Cass County Fair Comes to a Close Friday

Fair One of the Best Held and Exhibits Are Fine Showing of County Products.

The Cass county fair for the year 1932 is now in history, closing Friday night, and was one of the most successful during the history of the fair. It embraced the stock on exhibition which was some of the best in the country, and the school floats, which bespoke much study, hard work and inventive genius in the execution of the many floats which dealt with history extending back to the inception of the United States. With the conclusion of the parade Mrs. D. D. Wainwright read the grading of the babies, and which told a story of excellent babies, with none that did not average well up toward the one hundred per cent line. A few, however, did not measure up to the full average, but there were few.

any suggestions to come and do so for he said that we will succeed when we all work together.

Phillip Schaeper, Wm. Kitzel and Fred Rehmeier were asked to speak, but they referred the people to the work they had accomplished rather than to make speeches. Frank E. Woods, secretary of the board and who the matter of advertising of the fair in hand, told of the amount of work which no one saw or knew of being done to get the matter of the fair properly before the county. The people of Weeping Water and other portions of the county are to be given much credit for the advertising in the booster trip which was made over the county.

Then came short talks by George L. Farley and Fred H. Gorder, both county commissioners who assured all that their interest was in the county fair and that they would do all consistent to further the welfare and success of the institution.

A program followed in which all the schools of the county were represented and which was conducted by the teachers and Miss Alpha Peterson, county superintendent of schools.

MURRAY WINS HARD GAME

The Murray Red Sox and the Weeping Water baseball teams staged a thirteen inning battle as a feature of the county fair Thursday, in which the Sox were the final winners 6 to 5. The game was anybody's battle and both teams showed some excellent baseball.

The hurling artists were selected from some of the best of the Omaha sandlotters. Prerost doing the tossing for Weeping Water and "Young" for the Murray Sox.

Murray held the lead three to nothing until the sixth when Weeping Water scored two runs. In the ninth inning Murray scored two more for a five to two lead and looked like winners, but an error and two safe blows allowed Weeping Water to tie the score five all in the last half of the inning. In the thirteenth Baker hit safe for Murray and scored on the blow of Schliscke.

The body was taken from the Sattler funeral home to Murray for the service which was conducted by the Rev. W. A. Taylor of Union, old time friend of the deceased. Rev. Taylor spoke of the long and useful life of the departed friend and neighbor, to the family brought the comforting words of the scripture.

The male quartet, composed of Frank A. Clويد, H. G. McClusky, R. W. Knorr and L. D. Hiatt, gave two of the old and familiar hymns requested by the members of the family circle.

Following the church service the body was taken to the Horning cemetery near this city where it was consigned to the last resting place.

Legion Demands Bonus, Repeal of 18th Amendment

Reynolds Is Boomed as He Pleads Against Payment Now—Johnson Named Commander.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 15.—In tempo reminiscent of 1918 when they championed at the bit to go over the top, the American Legion today selected Louis A. Johnson of Clarksville, Va., as new national commander, demanded immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus and voted in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

Johnson, an attorney, was elected on the first ballot, receiving 671 votes. George Malone, state engineer of Nevada, was second with 232, and Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., San Francisco, third with 151. There was a scattered vote for Edward A. Hayes of Illinois, Earl V. Cliff of Minnesota, William Stern of North Dakota and Raymond Fields of Oklahoma.

Election of Johnson was made unanimous on motion of the California delegation.

On the bonus the convention voted 1,167 to 109 for immediate payment and on the prohibition resolution, 1,144 to 133.

Some Disorder. Votes of both subjects were taken amid shouts and some disorder. The bonus vote had been preceded by debate on the floor, during which speakers were interrupted by boos, shouts and calls of "let's go," while the national commander, Henry L. Stevens, Jr., pleaded with his "boys" to hear everyone and show they believed in "free speech and Americanism."

Boys, we all know how it's going," pleaded Stevens, at one point in the bonus debate, "but let's hear these men. We believe in Americanism; and free speech. Let's show it." Representative Wright Patman of Texas, author of soldier legislation and a delegate, opened the debate in favor of the bonus payment.

The heckling started when the next speaker, Sam Reynolds of Omaha, member of the Nebraska delegation, was called to present the case against the bonus.

Sees Storm Coming. "All the nation is awaiting the action of this convention," Reynolds said. "All the people know we are under fire. Unless we stop that storm which is growing we will see the day when men run for office on the boast of 'stop the veterans.'"

