Visiting in the West

The Misses Helen Marvin, Thelma Leesley and Margaret Erickson left early last Monday by automobile for a trip to California. They will stop and see different things of interest along the way and expect to be gone some time.

Greenwood Buys New Pump

The town council as a whole formed themselves into a committee for the purpose of making purchase of a new pump for the city, which is to furnish the water for city use. The members of the board, with the exception of Rex Peters, were in Greenwood, Iowa, where they viewed the action of the pump which city uses for their water supply system, which is a Peerless. After investigating the matter, they were convinced that this type of pump is about as good for the purpose as could be secured anywhere, and so have placed their order for a pump that will be installed in due time.

Received New Road Machine

The county commissioners have purchased a new road machine which will be used on the roads in the vicinity of Greenwood and will be operated by John E. Stradley, who is an experienced road worker and knows all the details of that work. Mr. Stradley is now familiarizing himself with the working of this new machine, which is slightly different than its predecessor, but one calculated to do the best of work at the least cost per mile. In a short time he will be able to handle it as easily as the old equipment and get the work done in fine shape.

New Machine Demonstrates Worth

The new horizontal electric ice cream freezer which has been designed and is being manufactured by Ed Stradley, was given a try out in the manufacture of ice cream at the store of E. F. Smith and proved even more efficient than had been expected.

Mr. Stradley has a number of orders for these machines as soon as they can be manufactured. He has spent much time in designing the machine and is giving great care to their manufacture as well. The demonstration proves that they are all that has been claimed for them, and a demand is expected that will tax manufacturing facilities and require expansion of the plant.

Moves to Lincoln

August F. Weibke, who conducted a restaurant and eating house in Greenwood for a number of years, always maintaining a first class cafe and serving the best of food, with the changing of the highway so that it is no longer routed over Main street, has found it unprofitable to continue the conduct of the eating house at his old time location. For some time past he and his son have been working at painting and decorating in Lincoln, only to have to turn their earnings into the cafe to keep it going. The experience has proven that they might better live on the proceeds of their work and so they have closed the cafe and moved to Lincoln, where they will make their home in the future and where the father and son will work at their trade.

Attended Funeral in Lincoln P. A. Mockenhaupt and wife were in Lincoln last Wednesday, where they were attending the funeral of the late Mrs. Jessie R. Chevront, who died at the late home there. She formerly resided east of Greenwood, but moved to Lincoln some years ago. The funeral was held from the Bethany Christian church on Wednesday evening, with burial in the Greenwood cemetery. Rev. Hugh Lomax, pastor of that church, delivered the sermon. The pallbearers were Earl Wing, Dana Deeds, Harry C. Coleman, Lloyd Jeffreys, J. C. McGill and Louis Loun.

Young Man Seriously Injured Kenneth Marshall, 21, suffered partial paralysis late Memorial day while assisting with the storing of hay by a crew of men that afternoon at the Pete Hild farm west of town. The hay fork caught young Marshall in the neck and left shoulder as it was dropped into position. He was rushed to Waverly and from there taken to Bryan Memorial hospital in Lincoln by Dr. J. E. M. Thompson, who had been called from Lincoln. Dr. Thompson said that one of the fork prongs had entered the spinal column, paralyzing the left arm. He is in a serious condition.

Attended Music Recital

Mrs. W. L. Hillis and son, Leo, Mrs. G. W. Willis, Mrs. T. A. Lingbloom, Mrs. Mable Hamilton, Mrs. J. S. Gribble and son Rex, and Warren Alfred Bucknell went to Ashland on Monday afternoon to attend the recital of Mrs. Barnett's class.

Family Reunion

A family reunion was held at the A. E. Leesley home last Sunday, June 3rd. At noon a fine basket dinner was greatly enjoyed by all. This occasion was in honor of Mrs. Mary Vickers' 76th birthday and also Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jacobmeier's 23rd wedding anniversary which fell on the same day. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Vickers and family, of Eagle; Mr. and Mrs. Eston Cope of Waverly; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jacobmeier and family, of Eagle; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vickers and family, Mrs. Mary Vickers and Miss Dorothy Peterson, all of Alvo. A most pleasant time was enjoyed by all present.

