Millions Added to State's Taxes for Poor Relief

Levies Have Been Made on Merchandise, Liquor and Gasoline to Swell Fund.

Chicago.—Taxes on merchandise, liquor and gasoline are supplying most of the millions with which the states are supplementing the government's appropriations for unemployment relief, a survey showed. Although a few states depend entirely upon the CWA, PWA and the relief administration for jobs and funds to be distributed among the poor, most are financing bond issues, taxing commodities for extra funds and relaxing laws governing the obligations of financial contracts in order to help their unemployed thru the winter. Michigan squeezes 12 millions annually out of taxes on sales in order to pay for welfare relief. Utah's 2 percent sales tax is expected to raise $1,600,000 a year, and Missouri's one-half percent tax to raise 4 millions. Arizona's 15 percent general sales tax is supplemented by a 10 percent gasoline tax and a 96 percent luxury stamp tax.

Rhode Island, having appropriated 1 1-2 millions of unused funds for unemployment relief, tacked 1 cent onto its gasoline gallonage levy to make up a deficit in the treasury caused by relief expenditures. Colorado, after finding that its 10 million dollar highway building program and special motor vehicle levy were unconstitutional, raised its gasoline tax to 5 cents a gallon in order to produce $1,800,000 for poor relief. California provided 20 millions thru a bond issue for relief loans to counties and cities. Four northwestern states—Washington, Wyoming, Montana and Minnesota—are relying on liquor taxes.

Minnesota has levied against liquor sales to replace 5 millions voted for relief. Montana matched federal funds with $750,000 of its own for relief. Three-two beer will raise $75,000 appropriated in Wyoming. Twenty percent of Washington's state liquor store receipts will go to counties' old age pension funds. Iowa voted 3 millions for poor relief last week. Illinois added 30 millions to the 20 millions previously voted. Governor Comstock of Michigan planned to call a special session of the legislature to renew his battle for a 36 million dollar public works program. Pennsylvania provided 4 millions annually for old age assistance.

STRIKE BALLOT IS FRAMED

Chicago.—A committee representing thirteen railway labor unions decided to ask 26,000 employees of the Northwestern railroad to vote on a strike proposal. The strike ballot was called after the unions presented a list of 507 grievances to Fred W. Sargent, president of the road, and demanded an answer. Chief among the grievances was one that the Northwestern had "arbitrarily discontinued certain adjustment boards and refuses to arbitrate many cases, at great financial loss to union members."

William Bishop, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, gave as a reason for the vote: "A terrible reduction in force has taken place in recent years, and many men who had been with the company for years have now been disqualified and have lost their turn." All union employees of the road except conductors, engineers, and telegraph operators will be mailed ballots. The votes will be counted here Feb. 21.

Sargent said that union officials were objecting to discipline enforced by the road against some employees because they failed to obey safety rules of the company.

DOG FINDS LOST CHILD

Grand Island.—Ronald Pauly, 2 years and 6 months of age, was saved from possible serious effects of exposure by his small white terrier who led William Pauly, father of the child, to the point where Ronald had become entangled in a wire fence, after a three hour search.

Ronald's disappearance was discovered just at sundown. Search of the Pauly farm yard failed to locate him. Neighbors were notified and some more than 150 persons had joined in a search. The sheriff was called.

Three hours later the dog, constant companion of the child, bounded into the lights of Pauly's car. He stopped, followed the dog and called to his son. Finally a sleep reply led him to where the child had become entangled in a wire fence and had fallen asleep after becoming exhausted.

TO STABILIZE OIL MARKET

Washington.—In an effort to stabilize what was described as "a demoralized" tank wagon market, Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, issued a regulation to prevent price discrimination injurious to retail gasoline and oil dealers.

Immediate action to curb the practice of some companies of giving discounts to consumers based on artificial tank wagon prices was urged upon Ickes by the planning and coordination committee representing the industry under the oil code. A statement by the interior department said thousands of retail dealers had petitioned Ickes to protect them against loss of business "caused by this competitive warfare" among the large companies.

W. C. T. U. En- joys Fine Program at Its Meeting

Members Hear Inspirational Articles Leading With the Temperance Work of the Country.

The W. C. T. U. met in regular session Monday at the home of Mrs. George Mann. Members opened the meeting by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," and Mrs. E. H. Westcott read the devotional scripture from Luke, 8th chapter with interpretation as it would apply to our lives today.