Two former national commanders, Henry D. Lindsley of Texas and Edward A. Spafford of New York, fared no better. Shouts of "throw him out," came from one section of the hall when Lindsley was speaking. Cries of disapproval greeted Spafford's remark that immediate payment would "wreck the financial structure of the country," which was the attitude expressed by President Hoover in a statement at Washington late yesterday.

On the bonus question the Connecticut, Hawaii, Nebraska and South Carolina delegations voted solidly in opposition, while the following states split as indicated: Delaware, 1 yes, 6 no; Florida, 8 yes, 8 no; Illinois, 79 yes, 1 no; Missouri, 2 yes, 24 no; New York, 90 yes, 1 no; Vermont, 5 yes, 4 no, and Wyoming, 9 yes, 1 no. All other states voted for the bonus payment.—World-Herald.

MEN HEAR DR. BECK

From Friday's Daily
 A group of men met at the Rectory of St. Luke's church last night to listen to Dr. Frederick Beck of South Omaha, who outlined the plan and policy of the diocese of Nebraska with reference to its missionary interests both in and beyond the state. He told of his visit to Denver last year to attend the national council and the resultant realization of the immensity of the church's field of operation. He urged greater co-operation with the local leaders on the part of the men of the church. A plan for the occasional meeting, as called by the Rector, of all the men of the parish (forming a unit of a diocesan wide organization of help for the bishop and diocesan projects) was set in motion. A representative of the group will be chosen as the individual with whom the diocesan authorities keep in touch, and by this means a closer working between the larger and smaller churches and between the men of the whole diocese will be possible.

ASSAULT CASE MAY REOPEN

Honolulu.—Prosecutor John C. Kelley said the case against four men charged with assault upon Mrs. Thalia Massie, Sept. 12, 1931, will be reopened if reports of detectives warrant. Mrs. Massie's husband, Lt. Thomas T. Massie; her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men were convicted and served one hour imprisonment for the slaying of a fifth man, Joseph Kahahawai, also accused of assaulting Mrs. Massie.

Prosecutor Kelley leaves for New York to receive a report on the assault case from detectives who made investigations in Hawaii and in the United States. Five men were tried on charges of assaulting Mrs. Massie when she left Ala Moana resort alone at night for a walk while her husband and others continued dancing. The jury disagreed. The four remaining defendants are at liberty under bond.

Plattsmouth Day at Fair Draws a Large Crowd

Caravan of Boosters for the Fair From This City Attend the Gathering Thursday.

Thursday was designated as Plattsmouth day and as well democratic day at the county fair, and a larger attendance was there than had marked the days before.

Plattsmouth came with their improvised band led by Dr. G. L. Taylor and made much fun for all. A good feeling was manifested between all. Weeping Water and the entire county extending greetings to the merry makers from Plattsmouth. Many were attracted on account of the noted speakers, as Governor Bryan and Congressman Morehead, were to speak and they wanted to hear the issues discussed at first hand.

Governor Bryan occupied two hours in handling his subjects and held attention throughout, as he lambasted the incongruities of the failure to deliver of the republican administration. Congressman Morehead answered the accusations of the republican speaker of the day before. Other of the candidates for the state offices made addresses. Senator Banning spoke briefly of the issues in the state campaign. George E. Nickles, speaking as candidate for state representative, made a marked impression as a campaigner, showing that he was the candidate for the people and that he was not there for political reasons, but that all might benefit by better government. Homer Sylvester, candidate for sheriff, also gave a short talk.

The meeting of the Red Cross chapter of Cass county was held at the Methodist church and was well attended and elicited much interest. This order has done much for the relief of the depressed condition during the past two years here in Cass county.

Thursday showed a marked increase in the attendance at the fair and also was characteristic in that there was much interest shown in the examination of the exhibits, the stock, the agricultural products, vegetables, fruits, and the opening work of the women, as well as the 4-H club work, which occupies much of the space. The concessions were seemingly the one thing which was not attracting much interest. The people's money going to what is needed, and the people seeking amusement in a way which did not cost so much money.

Today (Friday) will be the stock and school parade, which will claim many who have not heretofore been in attendance.

Carl Day followed with a very flattering report of the workings of the fair board and the citizens of Weeping Water, thanking all for their assistance. Then came the report of Fred Carsten, president of the fair board, who gave a very optimistic report of the workings of the board, and how they had met many discouragements and had overcome them and in the end he believed had produced the best fair ever held in Cass county. He stressed the fact that he attributed much of the success to the fact of the friendly aid of the farmers over the county and to those who so liberally brought the products of the farm, the garden and the orchard to exhibit. He also called attention to the meeting of the fair board which would be in November, asking "whoever might be interested and who wished to make