DEPRIVED OF BLUE EAGLE

Washington.—Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, announced he had ordered the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company, accused of discriminating against employees, to surrender its blue eagle and to cease displaying the insignia in its street cars. The announcement said the administrator's order was based on recommendations of the NRA compliance division and of the national labor board.

Milwaukee.—Informed of the order of Hugh Johnson to remove blue eagles from the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company for alleged discrimination, S. B. Way, president of the utility, said: "We are complying fully with the provisions of the codes applicable to our business. We have been accused of violating section 7-A of the recovery act. We have repeatedly demanded that his charge be proved in court, and as yet no proper action has been started."

CODE OF ETHICS ADOPTED

St. Paul.—A code of ethics for newspapermen was approved by delegates from seventy-six cities at the concluding session of the four-day convention of the American Newspaper guild. A resolution calling for "freedom of conscience" to tell the truth accurately, not to distort or suppress facts such as might lead to economic, industrial or military wars, was adopted by the guild.

Heywood Brown of New York was re-elected president. The convention voted to instruct President Brown to name a committee to confer with President Roosevelt at an early date regarding "fair treatment" for newspaper men and women after speakers on the floor denounced the attitude of General Johnson and George Buckley, deputy administrator in charge of the newspaper code.

SEE $1,950,000 FOR STATE

Omaha.—Local good roads advocates estimated that, based on past experience, Nebraska will probably receive approximately $1,950,000 as its share of the 100 million dollar proposed federal highway appropriation for the coming fiscal year, as part of the contemplated 1 billion dollar three-year federal program.

They point out the Nebraska's share of the 400 million dollar appropriation, for the past fiscal year, was $7,800,000. The proposed new appropriation is one-fourth of last year's. In addition to the federal money, the 4 cent a gallon gas tax in Nebraska raises about 8 millions a year.

MALMIN DEFENDS HIMSELF

Chicago.—Seven Chicago attorneys, sitting as a commission for the state supreme court, heard Lucius J. Malmn defend himself from charges that he tried to blackmail Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

The testimony completed, they adjourned to make their report to the supreme court. From these reports the supreme court will decide whether Malmn, a former federal judge of the Virgin Islands, and his codefendant, C. W. Larsen, an attorney, will be disbarred as requested by Secretary Ickes.

Rotarians to Hold National Meet at Detroit

Extensive Program Will Mark Meeting from June 25 to 29—100 New Clubs This Year.

Detroit, June 8.—The new economic and social problems of today and their meaning to the business men of the world will form the theme of the 25th annual convention of Rotary International to be held here June 25 to 29. The Detroit Rotarians are preparing a hearty welcome for 8,000 to 10,000 visitors.

International relations, business conditions, methods for utilizing the new leisure time, the difficulties confronting the youth of today, and the growth of Rotary's efforts to aid boys and especially crippled children, will come up for discussion in regular convention sessions and in informal assemblies.

Officers for the coming year will be elected on the fourth day of the convention, June 28. Rotarians of eastern Missouri have announced the candidacy of Robert L. Hill, Columbia, Missouri, alumni secretary of Missouri, for the presidency of Rotary International for 1934-35.

The keynote address of the convention opening for the week's program will be delivered Monday afternoon, June 25, by Mark Sullivan, Washington, D. C., well-known author, editor and writer on current events. In the other address of that day, John Nelson, Montreal, Canada, the president of Rotary International, will review the progress of the organization during his administration in which more than 100 new Rotary clubs have been elected to membership, and the total number of Rotarians has increased by more than 7,000. This growth will be cited as indicative of a trend toward world recovery. He will also describe his impressions on his travels this past year over North America, northern Africa, Asia Minor and Europe.

