Irish Plan to Pass Their Own Reprisal Tariff

Rumor Prime Minister MacDonald Intervenes With Offer Which May End Dispute.

Dublin.—A rumor that Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain had intervened with an offer that might settle the Irish Free State's dispute with Britain was current here today as a tariff war between the two countries impended. The free state government announced Wednesday night an intention to meet new British duties on its goods with a retaliatory tariff of its own against Great Britain.

Early in the morning the cabinet of President Eamon De Valera met, with William Norton, chairman of the labor party, present.

The Free State's cabinet decided to launch the tariff war by introducing an emergency bill in the Dail Eireann Thursday to deal with the situation created by British duties of 20 percent ad valorem on the principal Free State products, such as livestock, dairy products, bacon and pork.

The British duties were imposed to recoup losses to the British treasury sustained thru the Free State's default of land annuity payments, the government of President De Valera having failed to make a half yearly payment of 1,500,000 pounds (approximately $7,500,000 at par) at the end of June.

The bill, which would be rushed into law before the dail's summer recess begins at the end of this week, would confer on the executive council the same powers as the British government obtained from parliament, it was officially stated. The council would be enabled to impose duties of an unspecified amount on any particular description of goods imported into the Irish Free State.

President De Valera exhorted the Irish people in the dail to "stand firm." He declared that so far as his government was concerned the decision to demand an international tribunal for arbitration of the land annuities dispute was irrevocable. (The British government has insisted on an empire tribunal.)

HOWARD TALKS FOR INDIANS

New York.—Plans for conducting the democratic presidential campaign reached a point where Franklin D. Roosevelt's managers were able to announce that complete details of their organization would be made public Monday. After the governor completes his sea cruise the plan will be submitted to him for approval. Then it will be announced in New York by James A. Farley, new national chairman.

Dr. Louis Howe, Roosevelt aide announced receipt of a letter from Edgar Howard of Nebraska, who has been commissioned by the tribal council of the Winnebago tribe of Indians of Winnebago, Neb., to congratulate the democratic nominee on behalf of "the one class of our people who come very close to meeting the full measure of your own 'forgotten man.'" The letter expressed a hope that if Roosevelt were elected his heart would not beat "in harmony with that hideous bureaucracy and red tape system which has so long harassed and hurt the average American Indian."

GRAND JURY CLOSES WORK

Winston Salem, N. C.—The pistol bullet death of Smith Reynolds, young heir to tobacco millions and husband of Libby Holman, Broadway torch singer, remained as deep a mystery as ever, a full week after the tragedy that shook this native city of the victim and aroused the interest of millions.

Sheriff Scott, chief peace officer of Forsyth county, insisted his inquiry would be continued but he did not indicate he was hopeful of immediate results.

The county grand jury, to the province of which the case was automatically committed after a coroner's jury late Monday night returned a verdict of death from a gunshot wound inflicted by a person or persons unknown, wrote its final report for the term, without referring to the Reynolds mystery.

Farm Relief is Killed as Senate Cancels Passage

Emergency Measure was Challenged as to Validity—Was Also Faced by Veto.

Washington, July 14.—Death was dealt the Norbeck farm relief bill today by the senate, which only yesterday had passed the measure and dispatched it to the house for final action.

The measure was reconsidered 30 to 25 on motion of Senator Bingham (rep., Conn.) to permit several opponents of the plan who were absent Wednesday to vote.

That this was the end of the bill for the session was agreed upon generally. The action came even while word circulated at the capitol that President Hoover would veto the measure if passed.

Designated as Stop-Gap. Sponsored by Senator Norbeck (rep., S. D.) it was an emergency one-year measure, designed as a stop-gap to serve until congress could enact a comprehensive farm relief plan.

Under it wheat, cotton and hog growers would receive for their production going into domestic consumption, sums equal to the tariff or amounts set by the bill, in addition to their sales price. The bounties would be taken from processors of the products.

Constitutionality of the measure repeatedly was brought into question in both houses. After the senate passed it Wednesday, Representative Rainey (Ill.), democratic house floor leader, asked the rules committee to report the measure out immediately.

Feared Huge Loss. The committee delayed, and today Speaker Garner told newspaper men word had been received that President Hoover looked with disfavor on the measure.

The house rules committee Wednesday considered giving the measure privileged status, but delayed when a number of senators who had been absent when it passed their branch without a roll call notified house leaders they would move to recall the bill.

Chairman Jones of the agriculture committee told the rules group that if the legislation was held to be unconstitutional after going into operation, the federal treasury might be out between one billion dollars to two billion dollars.—World-Herald.

HOLD SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC

The Sunday school of the Eight Mile Grove Lutheran church held their annual picnic on last Sunday at the grounds of the Glendale school, four miles west of the church. The Lewiston band, under the direction of James Schmidt, with several members of the Farmer's Union band gave a short concert as the members of the party gathered for the happy occasion, which was much enjoyed. The ladies arranged the tables for the picnic dinner from the well filled baskets while the men prepared the ice cream.

In the program in addition to the concert there were heard readings by Arnold Melinger, Dorothy Selburg, Violet Engelkemeler. A vocal trio composed of Betty, Ruth and Norma Schafer, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schafer was also an enjoyable feature of the afternoon.

The baseball game between Cedar Creek and Glendale entertained the baseball fans and was won by the Cedar Creek team by the score of 19 to 9.

Swim Suits with a Snap

There'll be lots of rubbering going on along the beaches when these new bathing suits make their appearance. They are the latest innovation in the wardrobe of the well-dressed mermaid and are made of soft, silky rubber. Miriam Sauer (left) and Dorothy Ford, the first water nymphs to adopt the new style, are shown at Virginia Beach, Va. They assert that the rubber suit allows much more freedom of action while swimming and are much cooler.

Marines Trudge to Capitol Hill but Soon Depart

Called to Maintain Order on the Ground of the Capitol, But Not Needed There.

Washington.—A series of mind changing acts by congressional and police authorities resulted in a company of marines being dispatched to keep order on the capitol grounds, where hundreds of bonus seeking veterans trudged back and forth. In the end the ex-soldiers were left as before.

The marines were withdrawn almost immediately, and their presence was called a misunderstanding. Vice President Curtis, Speaker Garner, Rear Admiral Butler, commandant of the local navy yard, and Police Superintendent Glasford then conferred at length. The upshot was that Glasford ordered the capitol grounds cleared.

Before he could get reinforcements to put the order in effect Senator Bingham interceded. Glasford reversed the order and permitted the trudging of the demonstrators to continue as it has for two nights and two days past. The men were kept on the move by bluecoats. They sang and chatted as they walked.

There was a fairly strong intimation that Senator Bingham had been in touch with President Hoover before he approached Glasford. The police head's statement to Vice President Curtis that he had not enough police to keep up the strong guard around the nation's legislative temple had led to the marine expedition. Curtis conferred with Speaker Garner. Both told the sergeants-at-arms of the senate and house to obtain adequate protection. The military were called.

stepped up from nearby barracks, the ragged ex-soldiers sent up a cheer. The lieutenant in command of the marines—they carried rifles and wore trench helmets—saluted smartly as the company passed an American flag held by a veteran. The detachment stopped before the high domed building. It was but a moment before an order to march took the force away again. The veterans gave them one more cheer.
