RETURN FROM OREGON

Monday afternoon the Plattsmouth and Cass county young men who have been at the Civilian Conservation Conservation Corps camp at Roseburg, Oregon, returned home after an absence that covered almost a year.

The members of the party have the appearance of having benefited very much by their training and life in the open during the past summer and fall and all are very enthusiastic over their experience.

Taken to a section of the country that was new to them in every way, the young men have had a great experience in the heavy timbered country of the Oregon mountain regions.

The boys were returned home on a special train that brought them via Denver and Kansas City to Fort Crook where they were discharged from the corps.

During the evening the candidates for the various offices were introduced and greeted the audience and received a warm reception from the crowd. ### WHAT THE CLOCK TAUGHT ME

There's a clock on my desk—a sentinel bold—
Ever doing its work, like a serf of old;
Or sounding alarm, as a clarion horn,
It routs me from slumber at early morn.

Its outstretched arms move or apace
Around its honest, jovial face—
A face seraphic, that in courteous greets
With welcome smile each one it meets.

It keeps plodding along midst cold or heat,
Braving wintry blasts, or snow, or sleet;
Its form can boast no classic beauty,
But glows in pride with work or duty.

With a cheery "tick-tock" throughout the day
It drives threatening gloom and dull care away;
It wakes sagging spirits anew into life
To "carry on" bravely the grim daily strife.

Thus even a block may take some part
In bringing comfort to a heart
Grown weary in battling fate's decree,
If only the viewpoint we could see.

A potential sermon, its policy taught
To practice the tenets its preachments taught,
So I cherish the lesson the clock may bring
To the soul of a commoner, prince, or king. "K"

Rotarians Hear Address by Scout Director Dawson

Executive of Cornhusker Area Tells of Why and Wherefor of This Program for Boys.

Plattsmouth Rotary club had as its guest speaker, B. B. Dawson, Scout executive of the Cornhusker area, comprising fifty-five Nebraska counties. Mr. Dawson drove here for the luncheon and an inspection of the new Scout cabin and swimming hole at Camp Wheeler. He was accompanied by the Lincoln Scout camp inspector, Fred Sanders, and from here they drove home by way of Cedar Creek for an inspection of Camp Quivera, maintained by the Lincoln Scout organization.

Following announcements of interest by President Duxbury, conduct of the meeting was turned over to E. H. Wescott, chairman of the Boys' Work committee of the club, who introduced Executive Dawson.

Mr. Dawson paid a nice compliment to the facilities that are being completed here for handling the enlarged Scouting program that will embrace all boys of the community as soon as additional troops can be organized. Mr. Dawson had been in Plattsmouth Monday night, attending the meeting of the one troop now in existence here and also meeting with a prospective sponsoring organization to outline plans of procedure incident to the organizing of a second troop.

He stated that with Plattsmouth's population, there should be an average of 37 boys each year becoming of Scouting age and as the program is designed to cover a period of at least four years in the life of a boy, the potential Scout membership of the community would be around 150 boys or a total of five troops when organized to full strength.

He did not advocate that any organization start its troop in a big way, but rather, start with eight or ten boys, following with a natural growth that would eventually bring the number up to four patrols or 32 boys to the troop. The American Legion sponsored troop has been up to quota for a long time and at present there are a goodly number of applicants among the boys of the community for membership that can only be met thru the organizing of additional troops.

He urged his listeners to view Scouting not as an organization, but as a program—one that has been developed by the leading boys' work experts of the nation.

With Scouting now in its twenty-fifth year of existence, he said it is no longer necessary to sell the plan to the public as a worth-while project, but more to arouse organizations to a realization of their responsibilities as sponsors and backers of troops, so that mushroom growth will not spring up and later die down as individual leaders come and go. For that reason, the Scout executives are demanding active support and troop committees from the sponsoring organizations, standing behind the individual Scoutmasters and ready to keep the program advancing when a vacancy occurs in the latter class of workers.

Mr. Dawson pointed out that the cost of maintaining Scouting here, fixed on a per-capita basis will be no more with several troops organized than with merely one or two. He urged fellow Rotarians to take an active part in the raising of the Scout budget, although they themselves might not sponsor a troop, and thus make the program available to such other organizations of the community as are in close contact with boys and would be willing to assume the duties of leadership, providing of a meeting place for their respective troops, etc.

At the conclusion of his address, President Duxbury requested that the matter be further laid before a meeting of the directors of the Rotary club next Tuesday evening and stated that the Rotarians, who already have contributed materially to erection of the Scout cabin stand ready to do their part in furthering the drive for funds to meet the administrative cost of Scouting and incidental expense in connection with maintaining the new Scout camp on Rock Creek. This meeting of the directors will be attended by E. H. Wescott, long active in Scouting here, and the chairman of the Legion troop committee.