The progress of science and invention and the problems which have developed from that advancement will be discussed on the second day, Charles F. Kettering, noted engineer and inventor, "has the topic "The World Isn't Finished." Charles L. Wheeler, San Francisco steamship man, will speak on his own experience in dealing with vocational problems among employees. Fred W. Gray, of Nottingham, England, will speak on "Laws and Rules" in industry. These talks, and the others of the morning, will be discussed in the informal vocational assemblies of that afternoon.

Community problems and youth problems will form the topic of the third day, with Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale University starting the program on the subject "Building Leisure Time Activities." U. S. Postmaster General James E. Farley, will speak on "The New Deal in Building Citizenship," dealing particularly with those measures aimed at community improvement and the problems of youth. Speakers from several countries will follow in a resume of "Youth Service Around the World," including Dr. Fong Foo Sec of Shanghai; Otto Fischer, German banker; L. Scott Langley of Cheltenham, England; and Cecil Rae of Ipoh, Federated Malay States. Nominations for president and treasurer of Rotary International will close the Wednesday session.

Informal assemblies that afternoon will discuss the situation of youth and the activities of Rotary clubs in improving conditions and creating opportunities for further education and training.

Balloting for president and treasurer, if necessary, will be conducted on Thursday morning, and the nominations of the other international officers—directors and district governors—will be presented for confirmation. A memorial tribute will be paid to the late James W. Davidson of Calgary, Canada, the Rotary pioneer who performed such outstanding service to Rotary in the formation of many new Rotary clubs.

The value of an international auxiliary language will be described by Dr. Herbert Shenton of Columbia University, on the fourth day, followed by Charles D. Hurrey of New York City who will talk on the international student situation under the title "Unofficial Ambassadors." A round table on international relationships will bring out the experience and viewpoints of men of several different countries.

These questions of international relationships will be discussed informally in the group assemblies of Thursday afternoon.

World peace, and how that objective may be reached, will be the general theme of the final day's session, with Bishop James E. Freeman of Washington, D. C., as the principal speaker. Roy O. Loudon, Fairfield, Iowa, will speak on the Rotary Foundation, and Edward F. McFaddin of Hope, Arkansas, will speak on the administrative side of Rotary club activity.

Detroit Rotarians have made elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the thousands of Rotary visitors. The Rotarians of Mexico City, where the 1935 Rotary convention will be held, are contributing to the entertainment features a group of twelve artists—singers, musicians and dancers—for a concert on Sunday night. Detroiters will be hosts at an international fellowship evening on Monday, with a gala party inside and outside the Temple Auditorium where the convention will center.

Many of the visitors will gather into reunion dinners with those from their own district, on Tuesday evening, with dancing and music afterwards. The President's Ball, the big social event of the convention, will be held on Wednesday night. A steamship ride up the Detroit river, for the entire convention group, will be Thursday evening's diversion.

Canadian government officials have extended special invitations for visits to Canadian parks and other points of interest at the convention. Automobile manufacturers in the Detroit region have invited all the Rotarians and members of their families to go through the plants, and many Rotarians have already made the purchase of a new car a part of their Detroit program. The auto manufacturers have tendered the use of 700 cars for the use of the Rotarians during the convention week, with two shifts of drivers obtained from the student body at the University of Michigan.

Rains in Iowa and Nebraska are Breaking Drouth

Iowa Streams Out of Banks; Tornado Visits Orchard, Nebraska, and Wishek, South Dakota.

The weather conditions over the central west have been unsettled and the rains that have swept this section seemingly has broken the long standing drouth. The heavy rains in western Iowa have brought creeks and small rivers out of their banks and tornadoes are reported in the northern part of Nebraska.

Locally this section enjoyed a slight shower during the night that refreshed the atmosphere, the heavier portion of the storm passing to the south and east.

Floods were started around Merrill, Le Mars and Hinton, Ia., when more than four inches of rain fell.

Water flooded Highway 75, running through Sioux City, when rain, hail and wind began in the afternoon and was pouring late in the night.

Perry Creek was running a quarter of a mile wide at Sioux City, inundating lowlands. Police were searching for John Cohlon, 18, at Sioux City, who went into the high water area and hadn't returned.

