Bible School Lesson Study!
Sunday, April 3rd By L. Neitzel

"God in Creation"
Genesis 1:1-5-26-31.

Scientists, Astronomers and Geologists vary many millions of years as to the age of the world. Materialists and Atheists have much trouble in explaining away the Creator—God. Many of their theories are simply absurd. But how simple for the child of God that believes the inspired word to believe that "Our Father" built this beautiful house wherein man lives. The book of Genesis. We start on a most interesting and valuable course of study. Having completed the study of the greatest book of the Bible, the Gospel of John, the Book of Spiritual Beginnings, we turn to the fundamental book of the Bible, which is the Book of Physical and Historical Beginnings. That is the meaning of its name, for "Genesis" is the Greek word for "Origin." We are to study the origin of the universe and the world, the origin of man, the origin of the races, and in particular the origin of the great Jewish race, which gave us our Bible and from which Christianity sprang.

Genesis is the first book of the Pentateuch, which means "the five books." These five books are called "The Law," "The Law of God" or "the Law of Moses." In numerous places in the Pentateuch, Moses is expressly stated as the writer. The history opens with an introductory section which declares how God in the beginning created the heavens and the earth as the theatre upon which his will was to be transacted.

The genealogies contained in the Book are not merely incidental or subordinate, but essential and the real basis of the whole. "Genesis is not distinctly history, but the religious interpretation of history."—Rev. J. W. Waddell, D. D. "Genesis is the seed-plot of the whole Bible."—Rev. Martin Ansley. Verse 1. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." With this statement are brushed aside the degradation of material things, the degradation of the Godhead and the fabulous divine origin of mankind—everything, in short that distinguishes the pagan systems—is contradicted, and the world and the human race are set in a new and brighter light. The greatest achievement of the first chapter of Genesis is that it announced unity, order and progression in nature. The heavens and the earth had a beginning; and as they had a beginning, therefore they must necessarily have a "cause." God made the heavens! They had a cause, and that cause was not anything unintelligent, not any accident, but a Divine, a forecasting, a foreplanning, all-ordering, all-resigning mind. Belief in the creation of the universe out of nothing is the only account of its origin which is compatible with the belief in a personal and moral God.

Verse 2. "And the earth was waste and void." The elements of the earth were diffused and formless, a chaotic state. "And darkness was upon the face of the deep." The primitive, undivided waters. "And the spirit of God moved upon the waters." God's Holy Spirit worked in physical law as well as in the special manifestation of divine power seen at Pentecost. The spirit of God was engaged in long and loving thought over the world he was about to make, that he might fill it with all the beauty and usefulness that man could employ. Verse 3. "And God said, Let there be light; and there was light." (There was light before the sun). What more majestic description of God's power could there be than these eleven words, all of one syllable? They set in motion the dull and stagnant mass of matter and the mass assumes form. This light was good for the purpose for which it was created. Genesis by itself, with nothing added from the great collection of sixty-six books, would be sufficient to prove the inspiration of the Bible.

At the conclusion of almost six days' work, God undertakes his masterpiece; the house is built and furnished, but no tenant. Verse 26. "Let us make man." Only four times is this word "us" used in the Bible—Gen. 1:26; 3:22; 11:7; Isa. 6:8. Man is the handiwork of God, wonderfully made. (Please read: Ps. 8:4-8).

Man bears the image of God in that he has (1) a living, immortal soul; (2) he is an intelligent being; (3) has a conscience; (4) is a personality; (5) has a free will; (6) has moral righteousness; (7) has affection. Man made of dust—earthly, has the breath of life in him—heavenly. Man was made on Friday—also redeemed on Friday. Man was made to have dominion over his physical body—the house in which he lives. Man has power over his own moral nature—the power of choice, of decision. Man may draw to his aid the power that holds the planets in their orbits.

"Male and female, created he them." God might have provided for the perpetuation of the species without creating the two sexes, but by forming man and woman he placed love in the world, and romance, and home, "and a thousand charming and inspiring" interests.

"And God saw everything that he had made, and beheld it was very good."

He was taken to Murray as soon as possible by John Stone, where Dr. Tyson set the arm, was thought at first best to take him to hospital to have an X-ray of the arm but Dr. Tyson did the work himself and the little one is getting along nicely at home where he is being cared for and is hoped that he will get long fine and will not need to be taken to the hospital.

YOUTHS BEATEN BY CULT

Trinidad, Colo.—Blundering into a secret ritual of the Penitentes, strange, half pagan religious cult, two Trinidad youths were severely beaten. The youths, invited by two Mexican boys to attend a Penitente memorial service for their father, followed a group into an isolated cemetery where the Penitentes began to scourge themselves to accompaniment of weird chants. As the Penitentes began to dance in a circle, lashing themselves, they noticed the boys were not of the cult. The youths were set upon, beaten and then carried back to Trinidad, the boys said. The Penitentes, mostly Indians and Mexicans, believe that by self punishment they drive out their sins.

Liquid rubber is now being sprayed on metal to form a resilient protective covering. May be an idea here for pedestrians.
