"He is as important to me," a girl said of her boy friend, "as vitamin C."

At an extremely low temperature, snow has such an absorbent quality that it will dry clothes.

Some folks say the motor car is ruining young people. It hasn't been so long since it was the top buggy.

Unlimited power is the greatest intoxicant to those who possess it, leading to unbridled abuse of authority.

The news that Theodore Dreiser will vote the Communist ticket may be of importance to those who worry readily.

Perhaps the indications in Germany are that giving Hitler the chancellorship would be the quickest way to get rid of him.

A woman in Massachusetts just has divorced a husband who previously had divorced her. Still determined to have the last word, we suppose.

It is strange how a man's ability to take a drink or leave it alone never appeals to him as a conversational topic until after the third highball.

The hot sunny days that have passed since the national conventions seem to have dried out the wet planks in all the party platforms considerably.

A Kansas City saxophone player was fined for breaking the speed limit on the way to a dance, which somewhat resembles sending Capone to Atlanta for tax trouble.

One of the exhibits at the world's fair in Chicago is to be a model school, and promises to be quite a novelty in that city. One of its features, we are told, is that the teachers are paid their salaries regularly in cash.

It is now reported that "Jarring Jim" Bausch will make a trip to Australia. After watching the big Kansas leave his bulk over the bar at 12 feet 2 inches in the decathlon pole vault at the Olympic games, the Australians were seized with an irresistible desire to take Jim along home with them to show the kangaroos what was being done in other places.

If a woman hasn't anything else to worry her, she can claim her hair is coming out by handfuls.

A hog's squeal is the only part of him that isn't used, while that is the only part of a gangster that ever proves useful.

No, Parthenia, Sen. Borah didn't have a front seat at the Hoover notification ceremony. Guess the senator had hay fever, too, a la "Cautious Cal."

Speaking of color schemes, you can take a red 2-cent stamp mixed with a green 1-cent stamp and make it answer for a lavender 3-cent stamp.

A French mathematician claims he can square a circle, but he would be of more service to humanity if he could square some of these eternal triangles.

The depression has got to the point with a local man, where he confidently expects to draw a leg at the banquet table, and the neck of the chicken on his plate.

How to torture a geography student: Explain how Roosevelt of New York leads the West's revolt against eastern domination as represented by Hoover of California.

Jimmy Walker arrived at the scene of his hearing a day ahead of time. Jimmy means to take no chances on being the forgotten man Governor Roosevelt has promised to take care of.

A Chicago saloon keeper and beer runner, age 75, was shot five times and killed last night by gangsters. Which goes into the annals of Chicago gangdom as another natural death at a ripe old age.

Radio patrons are beginning to speak out. One says: "Every time we hear Little Jack Little croon 'goodbye,' we wish he meant it. ... And every time we hear him sing 'Tender Child' we wish he had to pay the German reparations bill."

Governor Sterling of Texas was forced to cancel several speaking engagements because of illness resulting from food poisoning. It is well that this revelation came soon. Politics nowadays requires a strong stomach, and the sooner the weak ones are identified, the better.

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT AND THE WALKER CASE

Governor Roosevelt has had and examined Judge Seabury's case for the removal of Mayor Walker. He has had Mayor Walker's defense. He has given both men opportunity to add to their first statements. He holds a hearing. And he knows well that whether he removes the mayor of New York City or refuses to remove him, the tides of attack and abuse will be unleashed.

If Mr. Roosevelt does not remove Mayor Walker, the republican campaign will ring from now until November with the cry of "Tammany." It is not quite fair. No one who is informed thinks Tammany one whit worse than the Republican machine in Philadelphia. But Governor Pinchot is not on a hot seat with the necessity of deciding whether to remove Philadelphia's mayor. Chicago would be startled and abashed if it were even suggested that New York under Tammany is as lawless and graft-ridden as Chicago. But President Hoover never had to decide whether to remove from office Big Bill Thompson. He did not even suffer much when his own attorney general had approved a bargain with Al Capone for a light sentence. For the bargain was exposed and didn't go through.

If Mr. Roosevelt does remove Mayor Walker, his republican opponents will say it was done for "politics" and entitles him to no credit, while they will be chuckling with the thought that Tammany may try to take New York state from him.

It is an ugly job. And it is ugly because there is not after all a hard and fast line, a black and white case. The Seabury documents are not enough to convict Mayor Walker in court of anything criminal. The decision after all has to be made by the governor of New York whether the evidence calls for the removal of New York's mayor.

There is only one thing for Governor Roosevelt to do. That is to decide as governor of New York without regard to the national campaign. Those close to him, even political writers who have been covertly attacking him, seem to agree that Mr. Roosevelt will do just that. It is reassuring, with all the desperate politics that is being played this year, that there is such general testimony to Mr. Roosevelt's integrity. He has a hard job, but he has the guiding thought that whereas the presidency is a matter of four or eight years, a man must live with himself as long as he lives.—Milwaukee Journal.

If it is true, as economists warn us, that government finances are no whit different from personal finances, then we're afraid that when the government figures up its next year's revenue from taxes, it's going to be disappointed, not only at the amount of cake it can eat, and also the amount of cake it will have left when it finishes eating.

From the campaign speeches, it is already apparent that the nation is certainly going to be saved from something awful in November.

EDUCATION OR SLAVERY

"The education of the young is for us a question of life and death," said Trotzky. But it is not so for every state, and not only Russia? The Russian educationalist starts with one immense advantage over the teachers of other countries—he knows exactly what he intends to teach. It is his first and supreme task to teach every little member of the Soviet state to be a devoted servant of that state, a follower of Lenin, well versed in the doctrines and precepts of Communism. But where else is there a single educational purpose so clearly recognized?

Older civilizations like that of England find themselves in possession of systems of education posed between ancient traditions and modern needs. Young civilization like that of America are confronted with a host of interesting but conflicting experiments. A country such as Turkey, under Kemal Pasha, is endeavoring to impress Western positivist doctrines on school children who have been nurtured on the teachings of Muhammad. What are the schools aiming at, in England, in America, in Turkey, in Germany, in Japan? Are they aiming in each case, as Russia is, at producing a single type of citizen, or a multitude of types fitted for many vocations, or is there perhaps no definite goal at all?

In England there is an institution known as the public school, to which young members of the well-to-do classes are sent; and there are many other secondary schools which endeavor to copy some at least of the characteristics of the public school. The curricula of studies may be far removed from those of older institutions, but at least the cult of sport has spread from a few to all. Mr. Herwald Ramsbotham, Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Education, has been warning a conference of teachers that the "cult" may become a "cant"; that the doctrine of a "sound mind in a sound body" is always in danger of deteriorating into "the mind of a prig in the body of a barbarian."

One can see for the purposes of a dictator the value of national habits which keep young men and women happily occupied, no matter what misfortune may be brewing. French generals, experiencing mutinies among their troops during the war, regretted that their soldiers had not learned to put aside care in leisure moments, as the English had, by playing football; and since then there has been intensive action on the part of French educationalists to foster a love of football and other games among the masses.

These games are excellent. But they are not a substitute for intellectual training. They do not equip the human mind to resist or rightly appreciate the influences which are brought to bear on it every day, year in and year out, by the press, the film, the radio, the poster. Those who control these mighty influences are careless in their attentions; they direct and manipulate public opinion by suggestion, flattery and subtle persuasion. Those who are not trained to assess at their true value the