Police and firemen were moving families and stock to higher levels. Flood warnings were sent to residents of Floyd river and Perry Creek valleys. Floyd was five feet above flood level near midnight.

Tornado Uproots Trees. Damage by a small tornado which followed rain at Orchard, Neb., was not severe. Telephone lines between O'Neill and Orchard were down. Witnesses said large trees were uprooted and the skies darkened black as night for about 10 minutes.

Winds were terrific and "seemed to come from all directions."

Six CCC workers were injured in the North Dakota tornado when a small building piled against their tent.

At Mitchell, S. D., a farmer, Ferdinand Buchholz, was killed when a windstorm leveled buildings on his farm. His two sons were critically injured. The wind toppled trees like bowling pins, pouring two inches of rain.

And Cold in New Mexico! Drenching rains were shown as far west as the eastern slope of the Rockies, with freezing temperatures in New Mexico giving variety.

Points from the far west to the eastern border of Nebraska reported heavy rains. A study to determine whether the drouth has been broken will be undertaken within the next few days by W. H. Brokaw, state AAA administrator.

"The rains of the past few days have been very encouraging, but it has not been established yet that the drouth has been broken," he said.

Prof. Fling of University of Nebraska Dies

Instructor at Lincoln Since 1891 and One of the Oldest of the Faculty of University.

Dr. Fred Morrow Fling, 75, one of the oldest in point of service of the faculty of the University of Nebraska, died Friday night at a Lincoln hospital where he was recently operated on. Pneumonia set in Friday and the patient sank very rapidly until death came.

Dr. Fling had been professor of European history at the university since 1891, and, with Dr. E. H. Barbour, was the oldest teacher in length of service.

During the world war, Dr. Fling trained history teachers for the Leavenworth military school. This led to his selection as one of the historians sent to France, attached to the general staff as a major. He attended the peace conference and all of the plenary sessions. After his return to the United States, he worked actively to have this country join the League of Nations and continued in later years to advocate this action.

Born at Portland, Me., in 1859, he was educated in the public schools there, and at Bowdoin college, the alma mater of Longfellow. For a time he edited a daily paper at Old Orchard, Me., then a popular resort attended by such notables as William Dean Howells.

In 1888, he went to Germany for two years of study at the University of Leipzig. Then 28 years old, he could not speak enough German to inquire directions. He soon mastered German, then studied French, Italian and Spanish. In later years he learned also to read Danish, Swedish, Dutch, Norwegian and Russian.

Dr. Fling's doctorate thesis was on Mirabeau, the statesman whose ideas contributed to the French revolution, and he continued research and writings about Mirabeau and the French revolution throughout his life.

Planned World History. Dr. Fling had been preparing in recent years to publish a world's history.

A crusader for the truth, Dr. Fling was severely critical of historical methods in vogue when he began teaching. He attracted international attention by his emphasis on analysis and evaluation of source material. This principle caused him to organize the Nebraska Teachers' association in 1897.

He was a member of the American Historical association and La Societe de la Revolution Francaise. Since the founding of the Hall of Fame, he has been one of its one hundred electors.

Dr. Fling married Helene A. Dresser of Minneapolis in 1893. She and one son, Wentworth, survive him.

GERMAN GIVES SCHOLARSHIP

Berlin.—Ernest F. Sedgwick Hanfstaengl, Chancellor Hitler's Harvard-educated lieutenant donated $1,000 Thursday to create "the Doctor Hanfstaengl scholarship" of Harvard university. He walked into the ancient banking house of Delbrueck, Schickler & Co. where Frederick The Great used to bank and wrote out a check for 2,500 marks to the order of President James B. Conant of Harvard and said to the teller:

"I want this check deposited subject to orders by the Harvard president regarding its disposition. It represents a scholarship I am offering to some Harvard student to be selected by President Conant. The student can use the money for a semester study in Munich and another semester anywhere else in Germany."

