THE GOOD OLD DAYS

The mentioning of the fact that the 4th of July just passed was one of the quietest in the history of the city, recalls to one of the old time residents, the observance of the Fourth held sixty years ago here. The event was one in which the fire department played a striking part. They had at that time a pumping apparatus that was a glittering array of brass while the members wore the old time fire helmets, weighing some six or seven pounds each. On the day of the Fourth the parade was formed in the main part of the city. At that time there were a few board sidewalks in the business section, no paving and at several of the intersections there were bridges spanning the creeks that then flowed through the main part of the city, but have since been replaced by the storm sewer system. The parade moved through the business part of town, out to Smith's grove, located near where the present standpipe of the Plattsmouth Water Corporation is located. The band had played a few selections and the first of the forty-seven varieties of orators had started in to address the large group that filled the grove, when a storm broke. It was one of the most severe rains for months and the grove being some distance from shelter caused everyone to get a thorough soaking. With horns soaked the band proceeded homeward followed by the fire company and their equipment, wading through the mud of the street, there being no walks and the only means of travel being the middle of the road. The women and children reaching the main part of town found shelter in the stores that were opened, that is those who were unable to reach their homes, while the men congregated in the saloons until the storm was over.

AVOIDS HOLDUP MAN

A Plattsmouth young man who was returning home from Glenwood Sunday evening in company with a companion had an apparent attempt to stick him up made by some party unknown. The auto was just a short distance out of Glenwood and the driver not driving at a very high rate of speed, when suddenly from the roadway a man sprang toward the car and apparently with the intention of boarding the car. The Plattsmouth man, however, stepped on the gas and the car swept ahead and out of the way before the man could get onto the running board of the car. The stranger was dressed in dark clothes and wore a dark cap pulled down over his face so that his identification was not possible.

Aged Man Seeks to Have Guardianship Closed

Charles P. Hall, Wealthy Farmer of Near Elmwood Battles Case in Lancaster County.

Charles P. Hall, eighty-three, farmer near Elmwood, who accumulated an estate of $250,000, began a legal battle in District Judge Chappell's court at Lincoln Tuesday, against his children and J. J. Ledwith, guardian, to void a guardianship and regain possession of his estate. The guardianship was obtained in county court in 1928, appealed after two years to the district court, and remanded by the supreme court to the district court to be tried on the matter of competency alone. The first trial in the district court had been on alleged fraud in obtaining the guardianship and on the matter of residency.

Attorney Albert Munger for Mr. Hall claimed that the move to place Mr. Hall under guardianship was started by his children after he married Mrs. Estella Fowler of Lincoln on Jan. 4, 1928, for fear that the new wife would interfere with their inheritance rights. The attorneys for the children, Sanden and Gradwohl, claim the marriage of Mr. Hall and Mrs. Fowler was engineered by John Fowler, son of Mrs. Fowler, and the children feared that the estate would fall into their hands. It is alleged that John Fowler for several years prior had become the confidant of Mr. Hall to the exclusion of his family.

It is alleged by the attorneys for Mr. Hall that he is competent. He came to Nebraska when nine years old, began work for himself at fourteen and accumulated his fortune. He was so careful in investments his attorney said, that he never lost a dollar. He made it a rule to invest in farm mortgages, only near his own farm, or buy clear land or government bonds and would not loan over $50 per acre on improved farms.

The children admit that he was an able business man but claim that in 1922 he was swept from a load of hay by a hay fork and badly injured, and was never the same mentally thereafter but turned against his family. It is also claimed that after his wife's death in 1926 he began to write to women and wanted to marry again and it is also claimed that John Fowler caused him to meet Mrs. Fowler and also suggested the marriage to her. It is also claimed that immediately upon Mr. Hall's marriage he took $80,000 worth of securities in an old tin box to the home of Mrs. Fowler and it is also alleged that the securities were those sold him by John Fowler.

It is also alleged that since he has been under guardianship and much of the time received $50 a month from his estate and the rest of the time $400 he does not know what became of it and thought $14,000 had been paid out of it for attorney's fees, which the children's attorneys say is not true. Mr. Hall was the first witness on the stand. The children in the suit are Lyman S. and Elmer of Hitchcock county; Luther of Arkansas, Edwin K. Eugene, Waitstill; Myrl P. Hall of Cass county, Flora Schick and Julia Luff.

The members of the family present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Yelick, Wynore; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leacock, Jr., and three children of Lincoln; Edward Yelick, Des Moines; Floyd, Florence, Francis, Theodore, Margaret, Richard, Robert and Virginia and Mr. and Mrs. Yelick. Democratic Convention is Now History

Chicago Meeting One of Greatest in History and Shatters Many Old Traditions.

By ED WESCOTT, Staff Correspondent
After a week filled with all kinds of unexpected happenings, and many unpleasant experiences for some, the Democrats decided to call it a week's work and go home, so Saturday evening their national convention was adjourned.

Everything had been taken care of. Most important of all they had elected their candidate for president. They had also stated their position on prohibition, the tariff, and unemployment. There was nothing left for them to do. Nothing left for them to fight over, so they decided they might as well go home.

Immediately following the address given the convention by Franklin D. Roosevelt, democratic presidential nominee who had flown from New York to Chicago, Chairman Walsh adjourned the convention.

Probably the most important and interesting development of this convention is the fine spirit of harmony which seemed to prevail among the delegates. Even after the presidential choice had been made and all the favorites were made to take a back seat in favor of Gov. Roosevelt of New York, there seemed to be a feeling of harmony and good feeling among the ranks. That is something unusual in the forces of the democrats. If they can just maintain this spirit among themselves they will give the Republicans their first big surprise, and this might ultimately lead to a bigger surprise next November.

The innovation of Governor Roosevelt's of flying to the convention to address the delegates who had elected him proved one which was very satisfactory to the assembly. In fact there were several innovations at this convention which met with the hearty approval with the great majority of the delegates. The stand taken by the party on prohibition, the all night sessions, and the ultimate switch of the California and Texas delegations to the Roosevelt banner were a few of the happenings which proved to make them all happy.

Taken as a whole the delegates thought their convention had been very worthwhile. It had furnished thrills and excitement for all, and had been a new and pleasing experience for many. The big question now is, how much good did it all do? That no one can answer until next November, but right now there are at least 1200 democrats who say they know how the fall elections are going to go, and 1200 democrats aren't apt to be wrong.

RECEIVES CAMP HONOR

The close of the first period at Camp Wilson, Boy Scout recreational center near Nebraska City, occurred the last of the week. He received his honor at the court of honor, the last activity of the camp. He was also given a merit for cooking and business.

In the awards of the red "W," denoting satisfactory camper, Billy Rosencrans of this city and Bob Wundlerich of Nehawka were recognized and given their letter.

At the court of honor five boys were presented with second class ratings in their Scout activities, among these being John Rishel of this city.
