

Bryan Renews the Fight Against Cedar Trees

Orchardists Are Promised a More Stringent Enforcement of State Law.

Governor Bryan has ordered the state department of agriculture to send out notices to owners of land in the vicinity of large orchards to rid their property of rust carrying cedar trees. Action was taken after a delegation of southeast Nebraska horticulturists representing Otoe, Richardson, Cass and Nemaha counties, appeared for more stringent enforcement of the cedar rust law.

"We experienced great difficulty and became involved in suits and other controversy when we first attempted to enforce the law," Bryan said of the cedar eradication measure. It is the belief of the horticulturists who visited me that this attitude is now changed and that general sentiment favors the law."

Bryan said he was interested to learn from apple growers how rust afflicted some types of trees and did not seriously harm others. "Where cedar trees have been removed for an area of two miles around large orchards," Bryan said, "It is shown that the damaging cedar rust virtually disappears."

Orchard owners, Bryan said, have in the past paid $400 for replacement of cedar trees destroyed thru purchase of ornamental shade trees to replace the objectionable cedars. Federal Relief Administrator Haynes announced that a decision has not been reached on the request of the horticulturists for 385 CWA workers to aid in eradication of sources of infection of fruit trees.

Thine H. W. Hull home was the scene of a very pleasant dinner on Christmas day, at which a large goose and all its trimmings held the place of honor on the table full of Christmas goodies. Declamatory Work in the City Schools

One of the Most Interesting Features of the Spring Season of the High School.

One of the most important spring activities among the high schools of the state is the participation in declamatory work in the divisions of extemporaneous speaking, dramatic and humorous readings and original oratory. The Second District Declamatory Association comprises the schools of sixteen counties of District No. 2 of the state teachers association. It has been one of the most active declamatory associations in the state and last year forty schools took part in the elimination contests benefiting many high school students with this valuable training. On three occasions in recent years, Plattsouth has been host to the district contest. In the competition of this association, Plattsouth high school has made a very commendable showing, winning the sub-district championship three times and winning individual district honors every year. Among former Plattsouth high school students who have won honors in the district are Robert Livingston, George Adam, Midge Garnett, Herschel Dew, Robert Bestor, Otto Stodola, Wm. Wetenkamp, Edward Wehrlein, Anna May Sandin, Stuart Porter, Margaret Shellenbarger Hirz, Chris Bulin, Clelland Retelsdorf and Charles Nowacek.

The sub-district contest will probably be held at Auburn again this year and the date has been tentatively set for March 23rd. A local contest to select the Plattsouth representatives will be held early in March. In recent years, the local contest has grown to such proportions that it is expected that a preliminary to the local contest will have to be held.

Mr. Figley will have charge of the local contestants, assisted by Miss Perry. Mr. Patterson is president of the district association; Supt. J. R. Bittner of Fullerton is treasurer and Miss Leona Sparks of Columbus, is secretary.

INTEREST IN STUDY CLUB

A number of inquiries have already been made to Mr. Patterson regarding registration for the Relief Study Center to be organized here. Five are necessary to start a class and six persons have already expressed their desire to take the course and organization of the work early next week seems assured. The rules require that the person who registers be unemployed and must spend five hours a day for a five day week at the school house. Six hours of college credit may be earned in any of the courses under the extension department of the university without cost to the student. Any who might be interested in this work are urged to get in touch with Mr. Patterson this week.

RIVER-VIEW CHRISTMAS PARTY

River-View club held its annual Christmas party at the Robert Patterson home.

A program was given consisting of music, singing and readings. The appearance of Santa Claus was foretold by the coming of sleigh-bells, which was enjoyed very much, especially by the children. Santa presented all those present with a sack of candy and pop corn balls. Several games of pinocle were played during the evening.

The enjoyable evening was ended by the serving of lunch, consisting of sandwiches, cake, cookies, coffee and pickles.

Our next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Ganaway on Tuesday, January 23.