He was asked whether the donation of the scholarship meant that he had definitely abandoned the idea of attending the June reunion of the Harvard class of 1909. Hanfstaengl replied cryptically with the French proverb: "Qui vivra verra," which means "he who lives will see." The Harvard graduate withdrew several weeks ago from his appointment as a vice marshal of the university commencement exercises following a storm of protests in the merican university circles.

FALLS CITY PAPER DELAYED

Falls City, Neb.—A wind and rain storm here Friday afternoon held up publication of the Falls City Journal when power lines were disrupted. The storm broke shortly before 4 p. m., about the time the paper ordinarily goes to press.

Father day cards at the Bates Book store offer a pleasant reminder to Dad on this special day set aside to honor him, Sunday, June 10th.

Wabash News

Alfred Deen, of Weeping Water, was a visitor in Wabash last Sunday, coming to visit his grandson, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Golden.

L. R. Standley had some hogs and a calf on the market last Tuesday. His stock as well as those of P. H. Clarke were delivered to market by Frank Marshall.

John Gerdes was delivering a load of hogs to the Omaha market on last Wednesday and was accompanied by Leslie Bethwell, who also had some business matters to look after in the metropolis.

John C. Browne was a visitor for the day last Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. B. Stromer and husband, where they all enjoyed a very fine visit and an excellent dinner as well.

H. H. Gerbelling, who believes in farming in season, has his corn plowed over the second time and it surely looks good. With the fine rains of the past week, it should make splendid growth.

Oscar H. Allen, of Omaha, was a caller in Wabash last Wednesday afternoon and was meeting with his many friends. Mr. Allen had some business matters to look after with fra Helms while here.

P. H. Clarke had some hogs on the market Tuesday of last week, being well satisfied with the returns the hogs were bringing, within ten cents of the top price paid that day. The hogs were sold by the Henry Petersen Commission company.

Henry Petersen, formerly of near Manley, but who for many years has been engaged in the live stock business in Omaha, was looking after some business matters in Cass county a few days since, and renewed acquaintance with his old time friends, both at Manley and near Wabash.

Earl Miller was grinding feed for the hogs which he is conditioning for market, as he believes that hogs fed ground feed will show greater gain per dollar of expense than those fed whole grain. With the price of porkers so low it behooves every feeder to get the most possible out of the feed they supply.

P. T. Otte, while endeavoring to give a cross swarm of bees which were loafing about his home, received a number of stings which puffed his hands up quite badly. However, he was able to get the bees in a hive and they are now at work, so they will be made to pay for the stinging which they administered to Mr. Otte.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Wabash church were meeting last Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Miller, where the ladies first looked after the business which called them together and there enjoyed a very fine program, with a social hour following and later also enjoyed a luncheon served by the genial hostess.

Services Coming Sunday

Rev. F. B. Webber, the new Evangelical minister, appointed to serve the Callahan-Wabash charge, has arrived with his family and is getting settled. He delivered his first sermon on Sunday, June 10th, and there will be regular services in the future. Let all turn out and give the new minister and his family a royal welcome.

GRADUATION AT CREIGHTON

Omaha.—With Judge Francis B. Allegretti of the Cook county superior court, Chicago, delivering the commencement address, degrees and certificates awarded to 354 candidates at the annual Creighton university graduation exercises here.

Traditional flag ceremonies, during which the graduates present an American flag to the university officials, was held on the campus prior to awarding of diplomas in the gymnasium. The school of medicine presented sixty-six candidates for doctor of medicine degrees, the largest number from the fourteen departments.

At baccalaureate services, Rev. William M. Magee, S. J., president of Marquette university, took to task "the dangerous group of lecturers, professors and middlemen of science and perhaps of college presidents . . . who inject error, half-truth and irresponsible conjecture into the field of religion." Father Magee asserted that materialistic philosophy made man something that feels, grows and eats, but the same philosophy forgets that he thinks.

VISIT HEALTH CENTER

The Health and Nutrition Center had as visitors Friday, Miss Agnes Saunders, state Health and Nutrition Center director and Mr. Frank S. Henline, state director of Women's Work. They were very much pleased with the progress being made at the Center here. They stated that in all probability the work will continue throughout the summer.
