The Ten Commandments (II)
Exodus 20:12-21.

The commandments were written on two stone tablets by the finger of God. Probably the first four occupied the first tablet, which we studied last week, because they all relate to our duties to God, the remaining six relating to our duties to men, and probably occupied the second tablet. These we are to study today.

The first, the duty of honoring parents, is a suitable transition, because during the years before we can understand the first elements of religion, our parents stand in God's place to us. What if our fathers are not honorable? Then we can at least honor parenthood in them! Our Lord gave us a fine example of filial love and loyalty in Luke 2:51: "And he went down with them (his parents) and came to Nazareth and was subject unto them," until he was thirty years old. This is the first commandment with a promise. As God will reward an obedient child, so will he equally punish disobedience. "The eye that mocketh at his father and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it." (Proverbs 31:17).

The sixth commandment teaches the sanctity of life. God is the giver of life. The world war has shown us the scientific way to murder. In our own land there has been wave upon wave of crime. The open saloon, that hotbed of fiery passion, has happily been closed—forever—let us hope, but men's greed has broken out in illicit manufacture and selling of the poison and that, in many instances, has led to murder. Spell murder backwards and you have "red rum." Let liquor come back in any form and who would want to drive an automobile on the public road. Legal executions may have to be accepted; also the safety of society may demand the wholesale killings that war brings. In the kingdom of Jesus Christ there will be no war, murder or killings. Love will reign supreme.

The seventh commandment teaches the law of purity. Adultery seems to be the outstanding sin of the 20th century, especially in America. Never have there been so many divorces recorded as now. Some of our marriages are only legal sanction of adultery. As the preceding commandment declares the sanctity of life, so this asserts the sanctity of marriage.

When the fountain (the heart) is clean and pure, then and only then will the thoughts be pure. Jesus says:

his mother Mrs. A. J. Wilson, were visiting for a short time at the home of Pont T. Wilson.

J. D. Cross was looking after some business matters in Murray on last Monday afternoon, driving over to the sister town in his car.

Miss Freda and Harriet McCarrall of Union were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pont T. Wilson, visiting with the daughters.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Brendel of Avoca and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Hallstrom also were in Murray Sunday enjoying the ball game.

Thomas Nelson has purchased a model T Ford coupe and he considers he has a very fine car, this making two that he has now.

Searle S. Davis of Plattsmouth was a visitor in Murray for a short time on last Monday, called here to look after some business matters.

Mrs. Albert Ehlers and Mrs. Anna Beyers, both of near Avoca, were visiting for a short time with their sister, Mrs. Ella Barker of Murray.

John Frans, who has been residing on the Mrs. Dull property for some time past, moved on last Monday to the property of the S. G. Latta estate.

Pont Wilson and the family were enjoying a visit on last Tuesday at the home of the parents of Mr. Wilson, A. J. Wilson and wife of Cedar Creek.

Robert Shrader was a visitor for a few days during the week at the home of his nephew, Elmer Yardley, where he was assisting with the work on the farm.

Frank Valley was a visitor in Murray on last Monday and during the afternoon was engaged in making repairs on the roof of the dwelling at the garage.

Frank Lippold and wife of Omaha were guests on last Sunday with Mrs. Lippold's mother, Mrs. Fannie Crosser and brother, Alonzo Crosser, for the day on last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucean Carper were over to Nehawka on last Sunday where they were visiting for the day at the home of Mr. Carper's mother, Mrs. Gertrude Carper.

"Whoever looketh on a woman to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart." (Matthew 5:28).

The eighth commandment teaches the law of honesty. This sin can be committed in various ways and has many names: thief, burglar, robber, pickpocket, forger, embezzler, swindler, cheat. The forms of stealing are almost endless. Men steal by cornering the market, by winning bets, all forms of gambling, cut-throat competition, by driving hard bargains, by adulterating commodities, by evading taxes, etc. Only one law out of ten relates to what man has and owns—the other nine laws concern what a man is and what he does with himself. There are three hundred words in the Decalogue and only four of them relate to property. We all belong to a dishonest race. Man will not only rob his fellowman, but "Will a man rob God?" God says: "Ye have robbed me." (Mal. 3:8).

The eighth commandment teaches the law of truth. Men take their oath very lightly in the witness chair; in political campaigns, men go as near to libel as they dare, against the candidates of the opposition.

The lying, slanderous tongue has even got into the church. Where they come, nothing is sacred, nothing is safe. They rob life of its choicest treasures, its trust, its confidence, its joy, and in their stead they bring in suspicion and worry and heartache.

The tenth commandment deals with the law of selfishness. "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house... nor anything that thy neighbor's." This is only another form of the great commandment "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." All the former commandments have forbidden overt acts. To disobey any of these is sooner or later detected by one's fellowmen. This final word utters its solemn warning against sin in the inner and hidden life. This law may be broken without the knowledge of any human being. Sooner or later, however, this also will reveal itself in the commission of some overt act.

Having received the law, the people beheld the thunderings, and the lightning, the voice of the trumpet, and the smoking mountain—and great fear fell upon them. Moses comforted them, saying that God was proving them and that his fear should be before them. God's children are not afraid of their father's voice. "His sheep know His voice." (John 10:4).

Cass County Organization Noses Out Omahans by Score of 7 to 6—Stubby Mack Pitches.

The Murray Red Sox took a close contest from the Peter Pan baseball team of Omaha Sunday afternoon at the Murray park, 7 to 6, one of the best games that has been played there this season.

The Omaha team garnered three runs in the opening, Bill Bond secured first base on the error of Schlieske, Winton singled to advance Bond and both scored when Hansen doubled. Hansen scored on the single of Mack.

In the second inning the Sox took the lead when Stubby Mack, erstwhile Western league and Omaha sandlot hurler, was wild and gave the Sox a score as well as giving Pierce a base on a wild heave at the plate.

In the third frame Mack and Joe Krejci each tallied a home run for their respective teams.

The Sox scored their final scores in the fifth and acquired a lead that was never headed, altho the Peter Pan team tallied one in the first of the ninth, Winton walking and scoring on the double of Hansen.

Krejci was the hitting star of the game with a home run and two triples. The tabulated score of the game was as follows:
