings to be held in the county in June will be devoted to wor kon binders, mowers and other tools that will be used during the summer and fall.

If you are interested in putting your farm machinery into first class shape we urge you to attend the meeting on Monday, March 21st.

Garden Lesson Creating Interest.

Families of the women taking project club work in the county are thinking and talking this month about the garden that feeds the family. It is the first of a series of monthly lessons which will be offered in the county through the county farm bureau organization this year. All of the lessons will help people live at home at the least possible expense, so that what cash is available this year can be used for other necessities.

In order to keep ahead of the gardening season, the first of the new project lessons is being given in March and the women's club will have a chance to finish their regular 1931-32 project in April. During the coming summer and fall the extension agents and project leaders will give other lessons about canning, home baking, home sewing, etc.

The leaders will attempt to get not only their own club members but representatives of every family in their neighborhoods to their local meetings. Since the garden will plan such an important part in the farm home living expenses this year, the county farm bureau is urging that every family in the county make use of the March extension lesson.

To Study Farm and Home Records

Cass county farmers, and their wives, who have been keeping the farm and home records the past year are being called together at meetings to be held at Eagle, Alvo, Fairland school (South Bend), and Mynard on March 28, 29, 30 and 31st. The object of the meetings is to study the combined records which give a complete picture of the farm and home income and expenditures. The discussion will be general and will be based upon the figures compiled in the county summaries of farm and home records.

Heretofore, farmers have kept records on the farm business alone. Last year the wives of the farm record-keepers began keeping records of the household expenditures and the use of home products which contribute toward the living. Some very interesting facts are being brought to light and many problems on management will be taken up. If you are interested in farm and home record keeping you will be very welcome at any of these meetings. Richard Cole and Mrs. Paul Hoff will assist the agents, D. D. Wainscott and Jessie H. Baldwin, in conducting the discussions.

HOOVER REQUESTS FUNDS

Washington.—President Hoover appealed to congress to appropriate immediately the 60 million dollars necessary for river and harbor works for 1933, "in order to avoid unemployment."

"It appears that the regular war department appropriation act for the fiscal year 1933 will be delayed beyond the usual time," the president's message said. "The budget estimate for the maintenance and improvement of existing river and harbors for 1933 is 60 million dollars, which should become immediately available upon the passage of the act."

"I am now advised by the secretary of war that, depending upon the usual course of appropriations, the engineers have entered upon certain contracts, the continuance of which have depended upon the passage of the appropriation at the usual time. As delay seems inevitable and unless some action be taken, a large number of men will be thrown out of work and other expenses incurred by suspension of work. I therefore recommend that congress give consideration to immediate appropriation of the funds for the maintenance and improvement of existing river works."