The subject of study was, "New Program of Liquor Control," as outlined by the present congress and president. Review of "What is the W. C. T. U. Going to Do Now?" was given again as given in Union Worker of December, 1933, and which every member has. Will those not present at the meeting read this call to advance by the national executive officers and also the recommendations for immediate action? It is only a statement of everyone's duty as a Christian citizen of the United States. General William Henry Harrison's Toast was given as a fitting example of such a citizen, and he later became president of the United States. The subject of membership campaign was again brought up and plans to continue what the Christmas holidays had disrupted are to be carried out. The outline for membership as given by the national director is to be found in October Union Worker and should be made the effort of every member. The words of Marshal Poch at the historic crisis at the Marne are to be taken for W. C. T. U. members, "My left is broken, my right is in retreat; my back is against the wall—the situation is excellent. I shall advance."

Business session included reading minutes of Lillian Stephens' memorial meeting with Mrs. Farley, and report of treasurer. A publicity secretary was elected to report to editor of Union Worker a list of dry cafes or restaurants and filling stations for the service of many who are driving thru our city and desire such information. Laws governing protection to dry states were recommended for study and violations of dry amendment in our state constitution, made plain, with the question that is to come before voters at November election. Under present conditions it is difficult to find a closing place, for the questions that arise, but a vote for observance of Temperance Sunday with suitable programs in all our Sunday schools on Sunday, February 11th.

The hostesses served delicious refreshments which allowed a social time before the duet of Mrs. Westcott and Mrs. Thimman, "Fight the Good Fight," and closing verse in song by all of the challenge "Be Strong," and benediction.

CHARGE EXTORTION THREAT

Augusta, Me.—State police announced that three high school youths had signed statements that they were the authors of an extortion letter sent to William P. Viles, son of State Senator Blaine S. Viles, wealthy timberland operator, in which abduction or disfigurement of young Viles' children was threatened unless $20,000 was paid. The youths are Merle W. Hughes, 18; Robert Brown, 16, and Gerald A. Towff, 16. They were held without bail in jail here. Captain Young, deputy chief of the state police, said the statements had been signed after hours of questioning. He said the youths told of writing the letter in a hotel room here and mailing it at Portland a week ago. The letter directed the money be placed in the corner of an old barn on the Viles estate before midnight of last Dec. 3.

Increase in CWA Fund is Sought by Senate Bloc

Democratic Leaders in Senate to Insist on Original 950 Millions; Hopkins Talks.

Washington, Feb. 6.—The same group of republican and democratic independents that started the ball rolling for outright federal relief grants to the states today initiated steps to boost the pending appropriation for civil works to two billion dollars.

Democratic leaders held out little hope for the increase.

Senator Cutting (rep., N. M.) was said by his associates to be ready to offer an amendment to the house 950 million dollar civil works-relief bill to increase the total to $2,500,000,000, with two billion dollars going for operation of civil works another year and the remainder for relief grants to states.

No Change—Robinson.
Senators La Follette (rep., Wis.) and Costigan (dem., Colo.) said they would support the increase.

However, Senator Robinson (Ark.) the majority leader, predicted to newspapermen that the 950 million dollar appropriation would be approved without change.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, told the senate appropriations committee this week that about 450 million dollars would be sufficient to carry on the civil works program up to May 1 and that 500 million dollars would permit a continuance of relief contributions for some time to come.

It is the administration's hope that by May 1 business and industry will have improved sufficiently to absorb most of the four million employed by civil works.

Asserts Increase Planned.

The Washington Post will say tomorrow that the national emergency council has approved a plan to increase the appropriations for the CWA to $2,500,000,000 so as to continue the program until next January.

The changed program, the paper will say, also contemplates cutting the present weekly civil works outlay from 70 to 45 million dollars.

Presumably, the Post will say, the present administration bill will be succeeded by another measure to bring the total sum to $2,500,000,000.

The emergency council was created by President Roosevelt last fall to aid him in planning his recovery efforts.

MAY BOOST LIQUOR OUTPUT

Washington — Granting of distillers' applications to increase the capacity of their plants seemed likely after a day-long hearing by the federal alcohol control administration. The treasury department has received reports from collectors of internal revenue thruout the United States showing the total excise and floor tax collections on distilled spirits, distilled spirits rectification, wines and brandies, and fermented malt liquors were $21,546,919 last month.

The collections on distilled spirits alone were $9,590,558.77. This tax was collected at two different rates—$1.10 a gallon up to and including Jan. 11, and $2 beginning Jan. 12, the date upon which the new liquor tax law went into effect.

States reporting more than a million dollars in federal taxes on liquors were California, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. Total collections from the same tax sources in January, 1918, the last pre-prohibition year, were $29,452,000.
