TRIAL HINGES ON TROUSERS

Peoria.—It took just eleven minutes and one wisecrack to acquit Jasper Blotto on a liquor charge in federal court. The jury was selected in one minute. Prosecution evidence was presented in ten minutes. The evidence included a pair of trousers found at a liquor still and identified as belonging to Blotto, by papers in the pockets. Defense Attorney John Dougherty asked Judge Charles F. Briggie for a directed verdict of not guilty. The judge deliberated over whether the pants were sufficient evidence to connect Blotto with the still. "You, know, your honor," Attorney Dougherty said, "it takes more than a pair of pants to make a suit." The judge smiled, nodded, and Blotto was dismissed.
