The Chester Whites, which are a very fine strain of porkers, are bred extensively by the Rehmeier family, and from among their collection they showed a number at the county fair. Vincent Rehmeier's exhibit included two grand champions, two junior champions and eight first premiums. Following him came the pigs of Herbert Stander, of Louisville, who secured a number of premiums, and after these, the remaining premiums were divided between Frances Rehmeier and W. Fagan, thus accounting for all the Chester Whites on exhibition.

Fred Rehmeier has two little pigs which came last March when the weather was cold and the mother died. The orphans were adopted by a Chesapeake dog, which had lost her litter of pups, and the two families consolidated into one, the mother dog and the two little Chester White piggies. They got along very well, the mother dog providing enough milk for the piggies and in due course of time they learned to take other sustenance and grew and thrived. One was exhibited at the state fair, drawing a premium.

State Patrol House Bobbed
The state patrol house at Manley was broken into during the night last Tuesday, and two new truck tires taken. This is believed to have been the work of some itinerant robbers who have been lingering about the town. Such depredations are hard to run down for by the time the robbery is discovered the robbers can be many miles away and there is very little chance of apprehending them.

Sentiment seems to favor formation of a vigilance committee to do patrol duty and whenever they discover prowlers about to break and enter to shoot with intent to kill, thus removing a dangerous element to the safety of the town and its property.

Norris Tells Why He is for Roosevelt
Says That President Hoover's Attitude Toward Every Vital Problem is Wrong.

New York.—George W. Norris, liberal republican senator from Nebraska, explained he was supporting Franklin D. Roosevelt for president because "President Hoover's attitude toward every vital problem is wrong and on most of the questions Roosevelt is right."

The Nebraskan, always a critic of the administration, declared he considered himself a "better republican than Herbert Hoover of Calvin Coolidge if fidelity to fundamental principles and basic ideals count for more than stanch adherence to the shibboleth of regularity."

"If Lincoln were alive today he would support Roosevelt," he said Mr. Hoover and his administration stood for government of the people "by big business, for big business."

Of prohibition, Norris wrote: "I could not support Mr. Hoover on the dubious plank which he forced on a hamstrung convention. I do not like his attitude on the subject of beer; I relish even less his attitude on water and water power." Norris is a dry.—State Journal.

Roosevelt Gives 6-Point Program of Farm Relief

Insists "Speculative Activities of Board Must Be Ended"—Speech Cheered.

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 14.—Under a blazing Kansas sun, Franklin D. Roosevelt today outlined a program calling for "national planning in agriculture," and declared the republican administrations in which President Hoover has participated have "failed utterly" in farm relief.

The democratic president nominee coupled with the program several emergency measures, and was applauded when he proposed that "the speculative activities of the farm board must and shall come to an end."

The crowd cheered enthusiastically as Mr. Roosevelt appeared on the platform, and his address was frequently interrupted by applause and shouts as he spoke, slowly and deliberately.

Six points upon which he said most of the "reasonable leaders" of agriculture had agreed in their efforts to "restore agriculture to economic equality with other industries within the United States" were cheered by the crowd. He said the "claim that the republican discriminatory tariff methods are a benefit to the farmer, is a cynical and pitiless fraud," and that more republican tariffs might be expected from "the present republican leadership."

Crowd of 10,000.
Mr. Roosevelt spoke from a platform atop the steps of the state capitol to a crowd estimated by national guardsmen at more than 10 thousand persons.

As permanent steps in his program, the New York governor proposed: Reorganization of the agriculture department to supply the administrative machinery needed to build a program of national planning.

Formulation of a definite policy looking to the planned use of land, including mapping and classification of land to determine which is best suited for agricultural production and which for trees.

National leadership in the reduction and more equitable distribution of taxes, including a national movement to recognize local government to direct the elimination of some of the tax burden from farms.

Emergency Proposals.
His emergency proposals called first for refinancing farm mortgages "to relieve the burden of excessive interest charges and the grim threat of foreclosure."

The second immediate necessity, he said, is to provide a means of bringing about through governmental effort a substantial reduction in the difference between the prices of the things the farmer sells and those he buys. He added that one way to attack this was by the restoration of international trade through tariff readjustments.

There was frequent applause as the democratic contender outlined his program and a loud shout went up when his running mate, John Nance Garner of Texas, presented the New York governor with the prediction that he would be the next president.

"I just came to see him and to show you that I wear neither horns nor hoofs, though I do come from the Lone Star state of Texas," the vice-presidential nominee said in presenting Mr. Roosevelt.

Political Conferences.
Before the speech, Mr. Roosevelt had received Governor Harry H. Woodring of Kansas aboard his special train and paraded with the governor and Mr. Garner through the streets of Topeka behind a blue-coated band which had welcomed him with "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Afterward the nominee accompanied the governor to Kansas free fair for a drive over the grounds. They returned to the executive mansion, where Mr. Roosevelt was the guest of the governor during the remainder of the stay. The afternoon and early evening was filled with political conferences with democratic leaders from Kansas and adjoining states.

At 11 o'clock tonight the special train headed toward Denver, where he makes his next extended stop tomorrow. Speaker Garner, who boarded the train at Kansas City, left the party here.—World-Herald.

INCREASE IN GOLD STOCKS

Washington.—Continued increase in the monetary gold stock of the nation was shown in the weekly statement of the federal reserve board. It said the total held on Sept. 14, was $4,128,000,000, an increase of $23 millions in the week. The increase makes a total of 219 millions the low point reached last June 16. The total, however, is 837 millions less than the amount held a year ago.

The return flow of gold was seen as indicating an increase of confidence in American markets.

Another favorable factor was noted in a decrease in money in circulation. This item declined 57 millions to $5,668,000,000, indicating that more money is being spent and finding its way back into the treasury from hiding places. The amount still is, however, 581 millions more than was in circulation a year ago.

The board reported that total reserve bank credit on Sept. 14, amounted to $2,301,000,000, a decrease of 18 millions in the week. The daily average volume of the credit during the week was $2,293,000,000, also a decrease of 37 millions as compared with the preceding week but an increase of $1,040,000,000 as compared with the same week in 1931.
